THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK

ON THE LAWN

DEAR ELEANOR:—What days these are to spend out of doors! We spend nearly all of the time on the lawn, I with my sewing, the kiddies romping about, or lying full length on the grass at my side listening to my improvised stories of "What Mother Did When She Was a Little Girl."

Alice came over yesterday and taught the children how to play cross-tag.

She was wearing a delightfully girlish frock of pale canary-colored batiste, with a deep sailor collar and cuffs of finely tucked net edged with fringe of lace. Pin stripes of black ran through the material, and the bodice and skirt joined with a girdle and sash ends of black satin. I was delighted to see a four-inch ruffle on the lower edge of the skirt, which speaks for a return of the fuller skirts and graceful flounces.

Mrs. Carr and her sister, who were calling on me, enjoyed the run as much as I did. Mrs. Carr wore a stunning new fall suit of blue voile made up over silk of the same shade. It had a short jacket, slashed over the hips to the waist line. Set in under these slashes was a piece of lighter blue voile, trimmed with black silk braid. Two large buttons held it in place.

A unique touch was given the jacket by a swastika collar of white broadcloth bordered with the black braid. Her skirt was cut on straight lines to the knees and then showed a broad band that was slashed on the side. This also had an inset of the lighter shade of voile, braided. Her small round hat of fine white French felt had a big bow of black satin ribbon directly in front as its only trimming. A parasol of black-and-white striped silk bordered with blue protected her from the sun.

Her sister also was gowned in a dress suitable for early fall. It was built of cream-colored serge over a one-piece model which showed a broad band of trimming formed by rows of black soutache placed close together. This encircled the Dutch-cut neck, extended down the front where the gown fastened, was used all around the hem of the skirt and formed broad cuffs. A small V-shaped yoke of red-and-gold oriental embroidery finished it at the throat.

She had on a hat of dull-black braid trimmed with an upstanding bow of many loops of cherry-colored velvet ribbon. The effect was wonderfully smart. Little Eleanor wore the darling frock you sent her. It is quite the prettiest and most sensible dress she owns, cut as it is in one piece, with the kimono sleeves and round "baby" neck.

I love the red linen cuffs and hem, and the touch of Bulgarian embroidery you put down the front, back and on the sleeves is splendid. The crimson cord and tassels, in lieu of the everlasting black patent leather belt, is charming, and such a good idea.

A gray linen sailor suit, having red braid on the collar and sleeves and a big black tie, just suits brother boy.

The pink lawn you sent me has been made up into a delightfully cool afternoon gown.

I had the bodice cut surplice fashion, with bands of horizontal tucks over the shoulders and caught in at the waist line with a narrow girdle. These bands appear to continue as a border around an apron-over-skirt, which is slashed up each side and held in place with three fabric-covered buttons.

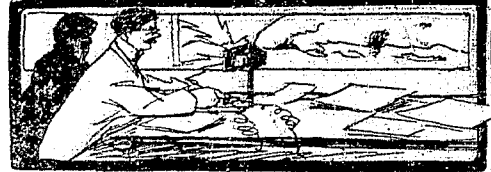

Do let me have a letter from you soon, dear, and tell me all about your new clothes.

Lovingly, your

MADGE.

TAFT PRAISED FOR PEACE STAND

Arbitration Record Ranks the President With Greatest of Executives.

Diplomatic Misadventures of Kaiser Worry the British.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Dispatches from the continent regarding the Morocco affair are mainly based upon newspaper conjectures, yet it is probable that a settlement is in sight which will disappoint pan-German agitators, although the Emperor will have something to show for his meddlesome activity. The meagre results attained in resorting and arranging European possessions in West Africa will offer scant compensation for the hopes of insecurity and uneasiness which he excites by his diplomatic adventures. Unlike King Edward and King George, the German Emperor is not trusted by allies or rivals.

In France contrast to Morocco intrigues is the league for peace organized by President Taft. Preoccupied as English political reviewers are with domestic affairs, they are impressed with the importance of the network of arbitration treaties formed at Washington and are constrained to admit that a new era in international relations will open if agreements with Japan and Germany follow those with England and France.

Provincial journals are heartier in appreciation of Taft's success than the metropolitan press, but all agree that a most memorable limitation of the barbarism and folly of war has been established in modern history. By virtue of his arbitration policy he is now ranked in England among the greatest American presidents.

GROUSE SHOOTING SEASON.

The King, after remaining in close touch with the Prime Minister during the veto crisis, has gone to the moors in time for the opening of the grouse shooting, on Saturday next.

The Marquis of Ripon, the Duke of Devonshire and the Marquis of Salisbury, and small parties with six or eight guns have been invited to meet him. Record bags are expected when the King is surrounded with crack shots. Bradley Martin and C. W. Ogden are among the prominent American occupiers of Scottish shooting boxes.

Only twelve out of thirty West End theaters are open, and six are occupied with musical comedy. The extreme heat has driven away audiences, and actors are taking enforced vacations. Clowns, however, are but temporary, for new plays are already under rehearsal for the early autumn, when a busy season is confidently expected by hopeful managers.

The Palace Theater is among the earliest with fresh programs. Pavlova will dance there on Monday with Novikoff, a new Russian cavalier, in a "pas-de-deux" by Leo Delibes, and will appear for the first time in a fresh miniature ballet entitled "Snowflakes." There will also be a new single act play called "Pot Luck," from the pen of Gertrude Robbins.

The Rev. R. J. Campbell, after preaching steadily at the City Temple to large congregations throughout the spring and summer, is taking a short vacation. He will preach a few Sundays in September and go to America in October for three months, not returning until January. His wife and daughter will be with him.

British photographers have been busy in England and on the continent with the result that royalty and the peerage are due to see themselves in new poses. Prince Oiaf with his father and mother, the King and Queen of Sweden, recently sat for a picture that has just arrived here. A new portrait has also been made of the crown princess of Roumania.

Among those Britishers whose photographs in unconventional poses have appeared recently, are the following: Miss Sirol Bulkeley, Lady Magdalen Bulkeley and Lady Newborough at the races; Lord and Lady Granard watching the balloon ascents; and Miss Nellie Hozier, sister of Mrs. Winston Churchill.

GERMANY'S SECOND PRINCE INCOGNITO

Jolly Time in Isle of Wight Spent by Ruler's Children.

PLYMOUTH, Aug. 19.—A tall, fair-haired, merry-eyed young man who will long be remembered here as the "one hour and forty minutes" visitor, has, together with his charming wife, just concluded a fortnight's visit to Shanklin, Isle of Wight.

During their two weeks' stay the pair became known familiarly to visitors as "the handsome couple," and tales were told of their skylarking on the sands and how they made friends with bareheaded children and with old fishermen and sailors.

Among the latter was Jack Looseman, a boat proprietor, and George Langton, a bathing machine attendant, and to each of these the fair-haired, handsome visitor made a valuable present when he left.

Consisted of gold badges emblemized with a monogram, and Shanklin learned that his handsome visitors were none other than the Prince and Princess Eitel Frederick of Germany.

Every day at 10:30 a. m., the prince and princess, who, of course, were incognito, left their hotel for the bathing machines, and for more than an hour and a half would sport in the sea—the prince at intervals taking a sun bath on the steps of his machine.

Once the machine got stuck, and the efforts of the bathing-machine horse proved vain until the prince literally put his shoulder to the wheel, and exerting a strength which provoked the loud admiration of a boatman who was looking on, brought the machine out of the sand into which it had stuck.

The royal visitors also made frequent motor trips round the island, and at times went sailing in a seven-ton yacht.

BRITISH STIR UP SCOTLAND YARD GRAFT

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Those Americans who think police "graft" is confined to their side of the Atlantic would open their eyes if they could get a glimpse behind the scenes at Scotland Yard, the headquarters of the police of any of the great English provincial towns. Lincoln Steffens expressed the opinion the other day that England was a great field for a muck-raker and a muck-raker who lacked the English police would find a rich and sticky quality of muck that couldn't be beaten anywhere in America.

Every now and then English observers who are familiar with the conditions think that the public is going to get a peep behind the scenes, but they never do. Incipient scandals are hushed up and the English libel laws are so framed that no newspapers dares to print what it knows. During the last few weeks there were hopes that the searchlight was going to be turned on the London police, in the trial of ex-inspector Syme. Syme was dismissed from the force for "insubordination." His insubordination consisted of refusing to lock up a man brought in by a policeman, although commanded to do so by a superior officer. He demanded an investigation, alleging that the man was being persecuted by the police authorities, but couldn't get it. Then he threatened to tell all he knew and he was informed that the lunatic asylums were hungry for such men as he. In desperation, he wrote a letter threatening to kill Winston Churchill, who, as home secretary, is official head of the London police. It was not contended that the letter was anything more than a device to attract public attention to his case, but he must go to jail for six months.

Syme's case got into the papers, but I have just heard of another which didn't add which has a rich flavor of American police methods in the most unregenerate days. Some months ago a wealthy colonial was robbed by a confidence man of $5000. He complained to the police, who promptly arrested the confidence man, who was tried, convicted and sentenced. In due time an official at Scotland Yard handed over to the colonial $4000 which he said had been recovered from the thief.

Some time later this man received a pathetic letter from the thief's wife, who, with her children, was in great poverty. She had been getting up a petition to have her husband's sentence reduced, and wrote that she had strong hopes of success if the colonial would sign it. He replied that he had no desire to be vindictive, but that he had been gravely inconvenienced by the loss of his $1000 and that under the circumstances he refused to sign. This led to a visit from the woman, who assured him that her husband had turned over every penny of the $5000 to the police.

On this the man communicated with Scotland Yard and in reply he received a telegram stating that he had received all the money recovered. The telegram was signed by an official at "the Yard," but the colonial wasn't satisfied and went to see some one "higher-up." The end of it was that there was an investigation and the colonial got his $1000. The official who had kept back his money and sent a lying telegram was dismissed from the force of course, you say. Not a bit of it. He was reduced from first-class inspector to third class inspector, the charge which went on the record against him being "receiving an unauthorized present and failing to report it." I am told he is at the head of the list of third-class inspectors and in direct line for promotion again to his old rank.

There is ugly talk, too, every now and again, about blackmail by Scotland Yard detectives, who don't hesitate to turn to their own profit family or personal secrets which come to them in the course of their duty. Many wealthy Englishmen when they have a job of this kind to be done, prefer to employ a reputable private detective because they feel safer in his hands than in those of the professional sleuth.

Of course the London police are underpaid. A constable receives from $6.15 to $9 a week, sergeants get about $10 a week, while inspectors start at $762 a year. Most of the Scotland Yard detectives are sergeants and inspectors and no one can deny that the temptation to a man earning $10 a week to "make a bit on the side" is very great.

PRINCESS TO PUBLISH MEMOIRS AS DEFENSE

Louisa Will Vindicate Herself Against Accusations That Have Risen as Result of Career

(By MALCOM CLARKE.)

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Several months ago a private soldier set the empire talking by his refusal to do military duty on Sundays. He gave his reason religious scruples. Soldiers as defenders of the faith are something new.

An extraordinary scene took place recently at the Lutheran Church, Charlottenburg. The clergyman, Dr. Cramm, took up during his discourse the subject of Pastor Patho, who has been dismissed from the State Church on account of his eccentric views, and alluded to the verdict pronounced upon Jatho, declaring in his defense that the Bible was now held to be a human work.

Several officers of the Grenadier Guards, who were with their companies among the congregation, rose and heckled the speaker, and called upon soldiers in case of war to turn their rifles on their own officers. Before the decree of ex-pulsion could be executed he had started on a run to avoid punishment.

King Frederick Augustus of Saxony recently applied for permission for his former wife—who eloped with his son, tutor ten years ago, while she was crown princess—to spend the remainder of her days with her mother. After elopement the Crown Princess was discarded by her husband, and forced to assume the title of Countess of Montignoso. Then a Saxon court decreed a divorce. Subsequently the Countess married an Italian planter named Toselli, from whom she now seeks to divorce. Having nowhere else to go, she wishes to live with her mother. As her mother resides in Bavaria, Signora Toselli could only live there by permission of the Regent, and that would only be granted on the application of the King of Saxony. Permission has been given.

WHAT WAS INFLUENCE.

It does not appear what influence was brought to bear on King Frederick but it did require much persuasion to induce him to apply for this favor to the woman who is the mother of his six children, and in the eyes of the church still his wife. We shall soon have a picturesque farce here.

The three "Kaiser Parades" of the 11th and 2d corps of guards, will be remarkable for the large number of "lady" colonels who will appear in full uniform at the head of their regiments. The Empress will ride at the head of her regiment of Fusiliers at Altona, and at Stettin she will again lead the 83d Cuirassiers, of both of which regiments she is honorary colonel. Queen Victoria of Sweden will probably appear in her uniform as colonel of the 1st Cavalry, and at the same parade Princess Eitel Friedrich will ride at the head of the 12th Dragoons.

Princess Louisa is about to publish her memoirs with a view to vindicating herself against the accusations to which certain incidents in her career have given rise. After having refused the hand of Ferdinand of Bulgaria, she was sought in marriage by Frederick Augustus, and left the comparative freedom of her father's house at Salsburg for the rigid and gloomy court of Dresden. The Princess was young and full of spirits. She found her husband kind but from the beginning her father-in-law, King George, conceived a strange dislike for her. This may have been due to his morose disposition, but in the main his aversion was excited by people in the court, who intrigued against the Princess. In one powerful chapter, entitled "Accusations," the Princess makes a definite charge against a nobleman of the Dresden court, and plainly hints that he was active in poisoning the mind of the King against her.

CLIMAX COMES.

It was in 1902 that the climax came. The King threatened his daughter-in-law with imprisonment in an asylum, and in a panic the Princess fled from Dresden to her father's roof at Salsburg. There her story was not accepted by the Grand Duke, but the Princess was so thoroughly frightened that nothing could induce her to return. So in the end she fled to Switzerland with her brother. It was only there that E. Clon appeared upon the scene, and in order to cut off all connection with the Dresden court, the Princess, though innocent, allowed herself to be compromised and so the divorce decree was pronounced. Such is the tale which the Princess has to tell in her memoirs, and as an indication of the sensation which their publication may produce, it may be mentioned that she has already been threatened with the withdrawal of her alimony by the Dresden court if she allows her vindication to be printed.

Frederick Augustus, and his two sons have been caravanning incognito. Most things bore His Majesty, and he has lately developed what amounts to an aversion of strangers. He defines himself as "the saddest man in Europe," for he has never recovered from the effects of the tragedy of his wife's desertion. Her name is never mentioned in his presence, and every picture of her has been removed from the walls of His Majesty's homes. In the last three or four years the King has aged greatly. He takes a keen interest in the happenings of the day, and is said to be especially fascinated by the progress of aviation. Being of the Roman Catholic faith, he can never re-marry while his wife lives, nor has he any desire to do so. Those who know him best say that if he feared he would take back his wife, which is impossible, as his subjects would not hear of it.

PRINCE HENRY HAS ABSCESS.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Prince Henry of Prussia, the Kaiser's brother, is laid up with an abscess on the knee as a result of the automobile accident on Wednesday. In the accident, which took place near Copenburg while the prince was returning from Holland, the prince's companion was slightly hurt and his chauffeur suffered a fractured skull. The prince was at the steering wheel at the time of the accident.

BRIGAND CAPTIVE SENDS WORD.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 19.—The government has established communication with Prof. Ebnassard, the German engineer and archaeologist who was kidnapped in the latter part of last May by brigands on Mount Olympus. The brigands demanded a big ransom for his release.

used, namely, that there would be danger of religious intolerance if home rule were granted.

All his relatives, strong Unionists and Protestants, declared to him that "religious persecution is the last thing they fear or regard as possible. The island does not make them in the least degree favorable to home rule." Sir Nugent T. Everett, a non-Catholic, repudiated the charge of religious intolerance.

Inlinchmurry, a little island off the coast of Donegal, has suddenly become famous on account of the inhabitants' refusal to pay rates. In his report to the local government board the rate collector stated that he could not get a boat on the mainland to take him to the island on such an errand as collecting rates, and that he was forced to land on the island two officials of the council who tried to land on the island for the same purpose were stoned off the shore by the inhabitants.

The question as to how a landing could be effected was discussed by the council at their last meeting, and one member stated that a dreadnaught would be required to land on the island. The island is one and a half miles long and half mile broad, and there is no direct communication between the mainland and the island on the island and they live chiefly on barley, potatoes and fish.

LORD AND LADY GRANARD WATCHING BALLOON ASCENTS.

CROWN PRINCESS OF ROUMANIA.

TEAR DOWN BRITISH FLAG

(By THOMAS EMMETT.)

DUBLIN, Aug. 19.—Among the many incidents of the coronation day ceremonies and those attending the king's visit were the tearing down of British flags, stoning of the houses of royals and boycotting of politicians who welcomed the monarch.

James McDermott, coachman of the Lord Mayor of this city, was ordered by the house steward (Mr. Buckley) not to stir out of the yard, and about 5:45 was told to come round in full livery with the carriage. When he did so the Lord Mayor descended the Mansion House steps, and told him to drive to the Vice-regal lodge, and from there to the castle. McDermott refused, saying he was "no flunkey."

"I gave him the hat and coat," he continued, "and told him to get somebody else to do so. Mr. Buckley was sent for to take the carriage from the door, and to bring it into the yard. He was sent to me, and asked me to drive there were two arguments he had never told him I would not do it. The Lord Mayor then went back into the house." McDermott said he has no use for a mayor who is a monarchist. Jeremiah MacVeagh, M. P., has compiled statements made in reply to a circular issued by them a number of leading and representative non-Catholics, stating that their fellow countrymen of the Catholic persuasion have never exhibited toward them the slightest ill-feeling on religious grounds, and that they entertain no fear of persecution on account of their creed.

Lord Pirle says he confesses with shame that in the past the spirit of religious intolerance has been, and is even now although in lesser degree, prevalent among a portion of the Unionist population of Ulster. Judge Rentoul says that when he was in Parliament he was a vigorous opponent of home rule; but there were two arguments he had never

SUCCESSOR TO CAMORRA IS FORMED

Daredevil Takes Crime on His Shoulders and Defies Capture.

Natives of the Abruzzi Fight Exciting Duel to Finish.

(By CLEMENT J. BARRETT.)
ROME, Aug. 19.—The Camorra, which has been well-nigh shaken by the prosecutions now in progress, has what the police regard as a successor.
A new criminal society has been founded in Naples in contradistinction to the local Camorra. The founder is an emigrant criminal lately returned from America, named Raffaele Nazzaro. The society has formal statutes. It aims chiefly by deeds of blood and blackmail at coercing all local free-lance delinquents into its obedience. Its leading spirits, each commanding a patrol of followers, has been scouring the criminal haunts of the city at night, armed and dealing out several chastisements to all who refuse to return their salute.
The Matino, the principal Naples newspaper, states that the cases of outrage are to be counted by the hundreds, that trades people are terrified of their lives through the impositions of the gangs and that within the last few days pitched battles have been fought between rival criminal hordes in which several spectators were shot dead or mortally wounded. The police have been trying to track down the more prominent members, and have finally succeeded in catching the founder himself, a dare-devil of twenty-three, after a stubborn struggle in a barricaded dwelling.

EXCITING DUEL.

Rarely has such an exciting duel been fought as that took place between two young women of the criminal court classes at the entrance of the villa Borghese, a short distance from the palace of Queen Margherita. The principals in this extraordinary combat were Angelina Fabiani and Pasqualina Nobili, natives of the Abruzzi and they were assisted in the duel by nine men. The quarrel began as far back as May, 1910, when Fabiani, having "stolen" Nobili's lover, the latter avenged herself by stabbing her rival.

Nobili went to prison, and as soon as she was released swore to get even with Fabiani, chiefly because, contrary to the custom among criminals, she had revealed the name of her assailant. She came out of prison on July 12, and immediately began her search for Fabiani. Her industry was rewarded a few evenings ago, when she met Fabiani and her lover in the Piazza Colonna. Compliments were exchanged, and in the end Fabiani's lover struck Nobili, who thereupon challenged her to a "rustic duel." The challenge was accepted and the duel was arranged to take place at nine o'clock that evening.

At the appointed hour the combatants and their respective "suites" were on the spot. They faced each other for a moment, holding stilletos in their hands. A particularly gross insult from Fabiani stung Nobili to fury, and bounding forward she plunged the weapon up to the hilt in Fabiani's body. In spite of the terrible wound inflicted Fabiani continued to battle, and the two women slashed at each other. Meanwhile the seconds were each other. The friends of Nobili were armed with knives, those of Fabiani with cudgels. Soon the cudgels were whirling in the air, dealing blows on the backs, arms and legs, while the men with the knives sought in vain to get between the combatants. Nobili clenched with Fabiani and hit her severely on the right wrist. Then her cavaliers finding that they could not overcome their adversaries' cudgels gave up the contest and rushed off along the Via Veneto. Fabiani's supporters gave her face at a fountain, two agents came up and arrested her, as well as her supporters, who had returned. Fabiani was taken in a desperate condition to a hospital, where first she refused to say how she had become wounded.

When she at last told the story and the whole drama came to light, Fabiani's supporters were arrested also.

ABOUT EUROPEANS

LONDON, Aug. 19.—It has been learned here that the German firm that was mainly concerned in the Agadir incident is the well-known Gebrüder Mannesmann, steel and iron manufacturers, of Remscheid, in Westphalia, a remarkable combination of brothers, each of whom is an expert in some special branch of business. The five brothers, Reinhard, Karl, Otto, Alfred and Hermann, are types of the German business men whose energy and pushfulness have done so much to develop their country as a world power. One of the brothers, Reinhard, is an expert in mines, and it was he who obtained from the Sultan Abdul Aziz of Morocco the mining concessions which formed the chief basis of Germany's claim to protect her interests in Morocco. The importance of their mining operations, it is said, lies in the fact that the German iron and steel industry is seeking new sources of ore, owing to the exhaustion of the home supply, and great firms like the Krupp of Essen are associated with the Mannesmanns in these mining interests. The Mannesmann brothers also own farming, ranch and stock concessions in Morocco, including a model farm near Casablanca, 65,000 acres in extent.

F. R. Foster, the cricketer, who has been such a tremendous success this season, is greatly distinguished himself in the gentlemen and players' match at Lord's, and is in a fair way to obtain the rare distinction among amateurs of 1000 runs and 100 wickets this season. It is hoped that he will see his way to go to Australia this winter with the English team.

RUSSIA TURNS ATTENTION TO SIBERIA'S POSSIBILITIES

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 19.—From far to the east beyond the Ural mountains the Siberians, the old time settlers in Siberia, are making themselves heard at the seat of Russia's government. Unlike Russia's other problems, there is no question with them of different racial customs or foreign connections; it is an issue as between Russians and Russians.
Travelers of a speculative turn of mind have sometimes said that the only people who could conquer European Russia would be the Siberian Russians. These Siberians have retained the most serviceable virtues of their forbears and added to them a spirit of independence and sturdiness of character that is far to seek among the bureaucratic ridden population of the old provinces. The Siberians will not carry the personal passports and permits to travel and identification papers with which the ordinary Russian is pestered. He will not even take out the title deeds to the land he settles on. Instead he says: "Here I am; here I hold my own against all comers." This revision from the overdocumented existence in European Russia is the immediate cause of Siberia's present dispute with the Czar's government.

INVOLVES MIGRATION.

Part of the great land reorganization act, which is now transforming the social and economic life of Russia, involves the migration of hundreds of thousands of Russian families to the vast lands in Siberia. The taking up of freehold farms by the ex-commune peasants leaves at each stage an accumulation of people who would be landless if the new country to the east were not thrown open to them.
Already they are making their presence felt in Siberia, these state aided newcomers. The Siberians are made to feel for the first time that the supply of land is not unlimited; they are told that they have taken too much land to themselves and that their titles to possession are not in order. The greed for land is the stronger because it is magnificent agricultural and pastoral country; the transition of black, ice-bound misery to fertile land abroad and never supplanted the peasant's vision of Siberia as a happy land of golden grain. The politically deported element of the Siberians, the voluntary migrant who went eastward to better himself and the great number of wandering Russians who eventually settled there because it offered the most satisfying life that they had experienced have welded together into a very independent spirited population. After last year's tour of Siberia by Prime Minister Stolypin and Secretary for Agriculture Krivosheyn there was some comment on the extent to which the feeling for independence, even separate economic existence, had gone among the Siberians. The one great restraining influence was their perception that for leading lives of civilized comfort they were not self-supporting. They produced only raw material and they had utterly inadequate means of transportation.

PLAN, ECONOMIC POLICY.

The St. Petersburg government and two leading Duma representatives from Siberia, Messrs. Nebrassoff and Soboleff, granddaughter married Thomas Assheton of Ashley Hall, Cheshire. Sir Charles' first wife was the daughter of the second Lord Vivian, who died in 1891, leaving an only son, Captain Robin Duff, the good-looking Guardsman, who married Lady Juliet Lowther, the only daughter of the fourth Lord Londale and Gladys, Marchioness of Londale, now Marchioness of Ripon. Captain and Lady Juliet Duff's one daughter has Princess Victoria for a godmother.

AMERICANS SPEND MILLIONS ABROAD

Paris Gets a Very Good Share of Tourists' Funds.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—According to recent statistics something over $80,000,000 per annum has been spent in Europe by American tourists during the last few years. This year the figure will be well over $100,000,000, a good share of which goes to Paris, where the American invasion since May has beaten all records.
Although the hotel men are satisfied with the unusual number of American visitors, only too willing to pay good prices for good accommodations, it would appear from an investigation that the money spent in hotels this year will represent only a comparatively small fraction of the total.
"We have done more business with American customers this season," said a high official of one of the largest dry goods stores in Paris, "than with all the rest of our foreign customers put together."

WORKING FOR AMERICANS.

"It seems, in fact, that Americans are beginning to understand that shopping in Paris is not confined to the Place Vendôme and Rue de la Paix, where prices are so high that only a few can meet them. Although this is supposed to be the middle of the dead season, our staff is as numerous and as busy now as it was at the end of June. At present we are working almost exclusively for Americans.
"I believe we have taken big business from our competitors in America, and, judging from the quantity of clothes, and so forth, sold in Paris to Americans, the custom house receipts should be something like a record."
Jewelry and antique dealers and others are unanimous in declaring that, while of late years, American visitors came to Europe merely as tourists, they have now discovered that things in Europe can be had at much better prices than in their own country, and have begun to come here to buy.
Of course, temperatures at between 85 and 100 do not encourage enterprising Americans to go to the gardens of the chief hotels as they say now as they were some weeks ago. Hundreds of fresh arrivals are every day filling up immediately the void left by those who, having concluded their European holiday, are returning to America.

AGAIN PROPHET SEES END OF THE WORLD

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The end of the world has now been definitely fixed for 1911! At any rate, that is what the Rev. H. C. Sturdy predicted recently, at a meeting of the Rev. M. Baxter's "successors." And of the number present fully three-quarters firmly believed that the prophecy will turn out to be a true one.

It is really extraordinary the number of people who believe in an early end of the world. Thousands have been disappointed at various dates, and no doubt thousands more will be disappointed in this oft-looked-for event. London has suffered from several end-of-the-world panics.

It was predicted that on a certain October 13 the city would be destroyed, a destruction to be followed shortly by the end of the earth. For some reason or other people became panic-stricken. Thousands rushed out to Hampstead and other outlying suburbs on the 12th, watching and fearing. All through the night they waited, and all through the weary hours of the 13th they kept watch, with blanched faces, for the expected catastrophe. At midnight thousands of tired-out specimens of humanity found the world still solid and intact, and walked home in disgust.

In 1942 a prophet predicted the end of all things, beginning with the destruction of London on March 18. Like the previous prediction, it failed to come off, though thousands of people fled into the country before the "fatal" day.

Just over two years ago there was great excitement in America. No fewer than three different prophets had fixed on December 27, 1908, as the last day of all, and had advised their followers to wind up their earthly affairs. Spangler was the chief of these prophets, and many of his followers, anxious to hear the first blast of the trumpet of the archangel, refused to go to bed on the Saturday night. At dawn a large number of them put on white dresses specially made for the occasion. According to Prophet Spangler, the skies were to have rolled back like a scroll about 11 a. m. Unfortunately for the truth of this, it snowed all the time, and Spangler's followers, besides catching cold, became the laughing-stock of the still solid earth. A warrant was issued for the prophet, who had conveniently disappeared by the way on the grounds that he was a public nuisance.

TOO HOT FOR HIM.

Many people will recollect Professor Faib who, ten years ago, announced that the world would be destroyed by a comet on November 12. Thousands of credulous persons made preparations for the end. In Russia, where superstition is rife, many of the peasants started drinking bouts the night before in their terror, only to wake up with splitting headaches. Russian peasants are particularly prone to believing in this kind of thing.
Just over sixteen years ago a Mohammedan religious prophet stirred up panic among thousands of natives by his predictions. Arabs spent days and nights in prayer, and the panic spread to the local Jews. When it was ascertained that the prophet was a fraud, the prophet himself was spared when the end came. For a consideration in cash many of his panic-stricken followers found that they could also be spared. Needless to say, Africa became too hot for the prophet, and after a short while he was forced to flee from the scene of his little swindle.

KING GEORGE DISCOVERS SCOTLAND FOR SCOTCH

Difference in Status From That of Ireland Shown Marked When Rulers Pay Visit

(By LADY MARY MANWARING.)

LONDON, Aug. 19.—No more striking coincidence of the difference between the status of Ireland and Scotland in the United Kingdom could be imagined than that shown in the personnel of the great officers of the courts held in Dublin and Edinburgh. In the Irish capital, English and Scotch dignitaries fairly outshone those of Irish extraction.
In Edinburgh none but Scotsmen were on guard in the high official positions during the visit of King George and Queen Mary to their Scotch capital.
They were received in fact as King and Queen of Scotland rather than of Great Britain. Their majesties were received at Edinburgh by a staff of purely Scottish dignitaries, with attendance on them throughout their stay in Scotland by virtue of their offices which are in most cases hereditary.
First and foremost among the great dignitaries of state who were in attendance on the king during his stay in Scotland was his eldest son in his hereditary capacity as grand steward of Scotland, an office with which he became invested from the very moment of his father's accession to the throne a little over a year ago. The heir-apparent here came at the same time, and in the same manner, Duke of Rothesay, Lord of the Isles, and Prince of Scotland. Indeed, the office of Grand Steward of Scotland, by reason of the vastness of the power and authority formerly vested in his hands, has always been identified with that of the Prince of Scotland, in the eldest son of the sovereign. He was the only dignitary not of pure Scotch birth and descent.

The Duke of Montrose is Lord Clerk Register, and as such presides at the meetings of Scotch peers held at each parliamentary election for the selection by the Scotch peers of the sixteen of their number to represent them in the House of Lords. The Duke of Buccleugh and of Queensberry is the captain-general of the King's Household Guard of Scotland, which is likewise known as the Royal Company of Archers, and the rank and file of which, composed of Scotchmen of gentle birth and blue blood, are armed on state occasions with bows and arrows.

LARGE LANDOWNER.
Then there is the Marquis of Breadalbane, who is keeper of the privy seal of the King of Scotland and who is one of the largest landowners of the north-eastern kingdom, being able to ride, in a direct line, for a hundred miles from his castle of Taymouth in Perthshire, without ever leaving his own land.
Lord Southesk was at Holyrood as the hereditary cupbearer of the King of Scotland. He is the chieftain of the great Scottish clan of Carnegie. A great grandfather of the present Lord Southesk married Miss Agnes Elliot, daughter of Andrew Elliot, Lieutenant-Governor of New York, at the close of the eighteenth century, and the present Earl's father traveled extensively in the United States and wrote several playbooks about America at a time when it was less familiar to Europeans than it is today. Afterwards he devoted much of his time to exploration of the more remote districts of Canada, where there are several towns today that bear the name of Southesk and of Carnegie in his honor.

Finally there is the hereditary carver to the King of Scotland. He is only nine years old, being Sir Wyndham Carnegie, the son of the late Lord Carnegie of his line. It was truly a Scottish reception.

DENMARK FOR SOUVENIRS.

There is a great demand for the chairs which were used in Westminster Abbey on Coronation Day by the peers and peeresses, and members of the House of Commons. The chairs used by the former were of the Chippendale make, and they will be sold at 30s. each. Those used by the members of the House of Commons were made of beechwood, with cane seats, and with the stools also used, these chairs will be sold at 15s. each. The public, however, will not have an opportunity of purchasing any of the chairs until the desires of the users have been met. It is understood that Lord Rosebery was amongst one of the earliest applicants for the chair which he used on coronation day.

Queen Alexandra has always collected mascots. One afternoon lately she was paying a call in Belgravia, and quite unobserved a black kitten of a most pleasant order climbed up the skirt of Her Majesty's chair, and arrived at the top began to play with her veil. The hostess got up quickly to remove the cheeky intruder, but Queen Alexandra asked to view the kitten belonged. When it was shown that it was a male, Her Majesty requested to be permitted to take it home, and she did. Queen Alexandra has a solemn old owl at Sandringham which she regards as a mascot. Her friends, knowing this, have on some time taken to the corners of ornaments representing owls, and now she has a table which is devoted to the collection.

Princess Alexandra Duff has a distinction unique in English history. She has been the only woman to have a dress in her own right. The Duke of Fife has no male heir, and Princess Alexandra is therefore heiress-apparent to the title. Her sister, Princess Maud, is heiress-præteritæ, she has been several times married, and has created Duchesses in their own right.

BERLIN IS GLAD TO GIVE WELCOME TO LEISHMAN

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—No official intimation has so far reached Berlin as to when John G. A. Leishman will take up his duties as American ambassador in succession to Dr. David Jayne Hill. The latter will arrive here from Washington the last of this month for the purpose of superintending the removal of his family's personal effects from the embassy house in the Rauchstrasse and presenting his letters of recall to the Kaiser.

This formality will probably take place at the autumn parade of the grade du corps at the Tempelhof field on September 1 or at one of the dinners or receptions at the palace which follow the racing. The retiring ambassador is almost certain to be his majesty's guest at table as a parting honor.
Dr. Hill's last public appearance in Germany will probably be at Potsdam on September 15, when he will receive the unveiling of the Von Steuben statue which has been presented to Germany by the American Congress. The statue will be dedicated in the presence of the Kaiser. The ceremony will make a picturesque military ceremonial. The statue has arrived in Germany in charge of the sculptor, Albert Jäger.

WILL MAKE PRESENTATION.

The official presentation on behalf of the German government will be made by S. E. Wolfson, the proprietor of the New York German Daily Herald, and Congressman Richard Bartholdt of Missouri. The American authorities have asked the German war department to frame the German inscription, which embellishes the base of the statue.
Such sentiments as find public expression in Germany in regard to the American appointment are of satisfaction. He has the reputation of being a keen diplomat and will meet at the foreign office an old-time Constantinople colleague, Foreign secretary von Kiderlin-Wachtler, who was stationed at the German legation in Constantinople during Leishman's nine years of service there.

Berlin society will welcome the advent of another millionaire as the Leishmans maintain a house in the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne in Paris, another at Biarritz, and who have heard of Mrs. Leishman's custom of spending the last part of each year away from her husband's ambassadorial post, are inclined to fear the American embassy, which its new chief's wealth, may not, after all, be the scene of such social splendor as Berliners have come to associate with Yankee diplomacy at their capital. Mr. and Mrs. Leishman's married daughter, Comtesse Louise de

EMMY DESTINN A LIBRETTIST.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Mlle. Emmy Destinn, the temperamental Bohemian prima donna, in an interview this week states that she is looking for a composer for a grand opera libretto she has just written. It is called "Libussa," and the title role, which represents one of the prima donna's national heroines, will be created by her when the piece is eventually set to music. Mlle. Destinn also plans to make an early debut as an adapter of plays.

YANKEES FLOCK TO BERLIN.

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—The importance of the American tourist traffic is shown by the following figures giving the foreign arrivals in Berlin in July: Russians, 13,615; Americans, 6,711; Austrians, 5,690; Swedes, 2,029; Danes, 1,775; English, 1,729; French, 1,112; The tourist business from the United States amounts to more than that from England, France, Denmark and Sweden combined.

FACT, FICTION AND FANCY FROM EAST

EVOLVE NEW PARTY Women of Washington Society Are Now to Be Found in Gallery of Congress

(By CONSTANCE CARRUTHERS.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The brave and loyal women of the congressional and official sets, who have elected to stay by their husbands during the summer session of congress have evolved a new style of entertainment. It is the congressional party, no less. It is a session of the senate of the house now but that the members' galleries have not groups of daintily dressed women, who watch with interest the work of husbands, fathers, and in some instances, uncles, making laws for the nation.

Mrs. Champ Clark with her young daughter, Miss Genevieve Clark, has been among the most frequent visitors, and they always are accompanied by a merry party of young people. There are who have attended the sessions are Mrs. Sherman, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, Mrs. Warren, wife of the senator from Wyoming; Mrs. Watson, wife of the new senator from West Virginia; Mrs. Robert, wife of the senator from Tennessee; Mrs. William A. Gilpin, Mrs. David E. Finley, Mrs. J. J. Russell, Mrs. Thomas Ruby, and Mrs. Robert C. Vickers.

Informal suppers at restaurants or at home followed by automobile trips, conclude the evening.

Speaking of motor trips, the vice-president and Mrs. Sherman have been among the most enthusiastic motorists during the summer. They have been exceedingly hospitable and scarcely a day goes by that they don't ask several of their friends for a long ride and dinner or late supper. Senator Brandegee, Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Huntington, and Mrs. Warren, and Senator Root also have taken to motoring this summer to a great extent.

SHERMANS ARE HOSTS.

The vice-president and Mrs. Sherman recently took a party out to historic Dover House for dinner. Dover House is in itself well worth going to inspect, as it is not only a beautiful place, but is full of historic associations. Being a part of the old Lord Baltimore tract, and the trip there is a beautiful trip over the Marlboro pike. The vice-president's party consisted of Senator Lippitt, of Rhode Island; Representative McKelvey, of New York; Representative McKinley, of Illinois; Mr. Bennett, clerk of the senate; Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Kauffmann, Miss Kauffmann, and Miss Johnson. This is one of the most charming rides and stopping places in the country, and the vice-president's little party in their touring car enjoyed it enthusiastically.

Much interest is felt in Washington over the announcement of former Senator Jones of Nevada of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Gorgiana Jones, to Robert Kelsey Walton, a lawyer of New York city. The wedding will take place this month, in Switzerland.

Mr. Walton is a member of the law firm of Parker, Wagner & Walton. He is a Fellow of the Theosophical Society, a member of the New York County Lawyers' Association, and the Sigma Chi Fraternity. He was graduated from the University of Michigan Law School in 1904, and is 30 years old. Mr. Walton went abroad in May and is not expected back in New York till fall.

John P. Jones, the father of Mr. Walton's fiancée, was a United States senator from Nevada from 1873 to 1903.

GAYETIES BEGIN.

The gayeties of the "Old White" Sulphur Springs, which will be at their height next month have already begun with the horse races. The festivities of the races closed with a beautiful German festival at the hotel, which was given by Mrs. E. Penfield Turner, of this city, and Mrs. Elaine Elkins, of Elkins, West Virginia. Mr. Turner created quite a pleasing sensation with the new and unique figures which were introduced, especially appropriate to the occasion and nature of horses and races. There was a hurdle jump and a hare and hound chase, to say nothing of other pretty and new features. Forty couples danced. The return of Mrs. William F. Draper

PRINCE OF WALES JOINS GREAT BRITAIN'S NAVY

LONDON, Aug. 19.—"Come aboard to join, sir!" With these words the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne, made his formal entry into the navy on the first day of the present month, in this respect, as in every other, carrying out the forms and regulations prescribed for midshipmen joining their ship for the first time.

The prince, while he will have to perform the same duties as other midshipmen, and will have additional work to do, his tutor being aboard to coach and instruct him in the duties of the subdivision. However, his most rough work that fell to his father when he was in the navy. The present king first went to sea on an auxiliary cruiser, on which sails were used for the first time. The king's regulations provide that "When the Prince of Wales is embarked in any ship or vessel, his standard shall be hoisted at the main, and shall be a modern battleship. The king's regulations provide that "When the Prince of Wales is embarked in any ship or vessel, his standard shall be hoisted at the main, and shall be a modern battleship. The king's regulations provide that "When the Prince of Wales is embarked in any ship or vessel, his standard shall be hoisted at the main, and shall be a modern battleship.

The prince obtains his first experience afloat aboard the Hindustan, not one of the newest, but still a modern battleship. The king's regulations provide that "When the Prince of Wales is embarked in any ship or vessel, his standard shall be hoisted at the main, and shall be a modern battleship. The king's regulations provide that "When the Prince of Wales is embarked in any ship or vessel, his standard shall be hoisted at the main, and shall be a modern battleship.

The prince will be treated as any other midshipman. He is not a commissioned officer, but subordinate to warrant officers (gunners, boatswains, carpenters and artificer engineers), and with them the future sovereign will live and move in the room of his ship. He will be assigned to a watch and will be allotted a subdivision of seamen, for whose behavior, smartness and work he will be held responsible by the lieutenant in command of the subdivision. However, his most important work is the acquiring of nautical knowledge to which the greater part of his time must be given.

COMPLAINTS POUR IN.

Complaints are coming to the government from some of the South African protectorates that the policy of the empire and preserving wild animals is being overdone. For some years the government authorities, fearing the extermination of those animals which have any commercial value,

MISSISSIPPI WILL LOOM BIG IN SENATE

(By RALPH M. WHITESIDE.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Mississippi is going to loom big in the Senate. Already the nucleus for the corps is in existence and the work of perfecting it is going quietly and steadily forward.

In the matter of defense against airship attack it is safe to say no nation is ahead of us.

A prominent naval official said to me the other day "Because we are not making much fuss about it, it must not be taken for granted that the days of Jefferson Davis she has had influence beyond her size in the upper house, but with Williams and Vandaman represented her she will outshine herself."

And it would be hard to find two men who are more direct opposites than these two. Williams is a student, quite calm and rather conservative in his manner and methods, while Vandaman is blunt, outspoken, a rough and tumble fellow of the Ben Tillman style. But they are both men of force. Williams already is a dominating figure in the Democratic side, though he is serving his first term. If Vandaman does not make a high place in the party councils, I'll acknowledge myself a poor judge of men.

EUROPE'S AVIATION RAILROAD HEADS NEW YORK RICHEST

PROGRESS IS NOT FEARED

(By RALPH M. WHITESIDE.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—There is a general impression that the United States is away behind Europe in the matter of aviation in so far as it relates to war.

While there may be a measure of truth in this our experts declare there is no reason to feel alarm. The aeroplane is in the process of development as yet and while great strides have been made over the first Wright machine, the perfect plane is a long way in the distance yet.

Some of the brightest minds in the navy and army are at work on the problems involved in turning out a really efficient and reliable aeroplane and those in authority are calmly confident that when the necessity arrives the United States will be found to have an air fleet equal to any and with a corps of aviators who for skill and daring cannot be excelled.

The government of the United States is asleep to the importance of the airship both in land and sea warfare. We are thoroughly up to the times and there is no danger of our being caught napping.

The United States army and navy airmen do not go in much for contest races and spectacular stunts, but it is recognized that there are no more efficient aviators anywhere than Chandler, Arnold, Beck and their brethren of the cloth.

CLARK, JR., TO FIGURE.

In the event that Speaker Champ Clark is selected by the Democracy as standard bearer in the Presidential election of 1912, a young man, who is now in Washington, will figure in the campaign almost as prominently as the speaker himself.

He is Champ Clark Jr., but little past twenty years, and already declared to be one of the best orators in the country for his age. Champ Jr. arrived in Washington recently from Columbia, Mo., where he has been attending the State University.

Young Clark's full name is Bennett Champ Clark, but of late years his friends have fallen into the habit of calling him Champ Jr., with the result that this has become his life title. Champ Jr. is a tall, clean-cut type of boy, and as a result of having listened to his father's speeches in Congress from the time he was a boy six years of age, is exceptionally well informed on all political issues.

SEE BRILLIANT FUTURE

(By PRESTON C. ADAMS.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—This is the season when railroad presidents begin to return to the city from inspections of their systems. They are really adverse to telling just how the business outlook strikes them, several such utterances have been made recently which may be taken as typical.

President Howard Elliott of the Northern Pacific declares that "underlying conditions west of the Mississippi are not so good as they appear. The country is suffering from depression and people are not in debt."

Advices received by Mr. Elliott state that merchandise distributors in the Northwest are conservatively sanguine as to the immediate future. One of the largest jobbing firms in the Northwest, which is in close touch with conditions, is working its factories on full time and anticipates a steady fall trade.

Chairman of the Frisco system says business conditions in the Southwest are good, but nothing, however, to indicate anything beyond the normal. Crop conditions are very good, barring corn and wheat in parts of Oklahoma, Kansas and Northern Texas. Cotton up to the present, is in excellent condition.

Yokum does not look for any large business increase, but looks for steady, regular business if present conditions continue.

President Jeffery of the Denver and Rio Grande says:

"While one is forced to believe that there is a general feeling of uncertainty in commercial life, it cannot be said that the country is suffering from depression; rather, there is a general lull in business of a temporary character only."

"All over the country business is rather slow. It is evidenced in every line. But this does not mean that there is a financial or a business depression. It means simply a lull in business. I differentiate between these conditions."

SOUTH OPTIMISTIC.

In regard to conditions in the South, President Finley of the Southern Railroad said they are excellent and that indications point to the finest crops. "Prospects were never better," he said. These expressions pretty well cover the country and give very little comfort to the pessimist.

Railroads have sold $10,000,000 new securities since the beginning of the year, or fully $205,000,000 more than in the first seven months of 1910. Short term notes have supplied $257,000,000 against $173,000,000 a year ago, an increase of $84,000,000. Stocks have not been popular and as a consequence only $55,000,000 have been floated, a decrease as compared with last year. Bonds have supplied the major part of the total. They have been utilized to the extent of $568,000,000 whereas last year only $440,000,000 was issued. July though it brought few sales, shows an increase of nearly $200,000,000 over July, 1910, the output of this occasion having been $440,000,000. A good part of last month's offerings has not yet gone farther than investment houses.

CITY IN THIS COUNTRY

(By RALPH JOHNSON.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—It is no news that New York is by long odds the richest city in the country, if not indeed one of the richest in the world. No figures of less than six figures can be used in describing its wealth and nine or even ten figures have to be called upon to tell of what we have in the few square miles which constitute Greater New York.

For instance the commissioner of taxes has just prepared a statement showing the amount of property in the city which is exempt from taxation. It reaches the enormous total of $1,576,208,879.

This is more than the total assessed valuation of the property in each of the states except ten.

Of this total $1,095,927,075 is situated in Manhattan. The value of the real estate alone, barring the improvements, which is exempted from taxation throughout the entire city, is put at $974,444,649. This figure is conceded to be far less than the actual value of the property should it be put up for sale, for the tax department appraisals are not made at the maximum.

The holdings which are free from the ordinary taxes include the property owned by the city itself, that owned by the United States government, and the lands and houses of churches, hospitals and charitable institutions. By far the largest portion of the untaxed property is held by New York City. There is, at a rough estimate, at least a third of it, however, in the possession of religious bodies or institutions exempt from taxation under the law.

Of the city's share of this big total, by far the greater part is in park lands. The value of Central Park with its improvements, is put down at $250,000,000, or one-sixth of the estimated value of the untaxed improved realty in the city. The value of Central Park's $40 acres, minus improvements, is set down at $225,000,000, which makes this one parcel of land worth nearly one-third as much as all the rest of the city put together, including all of the other parks.

Some of the biggest items put down in the untaxed list are: Governors Island, $6,500,000; custom house, $3,000,000; land and building, Trinity church and cemetery, $17,600,000; St. Paul's church and cemetery, $5,350,000; main postoffice, $10,000,000; Cathedral of St. John the Divine, $4,900,000; and St. Patrick's cathedral, $7,850,000.

Other instances of the low figure at which the valuations are made are found in the cases of City Hall Park and Bryant Park, the former being put in at $28,360,000, including the city hall and the county court house, and $27,000,000 without. This allowance of $1,360,000 far from repre-

USUAL OUTBURST Society Accused of Seven Varieties of Crime as Result of Astor- Force Engagement

(By MARGARET WATTS de PEYSTER)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The announcement of the engagement of Colonel John Jacob Astor to Miss Madeline Force has furnished the text for the usual outburst against society. The men and women who are supposed to constitute the very highest society have been denounced as violence and accused of pretty much every crime in the calendar with a few miscellaneous misdeeds for good measure.

Society bawling seems to be a favorite amusement with some sections of the community and of course the coming marriage of a divorced millionaire of 47 to a young girl of 19 was too good an opportunity to pass by even when it was obvious that these denunciations do not seem to worry the Colonel, his young bride-to-be or society in general to any very great degree. All of them are going along in the usual summer tenor of their way enjoying life as best they may.

Colonel Astor is a divorced cavalier, Miss Force is being joyously received by the Astor section of society and is apparently having the time of her life, unworried by the mean things being said about her.

Really these wholesale denunciations of society are not justified. There are, of course, many whose names are on the social registry who are not what they should be but the vast majority of society people are pretty good sort of folks and it is to be feared that many of the harsh critics get their "facts" from the society novel, and these "facts" are just about as accurate as might be expected.

A LA FINNEGAN.

That Camoy's engagement is a regular case of "off again, on again," is not at this writing a thing to be argued, but whether or not it will stay on is a question. There is no doubt that Lord Camoy is in a deadly earnest. And small blame to him.

Miss Sherman is not only a most charming girl personally, but the Sherman fortune is a big one even in American fortunes go. I understand Miss Mildred is not averse to becoming the bride of the handsome young English peer, Papa Sherman is not at all enthusiastic over the match. Hence the erratic course of the wedding.

Christian Science is becoming a fad among the older society women. Mrs. John Henry Hammond, the daughter of Mrs. Sloan, and her sister, who became a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and Mrs. F. V. Vanderbilt, are among the while at the office of a practitioner connected with First church and get a treatment. Mrs. Borden Harriman and Mrs. William Burden date their interest in the subject since a short time prior to the excommunication of Mrs. Stetson, and the report that she had left her home next door to the church.

Mrs. Eben Jordan, of Boston, has two sons, Stetson Jordan, a Miss Jordan, of Philadelphia, has just come to her. Mrs. Stetson's eccentric sister, Mrs. Stimson, is still in Paris.

"STRIKING" WEDDING.

Every bride likes to have a striking and original feature at her wedding. She wishes to give expression to her happiness by having a wedding which is characteristic of herself. The result is many brides adopt of original features that become the fashion. The celebration of this fact is shown in the eagerness of brides to have a best girl, as well as a best man. There are several bridesmaids. The best girl, however, has

AUTO PERFECTION REACHED IN U. S. OLIVE CULTURE AN OLD INDUSTRY

Reports of New York House is Encouraging. Californian Tells of Great Orchards in the Golden State.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—"Olive culture is one of the oldest fruit industries of California," remarked A. J. Brasian, a prominent fruit raiser of the Golden State, the other day. "The first olive orchard in California was planted in San Diego in 1769, and that country is now a large producer of olives and olive oil. There are large orchards in other counties and every year adds to the number of trees. There are 38 counties reporting more than 1000 trees each, ranging from Shasta on the North to the Mexican line on the south."

"The number of trees, as reported by the state board of equalization, I understand, is more than 1,000,000. Los Angeles leading with more than 300,000 bearing trees. Of course, this country cannot compare with Italy in the production of olives, but the industry is growing, and while it is not attractive from a remunerative point of view, I believe it can be made so. Estimates of the production of olive oil for this year range from 750,000 to 900,000 gallons, and from 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 gallons of pickled olives."

"The Holland of America—that's what they call Skagit county, Washington," says R. W. McKenzie of Seattle. "This appellation was conferred on Skagit county because of its immense crops and its wonderfully diked lands. I do not believe that there is a county in America that can produce a greater variety of crops and other farm products. Besides its grain, Skagit county butter is becoming famous in the Northwest. Fruit and garden truck are being raised in great abundance and a fine market in Seattle."

"There are many opportunities for the farmer in that part of the country. The immense area of logged off land, which at a small cost can be turned into money by the man with small means. When five years ago there were only old-timers with their big farms, today there are dozens of small farmers with ten or twenty acres who are making a good living and supporting their families in comfort. A ten or twenty-acre lot will supply pasture for ten or fifteen cows, whose milk can be sold to the condensary plants at an average price of 15 cents a gallon, and there will be plenty of room left for fruit or garden patch, which returns ready cash at the nearest country store. Skagit county farmers have not until recently paid much attention to fruit raising, but the recent experiments have shown that the quality of fruit can be raised in the Skagit valley as that which has made the Hood river of Oregon section famous."

The actual expenditure on the two buildings. The old Tweed court house is famous chiefly for having cost some ten times that sum. Bryant Park was valued at $22,000,000 with the new public library and $7,000,000 without it. The new library cost about twice the $5,000,000 thus allowed for it.

WITH THE THEATERS THIS WEEK

E.H. HALL LEADING MAN AT YE LIBERTY

ORPHEUM

It really looks as though this week's show at the Oakland Orpheum would break all records in every way. Gaze at the brilliant stars that are to twinkle. Exquisitely dainty is the little operetta, "Mon Amour," in which Amelia Stone and Armand Kalisz will appear. There is a tone of gracious fineness, an alluring beauty about the entire production that is charming. The music has a lilt to it that seems to swing the audience through the graceful waltzes. Both artists sing extremely well, look attractive and deport themselves with an extravagant ease that fairly exudes delight. Miss Stone is a handsome woman with a wealth of magnetism. She is a most tasty dresser and carries a wardrobe that is rich in smart frocks of the latest patterns. Kalisz, who is also responsible for the music and lyrics, is a clever French musical star, a tenor who came to this country under the management of Charles Frohman and appeared in "The Hoyden," "The Waltz Dream" and other successes.

As if they had stepped right from the pages of Dickens, will come "Scrooge," Tiny Tim, Bob Cratchit, Mrs. Cratchit, Marley's Ghost, Mr. Fezziwig and other characters of the famous "A Christmas Carol." The characters are as sharp and cameo-like as those in the Dickens tale, in "Scrooge," which comes to the Orpheum next week. Tom Terriss and his company of associate players will present this adaptation. It is an adaptation, not a dramatization, for no one would have the impudence to alter Dickens. It all happens with living creatures that we actually see, as Dickens made it happen on that Christmas eve.

The only casting act of the present day that has been successful in performing the loop the loop somersault from one character to another is the Original Four Londons, who will be seen at the Orpheum next week. This is one of the star feats of these "Champions of the Air" in an act that is full of sensational and thrilling casting feats. With a perfect confidence, an ease, a grace that is good to see, they execute spectacular tricks that cause gasps and "ahs" and "ohs" to come from the entire audience. In an act of this sort there is to be found none to equal these Original Four Londons, who are making their first appearance in the West on this tour of the Orpheum circuit.

While Lou Anger does not lack in patriotism the government would have just cause to force him from the vaudeville stage if there was any great need for soldiers. As "The German Soldier," Anger delivers a monologue of the fighters who go to war, that is as full of laughs as an ammunition wagon is of bullets. Anger, who certainly bolles his name, has hit upon a happy new departure in the way of monologue. He does not have to deviate a bit from the lives of the soldiers to get material that is excruciatingly funny. His make-up is grotesque and gives promise of fun on his without offending to the least degree. Daring things in midair are the contribution of the Flying Russells. Their act is rather of the circus than of vaudeville, for everything they do is on the flying trapeze and they do not overlook any of the hair-raising stunts one expects to see when he does frequent the sawdust arena. It is conceded to be one of the best of the many fine athletic acts that have recently deserted the big tent for the variety.

Two handsome girls with plenty of gorgeous wardrobe and with singing voices that are delightful and added to this an extraordinary ability for the dance in a measure describe the Hopkins Sisters. So far they have registered a very pronounced hit, so in their appearance we have the anticipation of a hit of the very pronounced kind.

The Ragtime Trio will regale the Bell clientele with the maddest ragtime things in musical circles and that means that they are going to create a whole lot of fun. Synopated music has come to stay and these three boys will show just to what degree of fun making they are capable of going. Excellent new scenes on the Bellscope will be shown, the latest and cleverest of the best films to be had.

IDORA PARK

When conductor Mario Hadigar lifts his baton and signals for the overture to "Cavalleria Rusticana" in the Idora Park Theater this afternoon, the operatic season of 1911-12 on the Pacific Coast will be officially opened. The engagement of the famous Lombardi company gives Idora the honor of instituting the present musical season. Oaklanders especially should take particular interest in the operatic festival at Idora, for it places Oakland, musically speaking, on a higher plane in the music world than ever before.

"Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci," that always acceptable duo bill, will be sung at the opening performance this afternoon. Elvira Bosetti will sing Santuzza. Adalcide Glana will be the Lella. Luisa Baroldi, Mama Lucia, Manuele Salazar, Turiddu and Pietro Guglielmi. All in "Pagliacci" Adalcide will sing Nedda. Luisa Cecchetti, Harlequin; Manuele Salazar, Canio; Angelo Antolia, Tino; and Pietro Guglielmi, Silvio. This evening "Rigoletto" will be sung. Agostino Guarneri will sing the role of the Duke; Michele Giovacchini will be Rigoletto; Lidia Levy, Gilda; Alceste Mori, Sarafucile; Luisa Cecchetti, Magda; Adalcide Glana, Countess di Caprano.

Although grand opera will be the big attraction there will be plenty of other amusements for those who prefer to take their pleasure out of doors. Francesco Ferullo and his wonderful Italian band continue to render delightful afternoon and evening concerts in the mammoth amphitheater. Besides the musical program there will be a wealth of new fun devices and pleasure satisfiers on the grounds at Idora.

For this afternoon the musical program in the amphitheater will be as follows: March, "Expo"; Ferullo; "Hungarian Romance"; Bendis; overture, "Stradella"; Flotow; waltz, "Queen of the West"; Ferullo; selection, gavotte, "Fair Maid of Seville"; Czibulka; quartette from "Rigoletto"; and vocal solos and duets selected by Mons. and Mme. Begue. Among the selections to be played during the evening will be march, "Aida"; intermezzo, "Lovers of Italy"; overture, "Saraacen Slave"; Mercante; duet from "La Forza del Destino"; grand selection from "Il Guarany"; musical scenes from Spain; mazurka, "Quel non so che"; grand American fantasia by Victor Herbert.

YE LIBERTY

Commencing Monday, August 21, Isabelle Fletcher and the Bishop players will appear in "Beverly of Graustark," a most interesting play of love and romance from the pen of Robert M. Baker, adapted from George Barr McCutcheon's popular novel of the same title.

Manager Bishop secured the exclusive Oakland rights to "Beverly of Graustark," so this production will mark its initial performance in California, as well as the first time anywhere by a stock company. Local players will remember with pleasure the tremendous hit "Miss Fletcher" made at Ye Liberty at the heroine of the same author's earlier play, "Graustark," and from all that can be be a source of worry to the classifiers. He belonged to the list of actors of serious comedy, who can make audiences mingle tears with their laughter. This satisfactory solution of the Miller puzzle received a rude jolt a year later when Henry Miller in "The Only Way" became the reigning dramatic sensation. The experts called in their former catalogues for revision and struck the word comedy from the Miller chapter. His forte, they concluded was tragedy pure and simple. His success in comedy had come in spite of his splendid serious acting rendition now on playgoers could expect nothing but doom to be associated with the name of Henry Miller.

And so, when "D'Arcy of the Guards" was announced the thoroughly complacent experts attended the opening performance clad in black and with pocket handkerchiefs to catch their tears. To their utter horror they found not one serious moment in the new Miller success, and, to add insult to injury, the erstwhile Sidney Carton they had seen standing on the gallows against a blood-red sky, became the leading spirit of a riotous supper party, and led the other red-coated military gentlemen in a spirited, not to say hilarious, rendition of "Sally in Our Alley."

Miller produced "The Servant in the House," a wonderfully beautiful symbolic drama, and it proved as great a success as "D'Arcy of the Guards." He discovered Miss Nadimova, and starred her in a repertoire of Ibsen plays that brought financial as well as artistic success.

In "The Havoc" Miller has found another big, serious play. It gives the actor-manager what he considers his greatest role and the New York critics agree with his opinion. The play itself proved one of the biggest hits in New York last season, where it ran out the year at the Elbow theater.

ALCAZAR

Victorien Sardou wrote "The Sorcerer," in which Miss O'Neill's limited starring engagement at the Alcazar will be inaugurated next Monday evening. After scoring a brilliant success in Paris, with Sara Bernhardt as the title role, the play was Englished by Louis S. Parker and Miss O'Neill added it to her repertoire. By many critics it has been pronounced the eminent French dramatist's most powerful work, and that means much when taken into consideration with his authorship of "La Tosca" and "Fedora."

MACDONOUGH

Henry Miller, who will be seen at the Macdonough on Friday and Saturday, August 25 and 26, in H. S. Sheldon's remarkable play, "The Havoc," has created more widely varying character types than any other famous actor in America. Miller has run the dramatic gamut from farce to tragedy and from grim realism to picturesque romantic comedy. His new role in "The Havoc" is as far removed from the tragic picture of Sidney Carton in "The Only Way" as was his rollicking guardman in "D'Arcy of the Guards," an antithesis to his rugged, virile Stephen Ghent in "The Great Divide."

Miller's first starring venture was made in "Heartsease," a costumed forerunner of "The Music Master," and by the same author. This time the critics announced that Henry Miller had at last ceased to

Society Season Opens Early in Oakland; 'Twill Be Brilliant One,' Says Suzette

By SUZETTE.

THE season began earlier than usual, with the formal opening of the Claremont Country Club, last night. The cause of the festivities was the coming of the competing team, and the late summer sports everywhere stir social interest. The Claremont Club since its very beginning has established a record for hospitality not equaled anywhere in the state, and visitors are always enthusiastic over the cordial welcome accorded them. In the earlier days of golf clubs there used to be much complaint over a certain lack of hospitality. Members were expected to play their game and to take themselves off with due expedition. No one said, "We would be happy to have you stay to luncheon." And the welcome sound of "You will be our guest for dinner, of course," was never heard in the land. And sore in heart and temper our good players returned to their own beloved country club. But "we have changed all that," as the French say. Our own Country Club members come from hospitable homes; hospitality was one of the first lessons taught them, so the Country Club is an expression of their ideas of the treatment that should be accorded the stranger within their gates.

Among the dominant spirits of the Claremont Club have been Sam Bell McKee, William Pierce Johnson, Henry Knowles, Captain Goodall, C. Havens, F. M. Smith, Wickham Havens, Charles E. Parcells, J. P. Neville, George De Golia, George McNear, Robert Fitzgerald, Arthur Crellin, Frank L. Brown, A. S. Macdonald, J. R. Burnham and Edson Adams.

The club was organized by the late Mrs. F. M. Smith, and its initial meetings were held at Arbor Villa, and from a small beginning it has developed into one of the leading social clubs in the state, with the finest golf links on the coast.

Last night the club was very gay, indeed. There were innumerable dinners, and in the dance that followed many well-known families were represented.

One reason that large dancing clubs are only fairly successful, we hear, is that the Saturday night dances at the club house take their place. Even the Dernier Cri dances—the "D. C.'s" as they are called—differ very little from the ordinary Saturday night dances; people are "dressed up" a bit more, that is all. Several dinners and luncheons are also scheduled to take place in the near future at the Country Club. The largest luncheon will be given by pretty Miss Elsie Ames, who will entertain for her friend, Mrs. James Kenha (Charlotte Hall).

The Ames and Hall families have been neighbors for many years, and Miss Ames and the Misses Hall are very dear friends. A large number of guests have been invited to the luncheon, which bids fair to be a bright social event.

SEASON TO OPEN AT DEL MONTE. The season is open, too, at Del Monte, and as that is quite the proper distance for a motor trip, Oakland usually sends a large representation to the many tournaments. With ideal golf links almost in the heart of our city we ought to develop expert golf players. In a few days more the tournament at Del Monte will be on, and there is always keen competition for the Del Monte championship.

William H. Crocker will go down to Del Monte to take part in the tournament, and the Alexanders from New York will probably be there also. They are charming girls, very devoted to athletic sports. They are spending much time with their bright cousin, Miss Jennie Crocker, in her new home at Hillsborough.

Mrs. Charles Clark, who was Celia Lohm, always spends the summer at Del Monte, and she has been practicing diligently on the golf links there. She goes round the links once every day and sometimes twice, and she was the runner-up last year in the Del Monte cup for women.

Mrs. Henry T. Scott will entertain a large party at Del Monte, and Mrs. Augustus Taylor will play for the prize for women. She plays an exceedingly good game on the Menlo golf links, and she won there the beautiful cup given by Richard D. Glavin. Edward Greenway will go down for the tournament this year, and will entertain friends at Del Monte.

Others who expect to be at Del Monte in the late August days are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Coryell of Menlo, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Cook, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Wingate, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Searies, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Neville, Mr. and Mrs. John Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kohl, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Brandin and Miss Winifred Brandin.

Among Oakland's best players will be Jack Neville, W. F. Garby and Dennis Searies.

SEASON PROMISES TO BE BRILLIANT. A season of unusual interest is promised to us in many ways, since so many distinguished people are to find their way to San Francisco this coming winter. Among others, Miss Agnes Tobin is coming home after a long stay in London. Miss Tobin won literary distinction all over the world by means of her fine translation of Petrarch. Her delightful book was entitled "Love's Crucifixion," in which were nine sonnets, perfect in form, and a canzone.

The preface was by Mrs. Alice Meynell of London. The book called out many tributes of appreciation from people well known in the world of letters, and among those who expressed their admiration of Miss Tobin's work were Katherine Tynan, the well-known Celtic novelist and poet; Richard Whiting, who wrote "The Yellow Van"; Lucas Malet, the English novelist; Carmen Sylva, queen of Roumania, Sara Grand and John Sargent. Austin Dobson wrote of it: "A beautiful book. You seem to have kept the atmosphere of the original with wonderful skill. 'Fair passions and bountiful pities, And loves without stain.'"

Miss Tobin has been for many months in London and she has met many distinguished people there. Her most intimate friend is Mrs. Alice Meynell, an English woman of social prestige. She is a clever writer and has contributed much of value to England's literary output.

Mrs. Meynell came to America a few years ago and was Miss Tobin's guest in San Francisco. Receptions were given for her by the Century Club of San Francisco and the Ebell Club of Oakland.

Mrs. Meynell has the entire to England's most exclusive circles, and she has introduced Miss Tobin everywhere, so that the latter has found London a very charming place in which to live. Her sister, Mrs. Chas. Clark, who was formerly Miss Celia Tobin, will entertain for her at her San Mateo home, and much will be done to make Miss Tobin's homecoming bright and happy.

W. B. Yeats, the well-known Irish poet, will also be here this winter. He is a great friend of Miss Tobin's, and he made many friends when he was here a few winters ago. "President Wheeler invited him to speak before the students of the university, and the smart set of San Francisco came over en masse to hear him. He was extensively entertained by the clubmen of San Francisco, and he had a Celtic charm of manner that won him many friends.

Lady Gregory is also coming to California, and she is known as one of the wittiest women in Ireland. And that is saying much, for she comes from a land where women are clever and they have charm—what the writers call "a way with them." She is much interested in the dramas which William Yeats and his friends have been presenting in Ireland, and it is proposed to reproduce some of them out here.

It is safe to say that there will be much doing in a social way for Lady Gregory and Mr. Yeats. The Tobins have many friends across the bay who will add them in entertaining their visitors, among them Mrs. Eleanor Martin, the Phelans, the Driscolls, and the families in the Hillsborough and Burlingame sections.

INTEREST HIGH IN SOCIETY VAUDEVILLE. San Francisco is to help us out nobly in our great pageant, scheduled for September 23, and we in return for so much neighborly kindness are taking a great interest in the vaudeville which is to be given on the afternoon and evening of September 16.

It is to be given at Miss Jennie Crocker's home, and rehearsals are going busily forward and everything points to the most successful vaudeville of recent years. For one thing these merry amateurs are no longer making first appearances. They have been before the footlights so many times now that stage fright is a thing of the past. They have wisely decided to give two performances—one in the afternoon for guests from the city who cannot arrange to stay all night. All the great houses in the neighborhood will be filled to overflowing with jolly house parties, and September 16 will be a notable date in the social calendar of the smart set.

Willard Barton and Mrs. Frederick McNear are the two busiest people to be found anywhere, for upon them devolves the work of training "the chorus ladies."

These same chorus ladies can be trusted to make a great "hit," for among them are Mrs. McNear, Jennie Crocker, Marian Zelle, Eliza McMullin, Merritt Reid, Edith Metcalf, Dorothy Graves, Inez Keeney, Harriet Alexander, Mary Matthews and Vera Havemeyer.

In the chorus also will be some well-known men from our side of the bay, among them Seyd Havens, Jack Neville, John McMullin and Walter Hush. Willard Barton's comic opera, "Shopping," will have its premier, and one hears that it is full of delightful possibilities. It may mean much to Mr. Barton in the future.

There are to be some delightful "salesladies" who preside at the counters and incidentally do a dance or two—and some of our well-known belles go shopping. Rehearsals take place at the St. Francis, and one hears from those on "the inside of things" that the vaudeville is to be immensely amusing and full of exceedingly clever stunts.

THEATRICALS PLANNED FOR OAKLAND, TOO. After the pageant on our side of the bay will probably come our own vaudeville, for no winter is complete without an evening for charity. We have so many who have talent on our side of the bay. One would gladly hear again that fascinating chorus that we heard at the Havens ball, "The Lama Man," with Mrs. Willard Williamson, Mrs. Wickham Havens and Miss Clarisse Lohse. These young matrons have done well in vaudeville: Mrs. Williamson White, Mrs. Seymour Hall and Mrs. Lester Greene. Vera Havemeyer does a Dutch dance beautifully and May Coogan sings ballads admirably.

Shining out from a background of "Kermis" memories are Helen Tupper, Helen Crane, Phyllis Creed and Madeline Clay.

The finest living pictures we ever had were those taken from "Mr. Pipp," when honors were carried off by the stunning tableaux in which were Miss Chrissie Taft and Mrs. Fitzgerald (Laura Crellin). We have unusually fine musicians on our side of the bay, and some of our men sing exceedingly well, as for instance Dr. Percy Gaskill and Joseph Rosborough.

The possibilities of a vaudeville are great, and it is quite likely that some charity will be the richer for all this talent before the season is over.

THE NEWS IS OF UNUSUAL INTEREST. The news is of unusual interest to San Franciscans, as Miss Douglas-Dick is a granddaughter of Mrs. Abbie Parrott and a cousin of Miss Katharine Donohoe and Christian de Guigne. Her mother was Miss Isabelle Parrott before her marriage to Colonel Archibald Douglas-Dick, C. B. The wedding will take place at the bride's home in Scotland some time in October. Her cousins, Miss Abbie Parrott and Miss Emilie Parrott, will be among her coterie of bridesmaids. They are abroad with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parrott, and are occupying the pretty "Villa Sobey," at Vevey.

FOSTERS IN HOLLAND TO STAY SOME TIME. Letters from Europe bring the news that Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Foster, accompanied by Miss Marie Louise Foster and Miss Minna Van Bergen, are in Holland, where they will remain for some time. Miss Van Bergen and Miss Foster are making a collection of snapshots of the places visited by them during their sojourn abroad. The party will return to California late in November.

SOCIETY PEOPLE ON AUTO TOUR IN SOUTH. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Montague are chaperoning a party of young people who are making a motor tour of the south. Among their guests are Mary and Elizabeth Cunningham, Paige and Kenneth Montague, F. W. Dummer and Talcott Williamson. Paige Montague will return to Harvard in the late September.

MOTOR TRIPS PROVE POPULAR ON VACATION. With the early autumn days, one finds motorists everywhere, for the touring car seems now to be essential to the happiness of any man who can afford it.

Mrs. P. A. Hearst is entertaining a party of twelve in a motor trip to the south. They were recently at Casa del Rey, Santa Cruz, and in the party were Mrs. P. A. Hearst, Mrs. Grier and Miss Grier of Dakota, Orrin Peck, Miss Whitmore, Mrs. Phoebe Rockwell, Dr. and Mrs. Reisner of Cairo, Mirza Ali Kuli Khan, the Persian Minister from Washington, D. C.

Dr. Reisner had for many years charge of the Hearst excavations in Egypt. It was he who discovered the famous Hearst papyrus, now being deciphered by leading experts.

AUTOMOBILES BUSY DURING VACATION. Week-end motor parties absorb the interest of many leading families on our side of the bay, and in all the known routes of travel one may meet many well-known Oaklanders. In fact, Oakland is known through the State as the banner city for automobiles. Among the enthusiastic automobilists over here whom one often meets on week-end holidays are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Luning, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Layman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. John Valentine, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Moore, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John F. Connors, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stolp, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. ## Health and Beauty Advice

By MRS. MAE MARTIN

Gertrude: To beautify the complexion and preserve its youthfulness, try this remedy. It is a simple and effective one for the removal of blackheads and pores, impurities, as well as clearing the skin of tan, freckles, blotches and fine lines. To prepare, get an ounce of quinine from your druggist and dissolve in a half-pint of cold water, then add two teaspoonsful of glycerine. Let stand several hours. Using this cream-jelly quickly clears the skin and gives to it a velvety smoothness, as it soothes itching and removes the least possible danger of growing hair.

H. U.: An unhealthy scalp causes profuse dandruff and dull, stringy, straggly hair. I would advise a quinine tonic, which is inexpensive and easy to prepare. Get an ounce of quinine from your druggist and dissolve in a half-pint of alcohol, then add a half-pint of water. Massage the scalp frequently with this tonic, itches, removes dandruff or excess oil, and puts the scalp in a healthy condition. Its continued use makes the hair soft and glossy, restores the original color, and promotes a fine growth.

Mrs. A.: I don't think the condition of your eyes call for glasses. The ache and smart of which you speak can be quickly stopped if you use an eye tonic made of dissolving the scalp freem in a pint of water and putting two or three drops in each eye daily. This tonic is very beneficial, as it soothes itching eye muscles and removes inflammation. Using it makes weak eyes strong and gives to them an unusual brilliancy and pleasing expression.

A. D.: Do not employ the electric needle for the removal of those stray hairs as it is a painful and costly operation. Get an ounce of delatone from the druggist and with water mix a little into a paste. Spread on hairy surface and after two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin and you will find the hairs are gone. Delatone costs a dollar an ounce and is worth it, too.

M. T.: Your hair can be kept glossy and fluffy by shampooing occasionally with castile soap. Get an original package of castile from your druggist and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. Massage the scalp as briskly as you can. On a little at a time creates a rich cleansing lather and when the scalp and hair are rinsed you will find both immaculately clean. With castile soap, shampoo the hair dries quickly without streaking, and hair that is dull, brittle or unmanageable will become bright, soft and easy to arrange.

Alma: Your skin will lose that shiny, unattractive look and take on a velvety smoothness and pink and white tint if you discard powder and rouge and use the following lotion: Dissolve four ounces of alumina in one-half pint of water and when cool add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine. Apply this to the skin, rubbing gently until dry. This is a superior to powder because it is invisible when on, does not rub or blow off, and aside from beautifying the skin and removing tan and freckles, it gives a richness to the complexion not possible with powder. It is especially nice to use in hot weather because perspiration will not spot it.

Mildred: Impure blood causes a sallow, lifeless condition of the skin, robs you of energy and gradually undermines your health. Before it is too late get an ounce of karens at the drug store and dissolve in a half-pint of water. To this add one-half cupful sugar and hot water to make a quart, then take one tablespoonful before meals. This tonic soon rids the blood of impurities, then health and strength quickly return. Nothing equals a karens tonic as an energizer and system-builder.

Miss M.: It is not necessary to visit a sanitarium in order to reduce your weight. Dissolve four ounces parist in a pint and a half hot water. Strain when cold and take a tablespoonful before meals. This is quite harmless, and while dissolving fatty tissues, does not leave the skin wrinkled or flabby, nor does it call for dieting.

A skin of beauty is a joy forever.

HUMAN BEASTS OF BURDEN

civilization is in any way indicated by the entire relegation of the world's carrying, lifting, hauling and peddling of heavy loads to the backs of our domestic beasts of burden, to this strictly up-to-date auto truck then humanity has not yet arrived, at least fully, at that blessed state. Indeed there are perhaps just as many human beasts of burden today as ever, although they are probably not as prominent, as they intermingled with and become lost in the general crowds in the large cities.

In Japan and India, the Coolie is just as numerous as ever and still carries him after hour willingly for a few cents the most enormous loads. The stranger from the Occident first visiting these lands is amazed and awestruck at the startling capacity that these human beasts of burden demonstrate for bearing for many weary miles at a stretch, day in and day out, all manner of goods and chatties as well as fellow beings.

Since the days of the abolition of slavery, these Coolies have spread all over the globe and yet their number has not diminished at home. This Coolie or human beast of burden trade began about 1824. It was accompanied by abuses which made it little better than a form of slavery. The abuses continued, however, for many years without any form of regulation.

ation—particularly in some South American countries and tropical lands where white labor such as the Coolies perform is impossible.

NEED COOLIE LABOR.

Without Coolie labor on the plantations, in the cities and for shipping the development of these lands would have been impossible, and this is the best, in fact, the only, good thing that can be said in apology for the fearful burdens these laborers were obliged to bear, and are yet for that matter.

But even today the Coolies of the Orient are not called upon to work harder or carry heavier loads than some of the unskilled laborers of Occidental lands.

In truth our own country is almost the only one where this is not literally true. The dispatch to places of remote regions in this direction is probably due not so much to the fact that we are humane than other nations, although we might be inclined to take this credit, as because our civilization is newer, and we began to realize the hard in any land after some time.

It is those self-same manners and customs which have made it little better than a form of slavery.

this, like all other customs, as it has just been previously remarked, dies hard.

IMPROVE CONDITIONS.

Among the civilized Indians the conditions of their women kind has been greatly improved recently, and the men have finally learned to assume at least a portion of the pack work of their existence and in this respect they furnish a fine example to the nations who have just a right to claim a much higher civilization in all other particulars, Italy, Spain and Portugal for instance.

In Italy it is a common sight, not only in the cities, but also in the rural districts, to see both men and women, particularly the latter, carrying huge burdens on head or shoulders, and generally doing the hauling and peddling which in our land falls to the lot of dumb beasts.

Spain also is a land in which much of the dray work is done by the unskilled laboring class.

In Mexico the conditions in this respect are similar to those in the other lands on the other side of the Atlantic.

Americans scouring in the republic to the south of us are often puzzled to understand how the frail appearing Mexican water sellers can carry with such apparent ease the huge and heavy stone jars containing many gallons of water that they do. All day long they travel from house to house disposing of their precious ware. Judging from outward appearance at least they are almost as untiring as the patient and strong little Mexican burros.

In Germany the human beast of burden is by no means extinct, as any one can testify, who has seen the milk and other vendors and peddlers, in the cities and country of the Fatherland.

Even in England many of the more humble populace bear more than the white man's burden, nor are the women exempt in this respect. As a case in point who has not, who has ever visited the country, failed to see the washerwoman walking along the streets and bearing with the greatest skill and dexterity her huge basket of freshly laundered linen?

Romantic Life of a Modern Robin Hood

"Among the picturesque, if inconvenient, institutions of Turkey, that modern medieval state, Tchakirdji, the brigand chief of Smyrna, is not the least romantic. A few miles away, in the mountains behind one of the chief cities of the empire, he lives with his band of freebooters, and leads in the twentieth century a life that corresponds in detail to that of the famous Robin Hood," says G. W. Price in The London Mail.

A few weeks ago, for instance, he appeared one evening in the market place of the village of Guruli, in the province of Smyrna, accompanied by eight men. He was dressed in a simple, but elegant, costume, and he was surrounded by a crowd of people. He was ordered that the inhabitants of the village should be assembled. When he appeared, he was surrounded by a crowd of people. He was ordered that the inhabitants of the village should be assembled. When he appeared, he was surrounded by a crowd of people.

The elders explained with deep obedience that the resources of the village were so low that nothing but the most "necessaries" provisions were available.

TEN LIVES IN LIEU OF FOOD.

"Tchakirdji consented to waive the supper. He would now, he said, proceed to the main object of his mission. He gave a sign to his men, and in a few moments the heads of ten of the leading inhabitants of Guruli were rolling on the ground. The market place amid the wailing of their fellowtownsmen.

"Am I fair sure," explained Tchakirdji, in the brief address with which he closed the proceedings, "that it was through the detestable actions of my men that my comrade Sinan Mehmet was surrounded and killed by the soldiers near here some months ago. I have now avenged him, and I hope this will serve as a lesson to any who may be tempted to betray me or my companions. I will kill informers without pity, and, if necessary, the innocent shall pay for the guilty."

"With this the brigand and his friends withdrew, and, except for a futile expedition of a company of soldiers into the mountains after him, who were left with nothing but marching to its credit, this has been the end of the affair."

"The other evening I met at dinner a Turkish government official who has met Tchakirdji. He was carrying out a government survey in the mountains, he said. As I sat in my tent one evening a young man came in, saluted me, sat down, took the cigarette I offered him and began to talk. I thought he was some local notable paying me a call. He was about 30, tall, with a frank and open expression and a steady, forward bearing, and he spoke like an educated man. He stared about ten minutes and when he had done my servant came to me and said: 'Do you know who that was, Effendi? It was Tchakirdji, who has killed in the last twelve years 700 men.'

A BANDIT BY HEREDITY.

"Tchakirdji is a bandit by heredity, for he succeeded his father, who was killed in an encounter with the troops. The peasants of the Smyrna vilayet both fear and love him. His vengeance upon those who, under the influence of the tortures or the bribes of government officials, aid the expeditions sent after him, is a thing of information, is ample and inevitable. On the other hand, he never robs the poor, he pays double for all provisions that he buys and his gifts are sometimes almost princely. Only last year report credited him with having sent to a beautiful but powerless girl whose poverty prevented her marriage, a dot of $500.

"Tchakirdji lives by blackmail varied with plunder. Last winter he took $100,000 in specie from a government mail in the Smyrna vilayet, but his more usual resource is to write, courteously enough, to local personages of means, requesting the dispatch to places of rendezvous in the mountains of sums varying from $500 to $2500.

"He uses the same method, too, to interest his patrons in works of public utility. A village bridge badly required repair. Tchakirdji pointed out by a letter to a wealthy landowner, with a remittance of money, he said, to carry out this work. It was his first big job and he had asked no questions.

"The young Greek was shut up in an unsanitary jail at Thera, as a measure of precaution, and the work on the bridge was stopped. Three days afterward there was an alarm of fire at a village three miles from Thera, and half the garrison was sent off there to put it out. Hardly had they gone when there came a call for help at another five miles away on the other side. The rest of the troops hurried off to the scene of the second alarm.

"Then into the empty town dashed Tchakirdji and his men. They slew the few sentries that were left, carried off the local governor and the commander of the garrison, to gather with the imprisoned Greek, and were on the way back to the mountains before the weary troops got back to Thera from their false son for them has really become obsolete. With us at the present time, if we except the foreigners in our midst, the greatest human beasts of burden are the women of our still uncivilized Indian tribes.

With all uncivilized people it has, apparently always been the custom for the women to act as the pack horses when there was any moving to do or heavy loads to carry, or real work to do, and alarms. The negotiations that led to the release of the captured officials arranged also for the completion of the bridge.

PLAYS JOKE ON SOLDIERS.

"Tchakirdji, like most successful men, is not without the gift of humor. Once he was tracking a party of soldiers who were chasing him in the depth of winter, sleeping with no guard posted, in a stable. Entering quietly himself Tchakirdji first took away their arms and then awakened them.

"Whom are you looking for?" he asked. The brigand Tchakirdji, they answered. "Well, you have found him," Tchakirdji replied, "but you must still be punished for your carelessness in not posting a guard." Then, calling in his men he first had a sound thrashing administered to his pursuers for the offense of sleeping while on duty, and then sent them back through the snow rifeless to their headquarters.

"Such are some of the stories of this most famous of the Anatolian brigands.

chief. And lately, to the ordinary dangers of his profession, the peril of robbery are beginning to be added, for it is said that not infrequently letters reach the Smyrna postal authorities addressed to him by European ladies, who, touching as tourists at that port, have heard the tale of Tchakirdji's prowess. From these communications it appears that it is only his inaccessibility to postal convenience that protects him from the trial of a hangman. The present offers that a brighten his mountain cave with the presence of an European bride."

ROTHSCHILD'S VALEDICTORY

One day in September, nearly a hundred years ago, an old Jew lay dying in a garbled house that bore the device of a red shield in the ghetto of Frankfurt-on-the-Main. Grouped around his bed were five stalwart sons. In a firm voice this father in Israel admonished his children to be loyal to the faith of Moses; to remain united to the end; to intermarry; and to obey their mother in all things.

"Observe these rules," he declared, "and you will be rich among the richest, and the world will belong to you."

Such was the earthly valedictory of Mayer Amschel Rothschild.

As everybody well knows, that deathbed prophecy came true long ago. The world's only billionaire dynasty is evidence of his wisdom and foresight.

Princes, cabinets, whole royal successions have arisen to bat their brief imperial day, and tottered to their fall; kingdoms of trade have developed and declined; but the reign of the Rothschilds has continued. Their scepter has been gold; their royal decree, the banknote. Munsey's Magazine.

BUILDING RAILROAD in LAND of MYSTERY

The building of a railroad by the British from Persia to Karachi across Mekran may not of itself be a project of importance. Europe has offered to build a line and engineers say the route presents few serious obstacles; but it brings the rest of the world into contact with some of the earliest scenes of Eastern history and opens a land of mystery of which there have been only glimpses about every thousand years.

Mekran is the coastal region of Baluchistan, and extends from India to the Persian Gulf. Sailors before and since the voyage of Alexander's admiral, Nearchus, have coasted along its white shores and found themselves surrounded by sparkling whales such as the first map makers delighted to picture. High-pooped native crafts like ancient galleys, carrying pirate slave traders and gun runners, dodge into its shallow harbors. British steamships sometimes stop at one of its ports for a cargo of dates or rice for the Indian trade. But sailors never penetrate into the range of yellow hills or across the sterile plain, "the hottest land of all Asia," where the sand rolls in waves and floats in stifling clouds. Oases are rare along the streams that flow from these ridges; the country is dry, weather-worn, desolate, shunned by man.

The few inhabitants are nomads and jetsam of the civilizations that have passed over it. They are the wreckage that drifted into this obscure world from the earliest movements into and from India to the first search of Europe for Eastern empires. The Portuguese, who conquered Mozambique and captured the sands of Ormuz and Kishm and founded colonies at Bandar Abbas and Gwadar left their tribute of adventurers, as did the Dutch, French and English that came after them. These found here older peoples of whose origin all trace was lost, colonies of half-bred Arabs left by the decline of the Arab dynasty at Sind, Mongols from the time of Genghis Khan, negroes descended from mediaeval slaves, and stragglers from every Central Asian tribe.

Yet Mekran cannot always have been such a dry, desolate land. Buried in the sands beneath some of the little towns of the ruling cities. At one place an explorer found the walls of six towns that must at some time have been places of some importance.

In the hills above Gwadar are the remains of a great reservoir. Tombs with fragments of pottery that no one seems able to identify are often uncovered. Many of the hills are covered with stone houses with dome-shaped interiors. There are remains of works of masonry that were great dams for catching the waters of the river at flood time. In arid deserts explorers have found forests of dead trees that have stood stark for centuries, and on some of the hills terraces that must some time have been in a high state of cultivation. Not one apparently is able to tell who built these cities and reservoirs, cultivated the terraced hills, or were buried in the tombs. The very reason why this land today is only a region of great heat, thirst and death is one of the secrets of nature.

History gives but brief glimpses of this mysterious land. Cyrus is said to have crossed Mekran in invading India. It was the scene of Alexander's memorable retreat. Part of his troops followed the coast and suffered greatly from heat and privation; another part took a more northerly route and fared better, and a third detachment sailed along the coast in ships that Nearchus had built on the Taurus. The route of this march has been traced, and from the Grecian story one can identify every cape and harbor as it was written today. We know nothing more of Mekran until the Arabs conquered the lower Indus, more than a thousand years after Alexander's time. Then it was that caravans passed over the country bearing the goods of India to Bagdad and the West, and that there were oases and cities all the way. But the Arabs' power declined and again Mekran was in darkness. The empire searching fleets of Europe stopped on its shores but never entered the uninviting land. Then adventurous Englishmen carried the telegraph line that came up from the sea at Jask, over the desert to Karachi, and recently Admiral Slade's men have penetrated it in their hunt for gun runners.

From these brief glimpses it is evident that the desolation and emptiness of Mekran are only a present condition and that the proposed British road is but the line of the ancient caravan route from the East to the West, the way of the commerce of Asia before it took to the sea. Its mysteries may remain unsolved, but in view of the present strife for land in the Middle East the obscurity of Mekran is ended.—New York Sun.

WOMEN AND THEIR JEWELS

"Not one-fifth of the jewels owned by Chicago people are kept in safety deposit vaults, as might be expected," declared an officer of one of the best-known Chicago safety deposit vaults. In fact, even the persons who do rent boxes at the vaults seldom keep many of their valuable jewels there.

"I know one woman who keeps her husband's life-insurance policy in the vault and pays an annual rental for the box, while she keeps jewels valued at thousands of dollars in her own home. It is a mystery to me why more persons are not robbed of their valuables.

"There is a woman of my acquaintance who keeps jewelry valued at close to $15,000 in an old trunk in her room. There is not even a lock on the trunk for she was obliged to force this off one time when she had mislaid the key. It has not even the quality of escaping notice by its worn appearance or obviousness.

"Were it left alone it might possibly escape search by an enterprising burglar because of its prominence, but the woman has withdrawn even this hope by building the thing up with straps and ropes tied in the most complicated knots. She does not stop to think that an enterprising second-story man could cut through those ropes in half a minute if he had a sharp knife.

"Another woman conceals her jewels in the mattress of her bed. Old as this place is, the woman further invites robbery by neglecting to sew up the hole in the cover, or, if she does so, merely bastes it up with thread that a burglar would notice twenty feet away. Another favorite place is in some 'secret drawer'.

"Usually in bureaus or pieces of the sort there are a number of long drawers with a couple of smaller ones at the top. Between these two small drawers some enterprising furniture-maker has hit upon the plan of placing a concealed drawer. This was all right twenty years ago, but don't you suppose burglars keep track of these things? Another woman of my acquaintance has a foot-post of her bed hollowed out and places her jewelry there. This is not so easy to find as it might seem, for the head of the post is solid, and even if a burglar happened to think of removing that he finds nothing, for the woman has taken precautions to have a false top put on the post, and to get to the hollow part it is necessary to unscrow the part underneath the removable head."—Chicago Daily News.

WINGED PHOTOGRAPHERS

Now let us consider, says a writer in the July Strand, how the winged photographer is educated in the use of his instruments; for he requires a special training and has to pass through his apprenticeship. In the first place he has to become accustomed to wear a sort of harness, which supports the apparatus, consisting of two straps of India rubber and soft leather, which cross over his back and are attached to a thin aluminum plate below his body. Thus harnessed, the pigeon is taken to a distance from its home, and there released. At first he displays considerable resentment at his new form of servitude, and struggles with wings, beak and claws to rid himself of his incumbrance. But in a little while, finding all his efforts vain, he resigns himself to his fate.

Next he has to learn to carry the camera itself, attached to the plate by means of a slot or ridge. Then comes a new struggle and a new resignation. In the course of a fortnight the bird flies as contentedly with the little black box on his breast as an old soldier with his knapsack on his back.

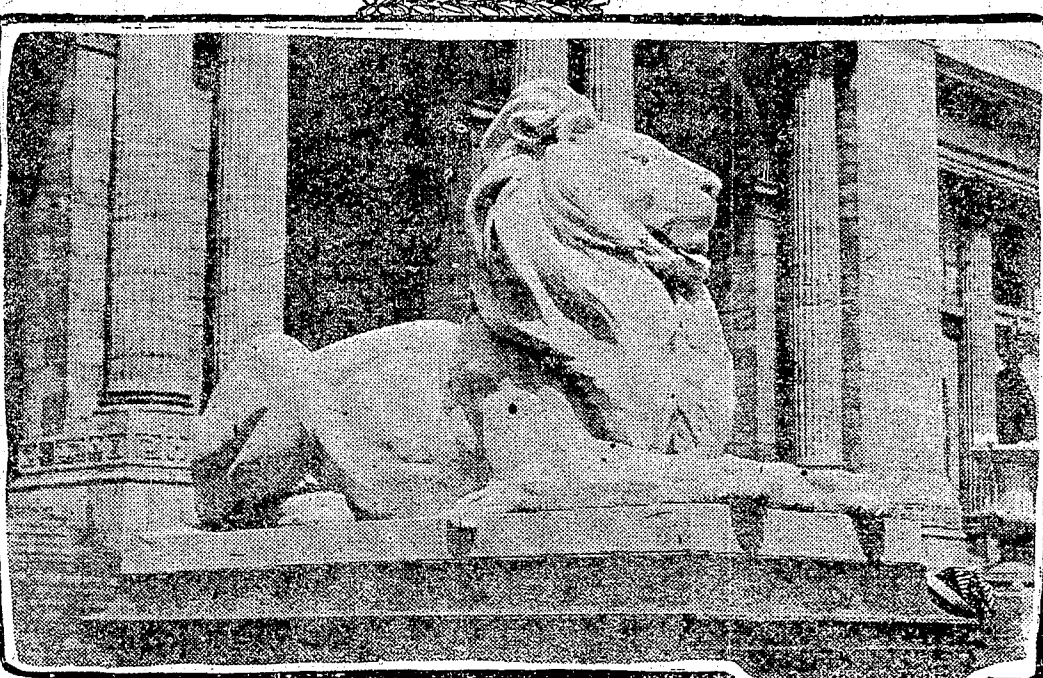

Then comes the day of his first actual taking of a photograph. Let us suppose that it is desired to secure a view of a village situated at a distance of eight miles from his cot. His owner takes him three or four miles beyond the village, in a straight line with the bird's home. Next, in order that the shutter may be sprung at the moment of passing over the village, he reckons how many minutes from the start the flight to this point will occupy. Suppose that the time of flight to the spot of which it is desired to secure a view works out at four minutes, ten seconds, then all that remains to be done is to regulate the apparatus accordingly. In the case of a camera capable of taking only one photograph in a single flight the mechanism is very simple and ingenious. It consists of a small India rubber ball, with a very fine aperture, attached to a lever which releases the shutter. The ball is blown up with a syringe, and when full takes ten minutes to empty, a graduated scale showing to what extent it must be filled to empty itself in any shorter time. The ball being filled to the required degree, the apparatus is shut and the pigeon released. The air escapes slowly until the ball collapses, lets fall the lever, which "springs" the shutter. The photograph is taken.

She Picks Pockets While in Slumber

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Bertha Frank was described by her husband, Jacob Frank, as a somnambulistic kleptomaniac in the municipal court.

He testified that his wife, while walking in her sleep, not only searched his trousers pockets and extracted small change, but frequently made nocturnal visits to neighbors' homes and rifled the pockets of sleeping occupants. She was arrested while pilfering the pockets of John Kolder. Other neighbors told today of losing small change while they slept. The woman said she had no recollection of the matter, but admitted that she often walked in her sleep. She will be examined by a physician.

One of the lions done by Edward C. Potter which decorate the approach to the big new Library in New York City and over which unlimited amusement has arisen because, though they have been designated by the sculptor as lions, the general public seems to think they must be meant for almost anything else.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The lions done by Edward C. Potter, the sculptor, which decorate the approach to the big new library in this city, are causing no end of amusement here. Nobody knows why the lions were ordered for this special decoration because lions and literature are identified with one another only in the case of literary lions. But no literary lion ever attracted the attention that Potter's lions have had since they were put in place.

As soon as New York saw them a wild howl of amusement went up. Guessing contests are being started all over the city because, although they have been designated by the sculptor as lions, the public seem to think they must be meant for almost anything else.

Potter is satisfied and the library people seem to be satisfied and the Municipal Art Commission is content, whatever the general public many think.

was captured twice with me by Union soldiers. They refused the freedom money which I captured gave them, and they said I was no freer than I always have been," he said on both of these occasions. "Once I discharged him for being drunk and another time for discharging a slave." It was at Chattanooga, he told us, that he hung around headquarters for several days and was very unhappy. Finally he came to me with a Bible in his hand and said, "I want to swear on this thing that you will take care of my boys as if I were a drop during the war." He took the oath and kept it faithfully to the end at Appomattox.

When I was captured at Rich Mountain, Tenn., and was sent to the Federal hospital, an immense tent had not fully recovered when we evacuated our position, and wandering about the mountains in the rain for two or three weeks without food brought on a relapse. And during the exposure we had forced to live nine times in the vain effort to avoid large bodies of the enemy's troops. The soles of my shoes were worn and when my socks were taken off, the skin came off with them. I was a pitiable

The Misses Emma and May Gulchard are enjoying their sojourn at Lake Leonardi in Mendocino county, as the guests of Mrs. E. Boyce.

TO RETURN TO YOKOHAMA.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kaiser, to the regret of their friends in the bay cities, will return to Yokohama, Japan, where they have made their home for the past three years, after an interesting tour of the United States and Europe. Kaiser was formerly well known in Oakland, and the visit here with his wife, who was a former Boston girl, was made delightful by the reunion of many old friends. At present the Kaisers are in the north, where they are being entertained by Mrs. Everett Ames. Mrs. Ames will be remembered as Miss Lou Everett, who was well known in the local smart set. Mr. and Mrs. Kaiser will tour Russia before going to the Orient.

LEAVES FOR EUROPE.

A. H. Bergstrom left a few days ago for Europe, where he will travel through London, Paris, Berlin, Stockholm, Christiania and Copenhagen. He will return to Oakland about November 1.

WEDDINGS SCHEDULED.

Miss Ruth Lowell has named the evening of Saturday, September 16, for her marriage with Oscar Steel, the wedding to take place at the residence of the bride's parents, Dr. Lowell and Mrs. Lowell, near Hayward.

Miss Adella Dargie has chosen her fiancé's sister, Miss Belle Randall, as her maid of honor, at the elaborately planned wedding which will make her the bride of Archibald Randall. The marriage will be solemnized on the evening of Tuesday, August 29, in the Unitarian church of Berkeley. The bridesmaids will be Miss Ruth Stocker of San Francisco and Miss Ruth Hudson of Stockton.

WILL WED IN SALINAS.

The wedding of Miss Elma E. Edwards and Carl Whitmore will be solemnized at Salinas on Thursday, August 24. Only immediate members of both families and a few intimate personal friends of the contracting parties will be present. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. T. C. Edwards of Salinas. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Welles Whitmore of Oakland.

Some unusually beautiful prizes will be given, including a hammered brass desk set, cut glass, a set of dishes of forty-eight pieces, an umbrella, pictures, vases and many other valuables.

The score girls will be under the care of Miss Loretta Knapp and Miss Nellie Peters, and will be Misses Elizabeth Hogan, Myrtle Bockert, Hazel Phelps, Ethel Healy, Sara Halford, Eunice Halford, Ethel Keller, Gertrude Knight, Angie Hanley, Ethel Hogarty, Rose Kirk, Grace Conger, Ethel Schmitt, Alice Harrigan and Hazel Geary.

Others who will assist the hostess are: Mrs. Leon Malson, Mrs. William R. Geary, Mrs. George Clark, Mrs. M. J. Keller, Mrs. Pasquale Kisch, Mrs. Thomas P. Hogan, Mrs. Harry S. Knapp, Mrs. Frank Garcia, Miss Josephine Nesbitt, Miss Leza White and Miss Emma Moffitt.

IN GERMANY AND FRANCE.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dutton are at present in Germany, on a picturesque little mountain hamlet, from which many trips are taken into the higher mountains. It is at the junction of France, Germany and Switzerland. The Duttons visited Zermatt, a resort in Germany, last week, and spent ten days there. They wrote that both places are unusually attractive.

MRS. FUNSTON TO DEPART.

Mrs. Funston, wife of General Funston, will leave San Leandro shortly to join her husband in the Philippines. The Funston home in San Lorenzo avenue will be occupied by A. S. Weaver and his family.

MOTOR TO SANTA CRUZ.

Mrs. Phoebe Hearst took a party of friends to Santa Cruz, where they had luncheon at the Casa del Rey, after which they motored to the Big Basin to see the big trees.

LEAVES FOR ENGLAND.

Mrs. W. Buchanan Taylor has left for her home in England, after a several weeks' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Daniels of Alameda. She will sail August 23 on the Mauretania for England.

SMART LUNCHEON AND BRIDGE.

Miss Elsie Ames has sent out cards for Friday afternoon, August 25, for an elaborate luncheon to be given at the Claremont Country Club. Following the lunch an hour of bridge will be the diversion for the later hours. The complimented guest for the occasion is Mrs. James Kenna, formerly Miss Charlotte Hall.

FOUR O'CLOCK TEA.

Mrs. George Porter Baldwin, formerly Miss Florence Edoff, is asking a group of friends for a 4 o'clock tea on Friday afternoon of next week.

Mrs. Baldwin, whose home is in the East, makes a visit each season to the home of her father, James P. Edoff, in Piedmont.

Baby Daughter of Steel King Provides Playgrounds for Waifs of New York Streets

A corner in the Carnegie Playground on Fifth avenue, New York. It is located on a vacant lot separating the house on Andrew Carnegie from that of I. Townsend Burden and was opened for the poor children of the neighborhood at the suggestion of little Margaret Carnegie.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—There is a playground on Fifth avenue, in this city, called the Carnegie playground, of which little Margaret Carnegie is called the mother. The poor children of that vicinity enjoy many a happy day in that open air safety harbor, and all because Miss Margaret Carnegie conceived the idea of turning the vacant lot, which adjoins her father's handsome house on Fifth avenue, and that of the equally fine home of I. Townsend Burden, into a playground.

The lot belongs to Andrew Carnegie and Mr. Burden in common, and has been left vacant purposely to give the occupants of either house plenty of light and fresh air. Little Margaret Carnegie was a very delicate child some years ago, and her parents feared for a time that she would not live through her childhood. But plenty of exercise in the open air built up little Miss Carnegie to health and strength, and it was this perhaps which suggested to her the value which this vacant lot would have for other children.

At 9 o'clock in the morning it is opened under the direction of a monitor from the Park and Playground Association and all day long the poor children of the neighborhood swing on the rings, shoot the darts, play basketball and all kinds of healthful games.

Will Provide Mosswood Park With Double Standard Enclosure Costing $3000.

Plans and specifications for a double standard tennis court for Mosswood Park have been accepted by the park commission and Secretary Henry Vogt has been directed to advertise for bids for the construction of the courts. The work will be commenced as soon as contracts can be awarded, and it is estimated that the courts will cost the city about $3,000.

ELECTRICITY IN AIR

We have a comparatively new trouble with our teeth in which the teeth loosen in the jaw without apparent cause and drop out, leaving the dentist in mystery. In these recent years the general tendency toward baldness has been marked as unusually apparent. Are the electric waves used night and day in wireless telegraphy a cause?

Prof. Henshaw suspects that they may be. The effect of electricity is marked as it escapes from the cables of a power station. He says that in the sending of a wireless message only one mile that portion of the electrical energy used in only 1-300,000,000ths of the energy expended. The rest goes into the air.

POWER OF AIR BRAKE

Some idea of the power of an air brake may be gained from the following facts: It takes a powerful locomotive drawing a train of ten passenger cars a distance of about five miles to reach a speed of sixty miles an hour on a straight and level track. The brakes will stop the same train from a speed of sixty miles an hour in 700 feet. Roughly it may be stated that a train may be stopped by the brakes in about 3 percent of the distance that must be covered to give it its speed.—Science Spectator.

"The Wise Woman Will Help Her Feet Bear Their Great Responsibilities" Says Lillian Russell

By LILLIAN RUSSELL.

(Copyright, 1911, By Lillian Russell.)

NE summer when I was in Germany and my feet became swollen and painful I hunted up a chiropodist to relieve them, and then found that we in America not only make the best shoes in the world but have the best chiropodists. The little German doctor was enthusiastic over the care our feet are given in this country. He said: "Over here men and women do not understand the importance of keeping their feet in a healthy condition." When every one comes to realize how small those extremities are and how much work they have to do all through our lives our feet will be treated with the deference that is their due.

This time of year most people's feet begin to swell and perspire more or less. Abrasions are made upon the tender skin; blisters are formed on the heels by shoes that were worn with comfort in cooler weather. People who are much on their feet should, if possible, try the Knipp cure and walk barefooted in the dewy grass in the morning. They should let the air get to their feet as much as possible and be careful about the fit of their stockings and shoes.

Many absurdities are uttered regarding the feet of women. Most people call a foot handsome because it is inordinately small when it has not a single blemish; in fact, its smallness, for which it is especially praised, is its greatest defect. A foot to be really beautiful must have a fine instep, perfectly individual straight and symmetrical toes, the nails of pink, not of yellowish tint, and the heels of gently outward curvature.

For the sake of comfort and general health it is of vital importance that the feet should receive as much and even more attention than any other part of the body.

In the treatment of the feet the oriental long ago attained the greatest perfection. It is from him that the art of the chiropodist penetrated to the occidental, and in no point does the standard of convention between the east and west differ more than in regard to the feet of their respective peoples. The European considers it a mark of humiliation to appear unshod at an official ceremony, whereas in the far east it is looked upon as an act of cleanliness, so that on entering a temple shoes are removed that no dirt may be carried in. To require the removal of boots is not a humiliation to the oriental.

In connection with the nicest care of the feet, a smooth piece of pumice stone will be found useful for keeping the sole and outer edges soft, and powder is quite as necessary for your pedal extremities as for your face. A good formula is salicylic acid three parts, starch flour ten parts, and talcum eighty-seven parts. A little powdered alum should also be added to the foot bath once or twice a week.

Excessive perspiration of the feet is exceedingly annoying, but it can be greatly ameliorated by washing with pure soap and warm water and dabbing with cotton wet with tincture of myrrh. Harsh, burning skin on the feet arises more from constitutional disease than from a local disorder, but the sensation may be alleviated by using oatmeal in the water in which they are bathed. We have long thought that aching feet belonged to the minor ills and are unworthy of surgical skill. It was only a short time ago that attention to the teeth was looked upon as a waste of time. Now men of the highest medical education choose the profession of dentistry, and it is hoped that ere long chiropody will reach a similar dignity.

Walking on the Balls of the Feet Throws the Body into Perfect Position and Prevents the "High Stomach."

Do not soak your feet in hot water daily. Have you ever noticed how shriveled and soft are your laundress' hands? It is because they are habitually kept in water. Don't use too much soap upon the feet either, and let this be of the purest and most emollient nature. You need all the natural oil you have in your feet, and you must wash them as you do your hands, quickly, and dry them immediately. The woman who habitually puts her feet in hot water from ten minutes to a half hour a day is the best patient the chiropodist can have. If your feet are dry and the circulation is poor, massaging with olive oil helps them very much, but don't try everything that is recommended to you. Use your own common sense and you will see that the things I am telling you have at least the merit of seeming as though they were more than the result of mere theory.

When you take off your shoes and stockings at night take your foot in your hand and feel how soft it is. See how you can bend it forward and back. Now, picture that soft foot, strapped down to a piece of board, with no bend or swing in it. Don't you think it would be a species of torture? And yet, that is what you do every day when you wear those great, heavy soled shoes and lace or button your feet up closely in them. When you want to do anything with your hands you instinctively free them from gloves, and yet a glove is softer than the softest shoe.

The best shoe for everyday wear is the tan shoe, but tanners and shoemakers do not care to produce it, for the leather must be of better quality than is put into a black shoe. Above all things, do not wear your shoes too short. If smallness were a mark of beauty, then the poor little deformed foot of the Chinese woman would hold the palm. American women have naturally the smallest feet of any in the world, notwithstanding the Spaniard's claim. After the large feet of the English woman, it is really delightful to see the dainty extremities of her American sister, and when the whole person of the American girl partakes of this daintiness of physique, she is the most attractive woman on earth. But it is folly to exaggerate the smallness of the feet at the expense of the remainder of the body. There is nothing except the face and hands that can be so aristocratic as a well dressed, shapely foot; nothing so plebeian as a badly dressed, clumsy one; and nothing more vulgar than any foot in a shoe manifestly too tight.

The exercise of walking is the most general among manhood, and as on the proper execution of it much of the development and nearly all of the grace of a person depend, it would seem as though the woman who wishes to be beautiful would take a great deal of interest, not only in the selection of her shoes and stockings, but in making her feet absolutely symmetrical, as well as healthy.

Gracefulness in walking is so essential to elegance of presence that it certainly should be taught to children. Dancing masters, of course, have an exaggerated notion of how the feet should be placed, and the soldier is also taught to walk by rule, but the real individuality of a person will show itself in his walking no matter what his brains may be.

We are taught to walk with our toes turned out, but few know that the angle should be that at which the ball of the great toe, as well as the great toe itself, can best act. This angle is not to be arbitrarily determined, but should depend upon and be fixed on what constitutes the most effective movement of the body. This will differ in different persons, according to the breadth of shoulders and the length of the legs. This is why we see a great many people of very ungraceful carriage who think because they are turning their toes out they are walking properly.

Persons who turn their toes in, or turn one in and hold the other straight in front, are notably ungraceful in bearing, and the parallel toes of the American Indian represent a most ungainly walk, acquired through thousands of generations of following trails through the wilderness. One may almost say that, subject to modification with reference to height, length of leg, and breadth of person, the toes of each foot should be

"There Is Nothing in the World That Will Bring Wrinkles to a Woman's Face Sooner Than Aching, Uncomfortable Feet," Insists the Beauty Expert, and "Short Stockings Are Quite As Injurious As Short Shoes."

MOFFETT PHOTOS

Give Your Feet Air. They Need It As Much As Your Hands

turned out about two inches. Remember this, that breadth as well as height enters into the consideration. A stout woman, with a given amount of movement at the feet pointing outward, sways at the shoulders more than a taller man does with toes turned out to the same degree. This is why a fat woman usually waddles. She has formed the habit of turning her toes out to the proper degree before she has acquired flesh, and they need an entirely different angle after this direful calamity has overtaken her.

The length of the step should be proportionate to the length of the leg. If the foot is thrown too much forward for the natural stride, when it reaches the ground it strikes with a jar on the end of the heel; this is the most prevalent way of walking with the average person. If a woman would stand erectly on the balls of her feet she would find that it would throw not only her shoulders, bust, and chin into proper position, but it would also adjust her internal organs and save her from much of the trouble which is now a menace to her sex.

Walking on the heels throws much of the weight of the body upon the soft walls of the abdomen, and this is the reason we see so many women with what they call their "high stomachs." Make your bony structure hold your weight. Nature has placed a pad underneath the ball of your feet purposely to save this constant jar, and by nice adjustment it throws the weight of the body upon the spine and the bony structure.

If you turn your toes out slightly, graduating the steps, and pressing the weight upon the ball and coming down lightly on the heel of the foot, each movement will be elastic and you will have no appearance of stiffness unless you wear too high heels. Beware of that springiness at the knees which so many elderly women affect, having an idea that they are producing an impression of youth. Walk from your hip, always.

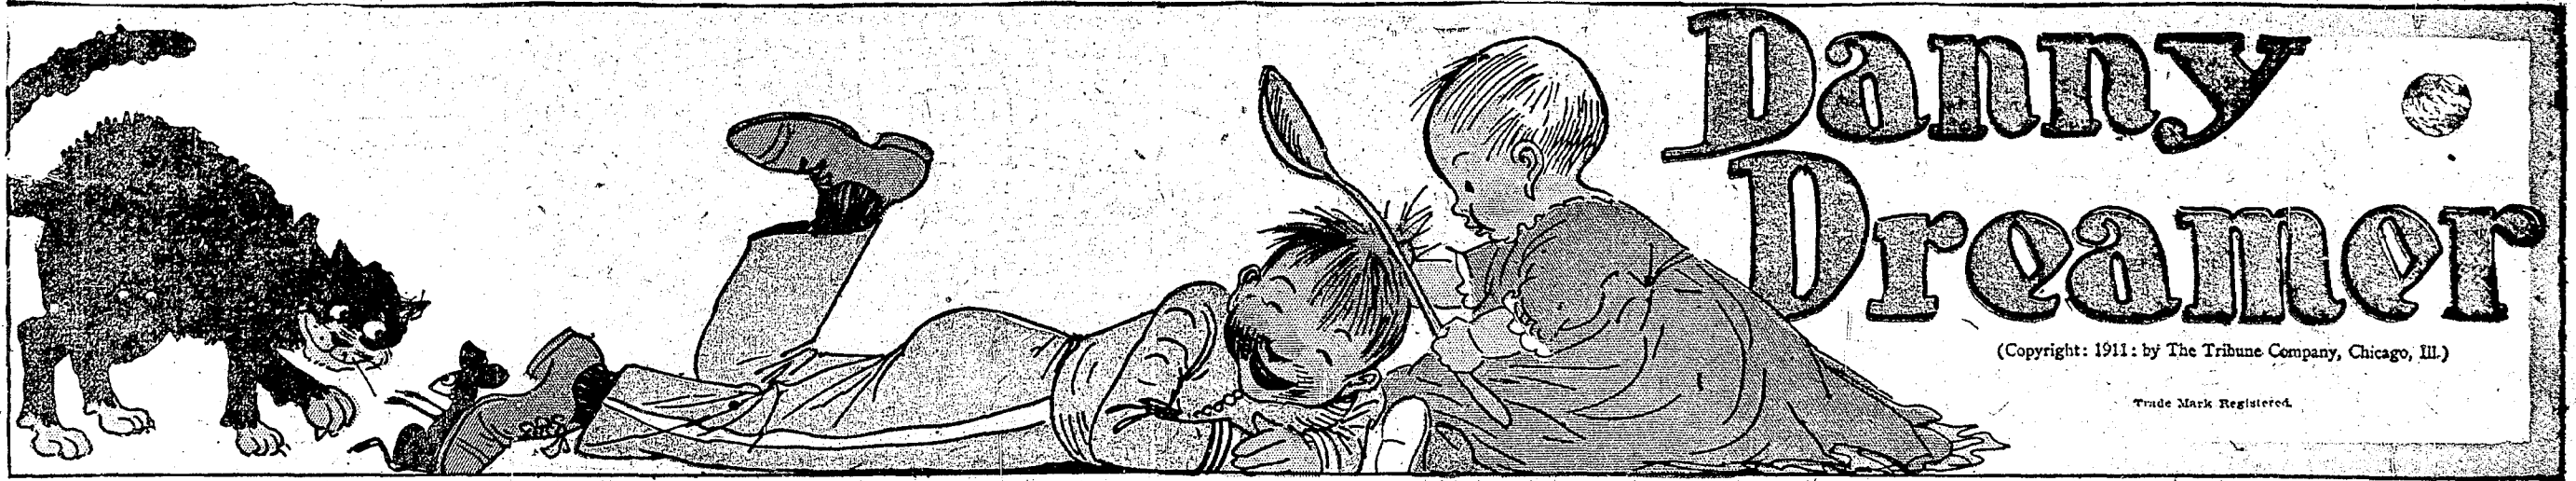

Thousands of women, who have infinite capacity for grace move constrainedly through life, when, if they had been taught in childhood the importance of good care of their feet and the real principles of walking they would not only have been more graceful, but would have had better health, and some of them, perhaps, would have escaped the serious operations which are daily becoming more numerous in our hospitals.

A catapult, a frightful weapon in times of war in the old days—a weapon that never would have been thought of had I not worked it all out first. Shooting stones from it at that target a few feet away will give you some idea of the job I once accomplished when a heavy rainstorm threatened to devastate the country roundabout. That was when I thought of the first catapult, and I must confess that the first one worked far better than did any other ever utilized. If you know how to work a catapult you can make it act almost human. I thought seriously at one time of using it as a means of rapid transportation.

OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright 1911 by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

The first experience I ever had with a catapult took place one Sunday. I was the foreman of a bridge construction gang, but the day being the Sabbath I told the men to spend it as they saw fit and that I would stick around. Two hours after they left a terrific storm came up and I rushed down the river to the abutments.

As I had feared, the freshet already had done a little damage to the abutments and the frail scaffolding round about the premises. When I arrived on the scene the water was gushing in great torrents over the dead-heads in the water, and I knew I had to act quickly if anything was to be done to ward off great damage.

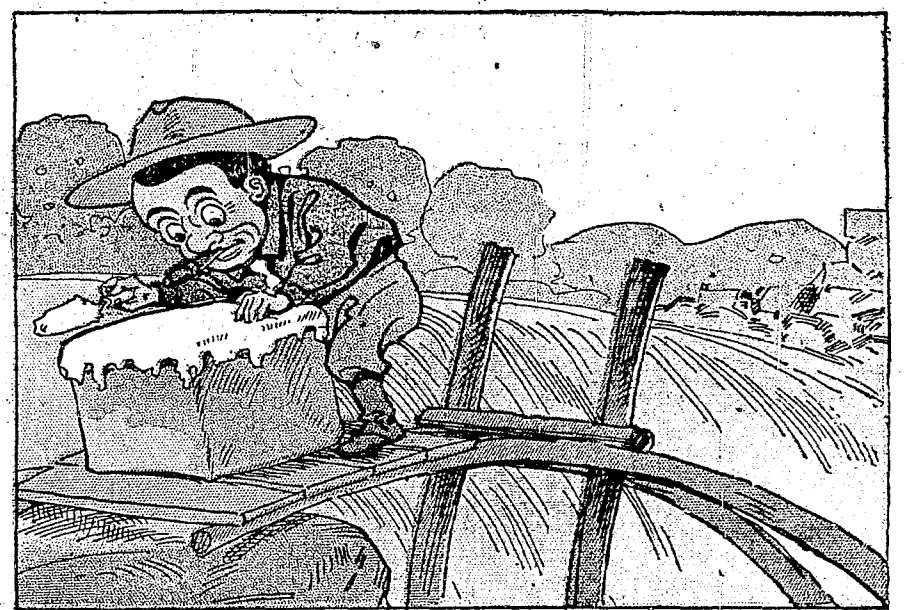

Naturally I acted with extreme alacrity. Running back into the woods, I drew out my penknife and cut down several logs of goodly size. With these I started down stream, for already I had formulated my plans to prevent the destruction of the bridge that was to be one of the finest ever constructed over a great river.

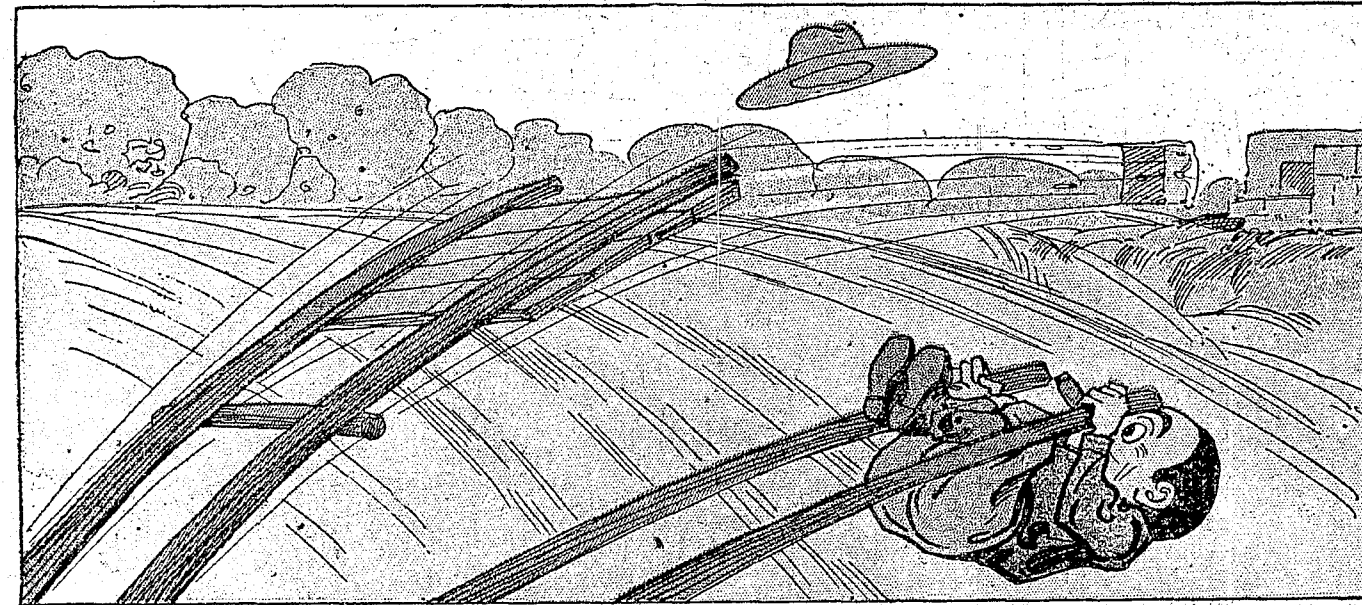

Upon two logs I floated down stream, carrying two other logs in my arms. Swifter and swifter I approached the falls, my brain working with great rapidity. Over the brow of the falls I floated and struck the water below with the poles with such force that they were securely fastened in the concrete-like bottom of the river.

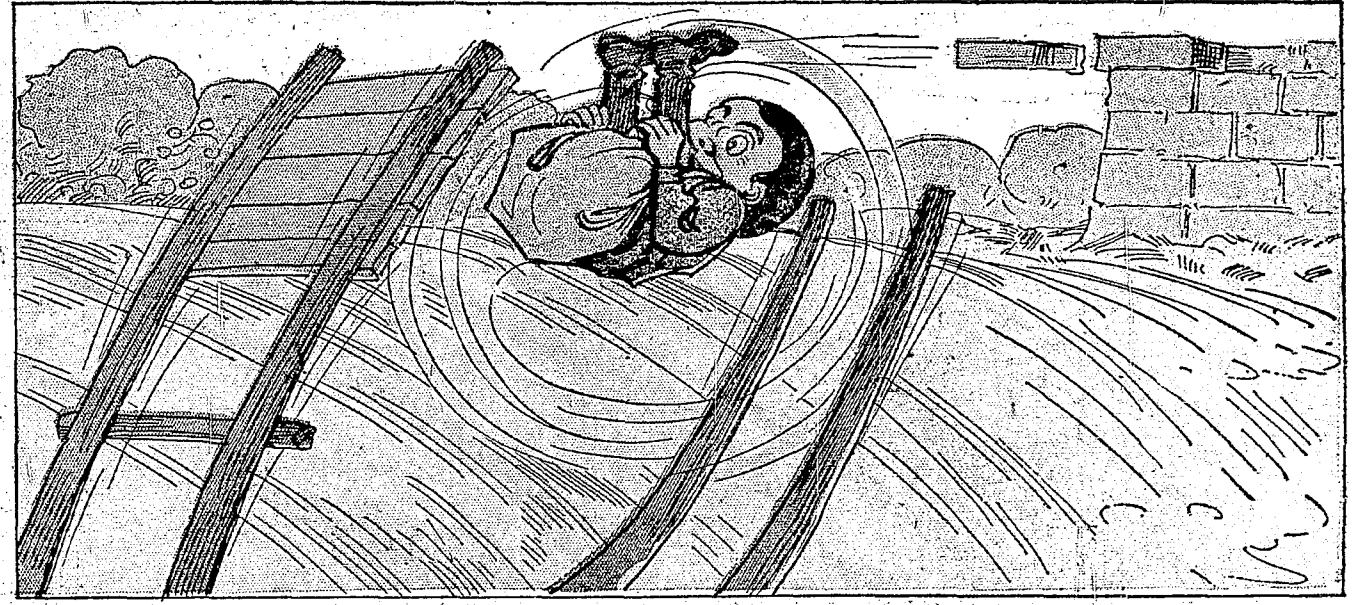

And thus it was that I started to build the first catapult ever constructed. Using all my enormous strength, I bent this catapult back until it notched into grooves in the two uprights and lay upon the great rock abutment just behind. If you ever tried to bend big logs you'll appreciate this was considerable of a task.

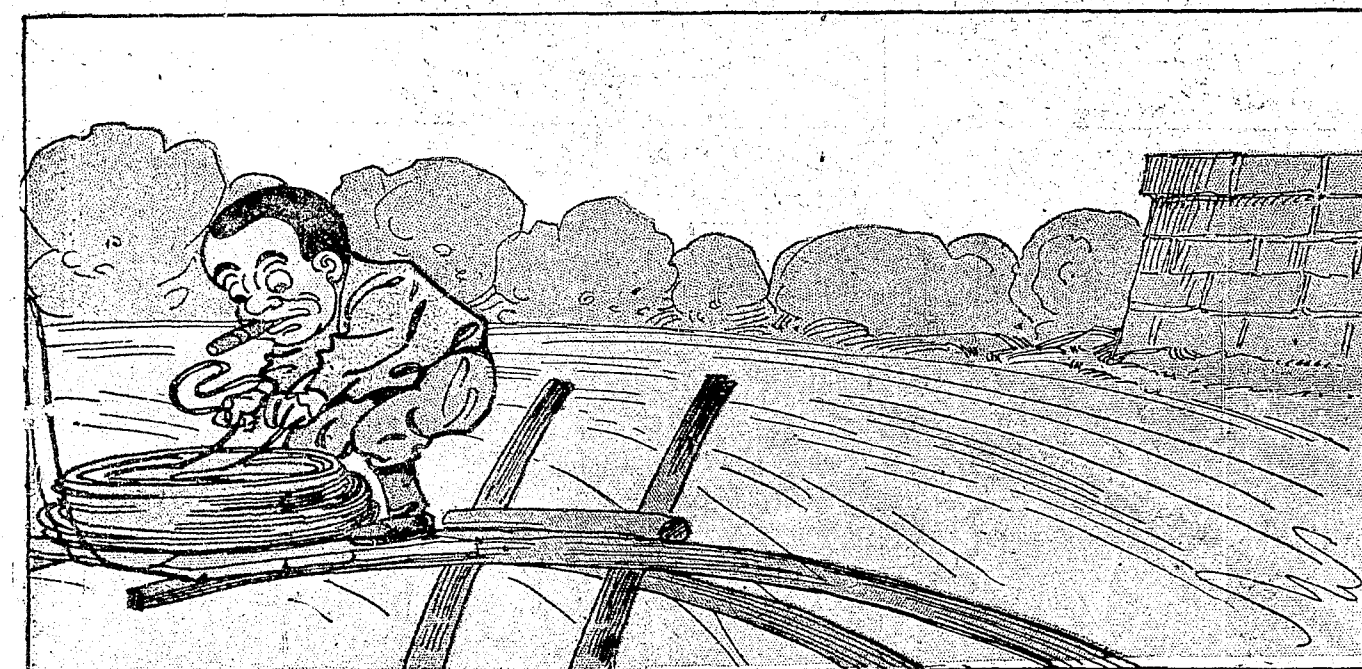

With the unfinished abutment on the other side of the river, some two and a third miles away, ever on my mind, I carried up to the catapult a large stone weighing something like four tons, placed it on the platform of the catapult and plastered it heavily with mortar. This I spread on with great care.

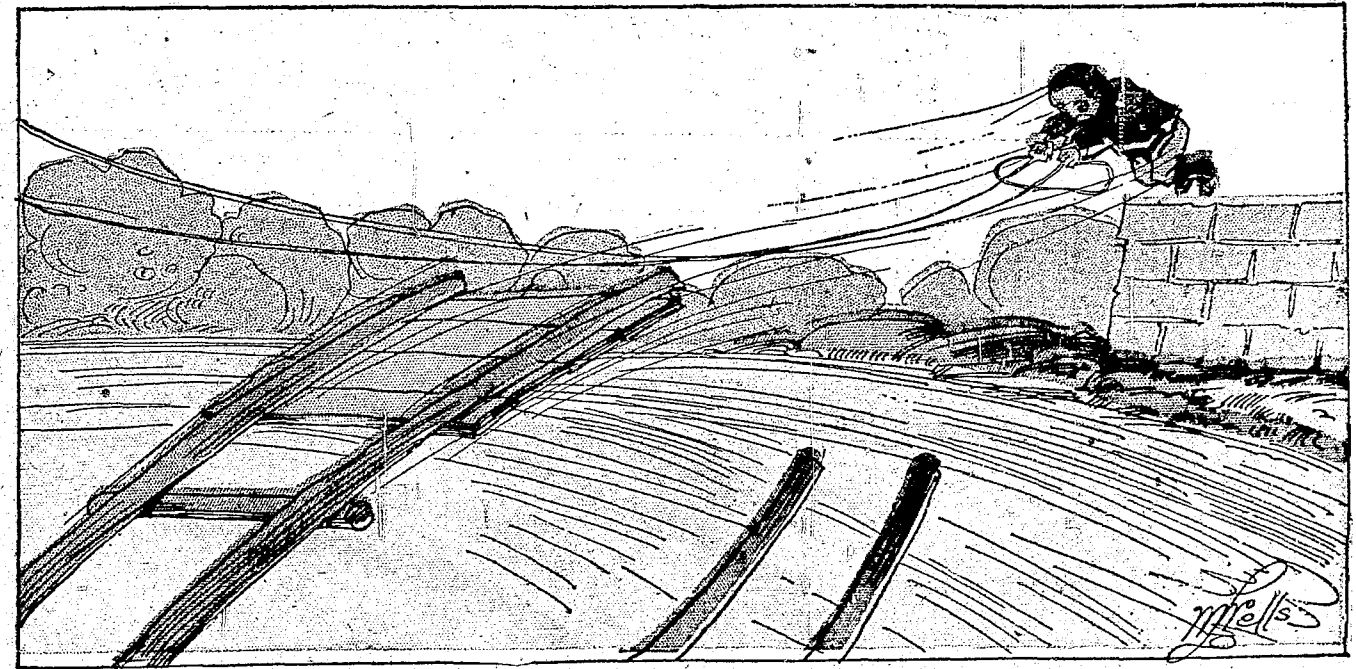

The stone in readiness, I stepped back and threw my weight and all my strength against the uprights which held the notches that clutched the catapult. Immediately they released the catapult, which bounded up fast as chain lightning. With a loud hiss the heavy stone was hurtled through space. Over the river it flew straight for the unfinished abutment, landing against the companion stones and sticking where I intended it should.

In another second the great uprights, pulling against my strength, started straightening out. They flew up and somersaulted me against the catapult with such terrific force that the catapult was again bent back while I grabbed the uprights and fastened the clutches to the great springboard. Thus, somersaulting for a long time, I managed to throw all the stones across the river that were required to complete the abutment.

For the last time I pushed the gigantic catapult back against the stones and made it secure. I was fairly tired by this time, but my work was not yet finished. Again I descended to the ground, climbing up to the catapult a moment later with a huge coil of steel cable. This I methodically placed on the platform, stopping only for a few seconds to place myself in the proper position for the most hazardous undertaking of the day.

Then I hurled myself again against the upright logs, stepping quickly back upon the catapult. There was a loud swish as the steel cable and your Uncle Opie were shot into space over the frothing river. I lighted my cigar on the way over, holding fast to the end of the cable. Lightly I landed upon the now completed abutment. Thus was the work of four thousand men accomplished and the bridge saved from total destruction.

Final Fling in Bachelor Life Is Closely Followed by Wedding Bells' Toll

Daniel Foley, wealthy contractor of Spokane and former bachelor, is a married man today. The tribulations caused by his brief prenuptial celebration in this city and in San Francisco which terminated yesterday morning when he was escorted to the home of his future bride, Mrs. Mary L. Nagle, 599 Merrimac street, by Officers Gaylor and Tadenberg, cleared away late in the afternoon when the couple appeared at the County Clerk's office and were issued a license by Deputy Clerk Homer Wilson. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by Rev. Father Keane of St. Francis de Sales parish about 4:30 o'clock in the presence of the immediate relatives.

LEAVES, BUT RETURNS.

In taking out the license Foley gave his age as 52 and his birthplace Ireland, while Mrs. Nagle confessed to 47 years. Following the ceremony Foley, who had shied at the prospects of a wedding for more than a week, left the house for a short time on personal business, returning, however, later in the evening. The bride, in a cheerful voice, announced that the ceremony had taken place and that for the present both she and her husband would make their home at the Merrimac street address in this city. She evinced no reaction as a result of the anxiety she underwent during the period that her future husband was away.

In the meantime, Foley, who had brought a good sized bankroll with him from the north, together with a passbook showing a deposit of $23,000 in a Spokane bank, was enjoying the night life across the bay, greatly to the depletion of his aforementioned roll. Not content with having one lodging house at his disposal he hired various rooms that ranged in splendor from a ferry lodging house to the Palace hotel, in which Foley he was found yesterday morning asleep in a luxuriant chair and with his feet propped up by a rich mahogany table.

Erie Lloyd Barr, U. S. N., and Miss Ellen Culver Married in New London.

NEW LONDON, Aug. 19.—In St. James' Episcopal church this evening Miss Ellen Isabella Culver, eldest daughter of Dr. J. S. Culver, Christopher Culver, was married to Midshipman Erie Lloyd Barr, U. S. N. The ceremony was semi-military in character, but was carried out simply. Midshipman Barr is the son of Lieutenant Barr of Los Angeles, Cal. He is a junior officer on the U. S. S. Connecticut. Miss Culver has been a teacher in the Institute for instruction of the deaf and dumb in New York City, resigning her position recently.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride. The bride cut her cake with the bridegroom's sword and then the husband cut the wedding cake with the sword. Numerous and handsome presents have been received by the couple, including a complete set of solid silver.

Engineers Find Operations on Raising Maine Hampered by Condition of Hull.

HAVANA, Aug. 19.—The engineers in charge of the work of raising the battleship Maine have decided to suspend the operation of exposing and exploring the hull until after they have cleared away the wreckage which extends from the forward side of the after-turret to the bow. The work will take about two months.

President to Have Plenty to Say in Many Speeches on Western Tour

People's Attitude Toward Congress and Himself Will Be Judged on Trip

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The trip President Taft will make into the West during September is to be taken in order that he may have an opportunity to discuss from the platform the public questions that are uppermost in his mind. He is pretty much disgusted with Congress. He has a notion that the legislators are not accurately reflecting public sentiment on some of the large questions of the day and he desires to get out among the people and find out for himself whether he is right in his estimate of the legislative body. This trip, which is to be extended to the Pacific coast, if the present plans are carried out, will give him a chance to lay before the people his program for the balance of his term. This he will do in six or seven set speeches. In the course of the four or five weeks of travel he will probably deliver 75 or 100 addresses, but the important ones he will have to say will be embodied in the speeches he will prepare in advance with great care.

LARGEST SUBJECTS.

What may be termed the big subjects for the trip may be enumerated as follows: First, tariff revision; second, the arbitration treaties between the United States and Great Britain and France; third, Canadian reciprocity; fourth, the question, fifth, legislation under which the federal reserve of the public domain of the United States proper and of Canada may be developed; sixth, currency reform; seventh, economy in public expenditures. The President undoubtedly realizes the public does not intend that the tariff question shall be put aside until the Aldrich-Payne tariff law has been revised, his will on this forthcoming tour of the country make plain his position on this subject. The probability is he will declare his determination to do his utmost to obtain revision of most of the schedules of the existing law at the next session of Congress.

PEOPLE CAN JUDGE.

On this trip he will give the people of the country an opportunity to choose between him and the United States Senate as to whether the arbitration treaties designed to promote the peace of the world shall be ratified. The contest over the ratification of these treaties promises to be one of the most interesting that has taken place between a President and the Senate in a long time. Last Tuesday evening the President said, as he was leaving for Ocean View, that he would not discuss the arbitration treaties before the Ocean View assembly. On his way over to the New Jersey resort he received a telegram announcing that Senator Lodge, for a majority of the foreign relations committee, had submitted to the Senate his report endorsing the treaties. He believes the people of the United States are heartily in favor of these treaties in the form in which they are submitted to the Senate and it is his intention to take advantage of this coming western

Naval Board Finds Ensign Incompetent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Ensign R. S. Young, Jr., of Concord, N. C., who recently disappeared from the destroyer Perkins, leaving a note that he contemplated suicide and was later found by his father in New York City, has been declared mentally irresponsible for his act by a naval medical board of survey at Norfolk, Va. The Navy Department has ordered the young officer to the government hospital for the insane at Washington.

Fight Over the Presidency Absorbing Topic

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—San Francisco tonight will be given over to the preliminary festivities of the Grand Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, which convenes Monday morning. Since early morning delegates and visitors to the big gathering have been arriving by regular and special trains and steamboats in hundreds. It was estimated this evening that there were nearly 30,000 strangers in the city and that by Monday evening there would be over 50,000. The merchants, the civic organizations and the various committees of the local aerie have made elaborate preparations for the entertainment of the guests. The decorations are on a most lavish scale. The principal streets are festooned with bunting and everywhere the emblem of the order with the symbol letters "F. O. E." is visible. It is hung to the breeze in gorgeous electric colors from the tops of great buildings and hotels; it is hung in the corridors of halls and strung over the arches and entrances to the hundreds of big business palaces that line the thoroughfares of the new San Francisco.

GREAT RUSH OF VISITORS.

The visitors say that the coming aerie will be the greatest by all odds in the history of the order. As indicating the extraordinary interest in it it may be said that over 4000 excursionists have come in during the day from Los Angeles alone and that the Southern Pacific Company has ## operated 27 special trains since 9 o'clock this morning on its coast division. The big rush from the East will begin tomorrow morning with the arrival of delegations in their own trains from Ohio, Illinois, New York, Indiana and a number of other eastern and middle west states.

The various aeries of the State will be well represented; in fact many of them will have their full membership represented here during the entire week of the convention and will bring with them their wives and families and large numbers of visitors and spectators, thus swelling the throng that will be attracted for the big parade on Thursday.

Largest Town Marshal in Country Resigns Job to Swap Horses.

FARMERSVILLE, Tex., Aug. 19.—Sam Harris, who held the record for six years of being the largest town marshal in the United States, has retired from that office. He weighs 410 pounds. His weight was no handicap in performing the duties of police officer, but he got tired of the job and is now ready to take other employment. In the meantime he is swapping horses.

He is 38 years old and is still increasing in weight. Mr. Harris is the product of a farm near this place. He is proud of the fact that his flesh gives him no inconvenience in his every-day duties. He says that he can walk ten miles without feeling the slightest fatigue.

The ball struck the little fellow in the stomach, inflicting a wound which caused instant death.

Millionaire's Wife Is Held as Insane

Plausibly Admits Previous Mental Disorders and Escape From Asylum.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Adele Siegel, wife of Adolph Siegel, millionaire proprietor of a chain of drug stores in Milwaukee and Chicago, was taken from her apartments in the Hotel Martha Washington by detectives and transferred to the Bellevue Hospital today for observation as to her sanity. Although the police had been warned by telegram that Mrs. Siegel did not show insanity on first meeting, they were amazed by the remarkable personality of the little woman, who discussed her case and told of her escape from an insane asylum in Milwaukee.

She admitted she had some years ago suffered from mental disorders and had twice gone of her own accord to the asylum in Milwaukee. Her reason for fleeing from the institution last Wednesday, she said, was that she had heard that her husband was about to arrange for her formal commitment.

Child Locked 5 Days With Dead Mother

Four-Year-Old Girl Found in House Near Death From Starvation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Locked in a flat with her dead mother, who had committed suicide on Monday four-year-old Virginia Peterson was liberated today in an almost dying condition and rushed to a hospital, where it is said she may survive. The mother, Mrs. Sarah E. Peterson, left a note saying she was separated from her husband and had waited for a government appointment which never came. In discouragement and apparent temporary insanity as the result of which she believed herself followed and persecuted, the woman took her life by carbolic acid.

The mother expected that the child would also die as is shown by a note in which she asked that if both died they be cremated and their ashes buried together.

LENOX, Mass., Aug. 19.—Lenoxdale postoffice safe, located in Wm. D. Avery's store, was saved from burglars early today by the loud quacking of a flock of ducks belonging to Peter J. Tyler. The burglars ransacked the store when Mr. Tyler's ducks, on the Housatonic river, in the vicinity of the store, made such a tumult they aroused Claude Tiltonson and Amos Washburn. The intruder leaped over a picket fence and swam the Housatonic river.

PEACE PRAYER

The following special prayer for industrial peace was prepared by the Archbishop of Canterbury for use throughout England today at ten o'clock.

"O God, who are the father of all and who alone make those men to be of one mind in a house, we beseech thee at this time of strife and unrest to grant to us by the inspiration of Thy holy spirit a fuller realization of the brotherhood of man in Thee.

"Alay all anger and bitterness and deepen in us a sense of truth and equity in all our dealings with one another for the sake of Thy son, our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen."

LONDON, Aug. 19.—The great railroad strike, which has tied up traffic in London and virtually all parts of the United Kingdom, has been settled. Labor leaders say the men will return to work at once. Details have not been given out as to the terms of the settlement, but a bulletin has been sent out from a conference at which the executive committees of the four railwaymen's unions met. David Lloyd-George representing the government and Ramsay MacDonald, intermediary for the railway leaders, that peace has been declared.

CHURCHILL MEETS EMPLOYERS

John Burns, the former labor leader and now president of the local government board of trade, assisted in bringing about the agreement. The conference followed a meeting of the executive committees of the unions and was augmented by a meeting between Winston Churchill, Home Secretary, and the railway managers.

MEN WERE OVERWORKED

Two-thirds of the men were not anxious to strike, but were dissatisfied at the extra work which the defection of their comrades had placed on them. Some of the train crews were forced to work twenty-four hours at a stretch.

During the day, before the settlement of the railway strike was reached, one serious clash between troops and strikers was reported. This was at Llanelli, Wales, where four rioters were shot down, two being killed and the other two being probably mortally wounded.

from the Philippines, which will be remembered as the most ambitious attempt at illumination and welcome of the old San Francisco.

DELEGATES DO POLITICS.

From the buzz of political talk which goes on in every group of delegates that has arrived, so far, it is very evident that a progressive spirit is at work within the order. The issues around which it builds is that of State autonomy, or the granting of greater powers to the State aeries. There is a feeling of protest against the complete domination by the Grand Aerie which has hitherto been the condition.

J. C. Cusack of San Francisco heads the movement for decentralization and is making that his battle cry in his fight for the grand presidency. Cusack has received the support of the local committee of the Grand Aerie, while he is promised that of his own aerie, No. 61, and is confident that he will be supported by Aerie No. 5 also. It is thought that these promises will go far to offset the opposition of the State Aerie at Stockton early in the week.

The administration, or "old guard" adherents, express themselves as slightly aggrieved at Cusack's energetic fight for decentralization. As a reward to the local aeries for holding the convention here they are giving their support to John D. Parry for the position of grand secretary, and they think that is enough. In order to knock the prop out from under the insurgent movement the administration expresses itself also as in favor of State autonomy.

OPPOSITION TO HERING.

Colonel H. H. Thompson, who held the first grand presidency of the Eagles when the Grand Aerie was first founded in 1889, has declared himself as unalterably opposed to the candidacy of Frank E. Hering of South Bend, Ind., for the grand presidency. Colonel Thompson stated that he was here for the purpose of heading the fight against Hering on principle and not as against any individual.

"I am unalterably opposed to the candidacy of any man who has already held the office of grand worthy president," declared Colonel Thompson. "My position is not against Brother Hering or any other individual, but simply for the encouragement of the order."

"Any man who has already held the presidency can have no motive of honor in running again. The Eagles confer this highest of offices upon a man as an honor. All over the country there are thousands of men working and reaching and striving for this honor."

BIG EXPENSE BILL.

"Incidentally, we pay the holder a large salary and a liberal expense allowance. Although I am not sure, I was told that Brother Hering's expense allowance for the year of his presidency was about $22,000."

"Now, what motive can a man have, after he has already received the highest honor in the order, to come back and demanding it again? It is not the honor that influences him the second time. It is the salary."

"My position on this point has been constant. I led the fight against good friend H. H. Davis of Cleveland in the Milwaukee convention on exactly the same grounds. He had the majority and was defeated on the floor under my leadership. I did exactly the same thing with J. E. Peltier, against whom I personally have nothing. I shall lead this fight, also, on principle."

The fight in the Milwaukee convention was won, said C. H. Following was grand secretary when Thompson was grand president, by a splendid oratorical effort by Colonel Thompson in one of the finest speeches ever made in the Eagles.

HERING WRITES LETTER.

Grand Trustee Joseph H. Dowling is writing a letter to the new grand aerie which, it is understood, was submitted to the trustees and made a part of their report, which entitles it to be called up on the floor of the grand aerie by any member. The letter, in part, is as follows:

"I am very strongly in favor of talking from the grand worthy president certain duties now vested in him and of giving them to the proper officers in the state aeries. A strong fraternity is an institution that requires years of growth. During those years, weaknesses and crudities in the subordinate bodies are eliminated, and the necessity of certain high centralization in the supreme body is lessened. Through service in the order, each year more and more men are added to the number of those qualified to take an active part in the management of the affairs of the fraternity."

STATE AUTONOMY.

"I trust that my colleagues on the Board of Grand Trustees will join with me in the movement to strengthen the usefulness and add to the powers of these state bodies."

The question of the financial officers is also of the utmost importance. I am of the opinion that we shall not secure satisfactory bonds for the officers of the grand and subordinate aeries until the Grand Aerie maintains a bonding department. I have in my possession, application blanks and transcript of the laws governing the bonding department of one of the great trades union associations of the country, and I have been in correspondence with the national secretary of this organization. After reading such literature as I have been able to obtain, I feel confident that the Grand Aerie can embark in the business of bonding the officers of the grand and subordinate aeries."

PRESIDENT ARRIVES MONDAY.

Grand President Thomas L. Grady has left Pittsburg, according to advice from J. J. Joyce, the president's assistant, and will arrive Monday from the north. He will be met at the ferry by a brass band and a large delegation and escorted to the headquarters at the St. Francis.

The grand parade at 11 o'clock next Thursday morning will be one of the great features of the Grand Aerie. Merely spectacular features have been avoided, and the result will be an impressive and imposing procession of men and organizations.

Besides the Eagles, who will turn out by the thousands, Grand Marshal Herbert Choyinski will have in line companies from the fire department, the police department, a company of mounted police, regular army soldiers from the Presidio, companies of the National Guard of California, the Naval Militia, and men from the Goat Island Naval Training Station.

MOGAN TO JUDGE DRILL.

The competitive drill at the Pavilion will be judged by Superior Judge E. P. Mogan. Degree teams from all over the United States will compete in the difficult drill and exemplification of the ritual.

Other features of the program arranged by Chairman Ralph McLaren from Pittsburg tomorrow afternoon as a preliminary exhibition to the big competition, the exhibition drill by fireboats, at Howard street wharf, Wednesday morning, and the grand Eagles' ball scheduled for Friday night at the Pavilion.

From the standpoint of the spectators the parade will be inspiring in more ways than one, for Chairman Ike Tucher of the music committee promises that there will be more bands than have ever been in a parade of any kind in San Francisco. Besides the musical organizations engaged to march with the visiting aeries and the ones accompanying celebrations, there will be military bands, including those of the Third Artillery, the Thirty-eighth Infantry, and the First Cavalry.

There will be floats from various counties of California and several surprises are promised in this direction.

DAYS OF GOLD RECALLED.

"Luck of Roaring Camp," one of the big amusement features, will open its doors tomorrow night, and it is safe to say that a big crowd will be in attendance. The Eagle committee having "Roaring Camp" in charge have been working hard for a month past with the many details essential to its success, and a glance at the grounds at Eighth and Market streets gives an assurance that their work has not been in vain.

"Roaring Camp" is housed under a mammoth tent 120 by 270 feet with an auxiliary tent 60 by 60, and even this space has not been sufficient to accommodate the many shows and concessions that have applied to the committee for space. American flags, Eagle emblems, and green trees and shrubbery make a most inviting entrance to the tent, while the myriad incandescent lights and arcs give promise of a dazzling effect at night.

The interior of the tent is also brilliantly and artistically illuminated by hundreds of incandescent lights and numerous large arcs.

Housed within these cabins and shacks are the numerous enterprises so common in mining towns. The Red Dog saloon, the gambling hall, the variety theater, the Chinese laundry, the dance hall, and all the rest of the things that make up the amusement are all there, true to life, and the Eagles will make the scene even more realistic, for members of the order will be seen on the streets of "Roaring Camp" rigged out as gamblers, miners, Chinese, cowboys and other characters who made famous the mining camps of early days.

That "Roaring Camp" will prove a popular rendezvous for the visiting Eagles, as well as their local brethren, is a question that requires no answer, for everything in and about the attraction presents such an inviting appearance that passers-by on the street cannot well resist the temptation of entering its canvas walls and mingling with the motley throng that will daily crowd the streets of the "Roaring Camp" frontier city.

SOME FAIR STORIES.

Senator Dowling is telling how Ohio was swung into line for San Francisco as the world's fair city, after the legislature had been pledged to the Ohio delegation in Congress.

"When Theodore Bell and Frank Hering wired me that San Francisco must have the Ohio delegation in Congress or lose the fight, they laid it on us Ohio Eagles as a personal burden to undertake what looked like a miracle. Our best job can have no idea of the absurdity of what Bell and Hering asked without understanding the railroad situation in Cincinnati. The stocks and bonds of the Queen & Crescent road were owned there, and the Illinois Central line to New Orleans terminates there, too."

"The powerful lobbies of those roads had done the work of pledging Ohio to New Orleans, and they had done it well. Of course, the Eagles as a fraternity could not enter the fight—we were just in it on account of our personal loyalty to Bell and Hering. Well, I went to Nick Longworth and asked him what he thought of our chances."

FIGHT WAS TO FINISH.

"No power on earth can swing Ohio away from New Orleans," said he. But we asked Governor Harmon to keep hands off and let us have a chance, and then followed the hottest campaign all over the state I ever got mixed up with. We went into every town and hamlet, and the New Orleans people were there ahead of us. We had no time to check up and find out what chances we had, and when the Ohio Senate voted in favor of San Francisco we were almost as much surprised as the New Orleans crowd. The Governor called me over to the executive offices and protested that he understood that there was to be no endorsement of either city. While I was telling him how sorry I was that there was any misunderstanding the announcement was brought in that the House had passed the Senate resolution."

"After that it was easier sailing in Washington, but we took no chances and moved under the Ohio delegation with requests from all parts of the state to vote for San Francisco, and I was able to visit San Francisco and Ohio stood fifteen to six for San Francisco. I told Mr. Mullally that it took the Ohio Eagles to achieve the impossible."

HOW ORDER WAS CLEANED.

Judge N. E. Nuzum of Spokane, one of the wealthiest attorneys of the northwest and a member of the committee on grievances, tells exciting stories of the "cleanup war" ending with the St. Louis Grand Aerie last year.

"In some of the aeries," said he, "low elements had got into control and defied the Grand Aerie to dislodge them. The men who had the interests of the order at heart were powerless. We were threatened with assassination, and we dared to go after these physical and clean them out. Grand President Hering sent John S. Parry of San Francisco to gather evidence and present it to the grand aerie. After them was a caution. The cases came up before me, and I never heard such an exhortation as the undesirable got at his hands. We kept a bodyguard and Hering and never let him get out of our sight. As a result of the 'cleanup' administration we sent some of those fellows to the penitentiary, forced restitution from others, and threw the whole lot out of the order. That is why the character of the Eagles is such that now the best men in a community are proud to join the order. We never had so good a growth and a glance at the grounds at Eighth and Market streets gives an assurance that their work has not been in vain."

"Roaring Camp" is housed under a mammoth tent 120 by 270 feet with an auxiliary tent 60 by 60, and even this space has not been sufficient to accommodate the many shows and concessions that have applied to the committee for space. Housed within these cabins and shacks are the numerous enterprises so common in mining towns. The Red Dog saloon, the gambling hall, the variety theater, the Chinese laundry, the dance hall, and all the rest of the things that make up the amusement are all there, true to life, and the Eagles will make the scene even more realistic, for members of the order will be seen on the streets of "Roaring Camp" rigged out as gamblers, miners, Chinese, cowboys and other characters who made famous the mining camps of early days.

That "Roaring Camp" will prove a popular rendezvous for the visiting Eagles, as well as their local brethren, is a question that requires no answer, for everything in and about the attraction presents such an inviting appearance that passers-by on the street cannot well resist the temptation of entering its canvas walls and mingling with the motley throng that will daily crowd the streets of the "Roaring Camp" frontier city.

"Roaring Camp" is housed under a mammoth tent 120 by 270 feet with an auxiliary tent 60 by 60, and even this space has not been sufficient to accommodate the many shows and concessions that have applied to the committee for space. American flags, Eagle emblems, and green trees and shrubbery make a most inviting entrance to the tent, while the myriad incandescent lights and arcs give promise of a dazzling effect at night.

NEGRO FOUND DEAD WITH KNIFE IN ABDOMEN

Manner of Husband's Death

CLAIMS HE USED KNIFE
ON HIMSELF IN A FIT

Suspicious Circumstances Surrounding Demise Lead to an Inquiry.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—As the result of the finding of George W. Gladman, a colored laborer, forty-seven years of age, sitting dead in a chair in his home, 8217 Webster street, at 7:30 o'clock tonight, Mrs. Lillian Gladman, a negress, was arrested by Detectives Daly and Maloney and is being held in detinue at the city prison.

At 7 p. m. Mrs. Gladman rushed into the North End station and declared that her spouse had stabbed himself and was bleeding to death. Corporal Mitchell and Officer Coffey went to the scene and sent for an ambulance. Before its arrival the man was dead.

BLOOD ON FLOOR.

Mrs. Gladman stated that her spouse had been drinking considerably of late and had been despondent, and that as soon as she saw him stab himself she ran for the police.

When the detectives, however, were detailed, they discovered several suspicious circumstances. Albert Ehrenfeuchter went to the house at 5 o'clock to repair a stove. He informed the officers that at that time he saw nothing of Mrs. Gladman, although she had previously stated that she had not left the house all day, and he plainly observed blood on the floor beside Gladman, who sat, gasping for breath, in his chair.

As it was not until two hours later that the woman informed the police, they decided to take her before Acting Captain of Detectives Ryan.

After being placed on the grill for an hour, during which she refused to admit any connection with the affair, Mrs. Gladman was placed in prison at midnight.

The officers also discovered that the knife, which is about six inches long, had blood stains on the handle, beside the blade. The man was stabbed in the abdomen.

It appeared to have been carefully placed between the fingers of the dead man.

RAKER RESENTS ATTACK ON RECALL

Congressman Declares Oregonians and Californians
Are Not Firebrands.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—During the discussion in the House today preliminary to passing the bill admitting Arizona and New Mexico into the union, with the recall feature eliminated, Congressman Raker created a stir on the floor when, after being recognized by the speaker, he said:

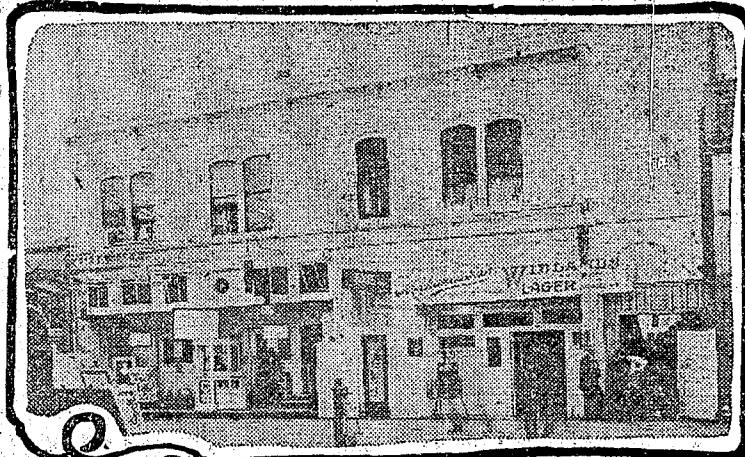

"The President has seen fit in his veto of the statehood bill to refer to those favoring the recall feature of the bill as 'firebrands and slanderers in a community and the stirrers up of social hate.' Now I want to remind the gentleman in the White House that the legislature and the people of Oregon have had the recall, including the judiciary, on their statute books for years. The people of California, by their legislature, have almost unanimously submitted an amendment to the constitution of that State whereby the judiciary is included in the initiative, referendum and recall, and at the election to be held next November the amendment will be carried by a vote of 5 to 1."

"Does the President mean to infer that the citizenry of Oregon and of California are 'firebrands and slanderers and stirrers up of social hate'? I rise to protest against any such insinuation.

"The people of California and of Oregon are an intelligent and as law abiding and as patriotic as the people of Ohio or any other State in the union. They are not 'firebrands' nor 'slanderers' nor stirrers up of social hate."

SANTA ROSA GIRL TO GO ON STAGE

BLACK TALKS FOR STREET RAILWAY

Defends the Corporation in an
Club's Luncheon.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Chas. N. Black, vice president and general manager of the United Railroads, was the speaker at the Commonwealth Club luncheon at the Palace hotel. He dwelt upon the benefits which the community derived from the consolidation of several small lines into one large system with a complete system of transfers and the resulting development of realty holdings. Black maintained that efficiency, increased faster than the growth in revenue, and said that the statement, sometimes made that San Francisco had the poorest street car service in the country was not correct. In fact, he thought it had one of the best. He showed that, whereas before the consolidation it was the universal rule to pay 5 cents for every ride, under the present elaborate system of transfers the company averaged but 3.87 cents for each individual ride.

By a system of charts Black showed the great congestion of inbound travel or travel toward the ferry was between the hours of 7 and 8 a. m., and the greatest rush of outbound travel between 5 and 6 p. m., although between 4 and 5 p. m. the travel was almost as heavy. The street cars at the greatest period of activity moved 34,000 inbound passengers an hour and 41,000 outgoing passengers an hour.

Black held that, fewer rather than more cars on Market street would better accommodate the crowds, as the cars blocked each other if too numerous. The rule of the road as observed in New York would facilitate street-car travel. He could not say whether the pay-as-you-enter cars hastened or retarded transportation. He thought it was too soon to give a verdict. He was of the opinion that they caused no delay. He favored the longitudinal seats as being more convenient and was asked if they did not offer a chance to accommodate more strap-hangers. To this query Black responded in the negative.

Black quoted figures from 1902 to 1911 to show the development of the surface roads in this city. The total mileage operated this year will aggregate 22,000, 300, while Cleveland, with a larger population, had but 24,457,000 in 1909, and Buffalo but 20,000,000. Black was asked for the comparative figures in Los Angeles, but did not give them. He was asked why trailers were not used here, and replied that the grades would not permit. He was reminded that in Los Angeles trailers were used with electric brakes, and he replied that the cars would require special equipment for such an arrangement.

When someone dryly asked if four tracks on Market street as far as Geary street operated by electric cars would not relieve the congestion, Black replied that more business could be done on four than on two tracks.

To Walter Weller's question as to the intermediate franchise, as provided for in Senate constitutional amendment 49, Black gave his qualified approval.

Black was frequently applauded as he made certain statements and there was applause for his questioners as well, who pinned him rather closely at certain stages of the debate.

TEAMSTER IS INJURED WHEN TEAM RUNS AWAY

SAN FRANCISCO, AUG. 19.—William Morrison of 1015 Harrison street, a teamster for the board of public works, was dragged for a block by his runaway team at 9 o'clock tonight in the Potrero district. He received a badly crushed left leg and contusions and lacerations of the right leg, and was taken to the Potrero hospital.

PINK FEET PAT ALONG HOT ROAD

Miles Were Long for One-
Time Merry-makers to Walk
Barefooted.

If you were the man who invented "ducking" as a severe punishment and consigned only the most desperate cases of strife and disagreement to the pond to be settled and then along came a crowd of youthful merry-makers who had no fear of your pet punishment and willfully followed its workings, wouldn't it worry you? Wouldn't it keep you awake nights trying to think of a worse one?

Then, if you found out that these same young people, because of their lack of respect for your traditional and time-honored punishment, had to walk four miles barefooted and in the hot sun, now, honestly, wouldn't it make you smile a big, broad smile?

That's just what happened at Castle Crag farm, where the Sacramento river offers its coolest and clearest waters for the ducking school.

Miss Marie Louise Winslow and Miss Ruth Winslow, daughters of Mrs. Sarah Stetson Winslow; Miss Marie Russell, Mrs. Eugene Leut's daughter, Miss Gertrude O'Brien, household, Miss Marian Baker, Mrs. Wakefield Baker's daughter; Miss Evelyn Waller, Miss Helen Keeney and as many more of the buds who are to be presented to society this season, or next, with Corbet Moody, Joe Moody, Livingston Baker, Warren Allen, Laurence Waller and a half dozen youths made up the company which braved the water and set at naught the terrors of the time honored "ducking stool."

CAME WITHOUT WARNING.

The young people, under the chaperonage of Mrs. Wakefield Baker, set out from the Crag farm for a day's picnic up the river.

The horses tumbled before the young people did, and the latter went ahead. A slip and then a slide into the water by the first one and then another of the group led to the final decision to go in clothes and all. And in they went, up to their knees, and their waists, and next their shoulders. And it was all fine until they came out and started along the rest of their tramp. Then "slush, slush," sounded the water in their shoes as they walked through the dust of the trail.

The man with the last happy idea was numbered among the members of the party, and he advanced it at just this particular stage of the walk.

"Set the shoes in the road to dry and to show the women where we are, was the order given, and it was obeyed by the little army of merry-makers.

"We'll waste till the wagon comes," was the second suggestion. And wade they did.

Wading for an hour is fun, but wading half an hour after becomes tedious. All things come to him who waits, even up in the Castle Crag country, and so the wagon came in time. But it stopped not.

One little look at the road where the stack of shoes had stood told the story. A broad auto tire had passed over the pile, and the dozen or more pairs which had been proudly placed for a "sun dry" and a signal had been flattened and disfigured beyond wearing.

"And we have to walk all those four miles barefooted," wailed one of the maids, whose practical mind saw bare facts where a few moments before had been unthought of possibilities.

Over four miles of dust and rocks the group trudged back to Castle Crag. The "bathing costumes" were dry at any rate at the end of the four miles, but the little pink feet—

G. M. BOWERS, one of the independent department officials at Washington, who in his attack on Congress in the person of Representative E. W. Townsend of New Jersey, takes a big chance of losing his official head.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—G. M. Bowers has gone a step farther than some of the other department officials here. They have declared their independence of their superiors and look to Congress for protection.

Bowers has attacked Congress in the person of Representative E. W. Townsend of New Jersey. When a public official publicly charges a Congressman with "the deliberate purpose of concealing the real facts," and with permitting himself "to be made the tool of an unscrupulous manipulator of records and a dangerous besmircher of character," he takes a big chance of losing his official head.

This is what Commissioner of Fisheries Bowers did in a letter concerning Congressman Townsend, who is one of the committee investigating the slaughter of the seals.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF WIFE TO BATTLE FOR LIFE

Stirring Scenes Expected in Trial of Henry Clay Beattie in Richmond, Va.

MAKES UP DIFFERENCES HE HAD WITH FATHER

Has Counsel Who Has Been Very Successful in Court With All His Cases.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 19.—The trial of Henry Clay Beattie for the alleged murder of his young wife July 18 will begin Monday—a trial calling for the elucidation, the prosecuting officers say, of as mysterious a crime as the South has recently known.

While some of the facts in the case, it is asserted, point toward the defendant, it is admitted that certain essentials are lacking.

Lawyer Smith, Beattie's senior counsel, has a record as a prosecutor. As prosecutor for the commonwealth he conducted the state's case against the murder of a defendant and convicted most of them. On the other hand, he has defended forty-nine alleged murderers and only one was hanged. So that in defending Beattie, he appears in his one hundred and first trial where a capital crime is charged.

All differences between young Beattie and his father have been sunk now that the young man is to be put on trial for his life. With public sentiment so strong against young Beattie that the little jail of Chesterfield was regarded as unsafe for him and he was, therefore, brought to the Richmond jail. The elder Beattie is providing generously for his son's comfort and defense and proclaiming confidence in his innocence.

WANT "HOME JURY"

When the case is called in the little Chesterfield courthouse Monday morning the chief effort of the defense will be to get a home jury, that is, twelve jurors from Chesterfield County, for while Beattie, Sr., is not a native Southerner, being a transplanted Yankee, he is held in high regard in Manchester, where he had a general store, and in the towns and villages throughout the country.

If a home jury is secured the defense will feel more confident, but Chesterfield County has been so long shut up by the tragedy that it is doubtful if twelve competent jurors can be found there.

With occasional visits from his family, incessant cigarette smoking and his guitar, Beattie shows no signs of a breakdown on the eve of his trial for his life. He long ago ceased to answer questions regarding his case. He lets a grin serve for his answer to any and all inquiries.

BUSY TIMES IN FRUIT DISTRICTS

Eight-Hour Law Not Applicable to Cannery and Packing Establishments.

GRIDLEY, Aug. 19.—It is fortunate for the fruit industry that an exception was made in the eight-hour law so that workers in the perishable fruits may continue their labors for a longer time than eight hours each day. Otherwise tons of fruit coming to the Gridley cannery would have to be turned back on the owners, and the fruit-growing industry would be less profitable.

The force of several hundred women and girls and men boys at the cannery is now putting in long hours and drawing good wages, and the warehouse is filling with the succulent toothsome peaches that this section produces to such perfection. Thousands and thousands of cans of fruit go through the various processes of peeling, washing, sorting, syring, sealing and cooking each day. Dozens of local growers whose orchards have recently come in bearing are reaping the first fruits of their efforts and getting good prices. The fact that the run of the ordinary cannery is short makes all the employees willing and anxious to put in the long hours and make the big pay. Many a stocking is lined for the winter by the proceeds of the work at the cannery, and this institution cuts a big figure in the commercial life of the community. The payroll now amounts to several thousand dollars a week.

Many artists and builders of bungalows sold by THE TRIBUNE, to be invaluable for cheap, effective mural decorations. The materials utilized in preparing the same are such as to make them very durable. Dens and numerous decorated with these "mats" are always interesting and outdoor wall paper or linings. # Cardinal Merry Del Val in Line Of Succession to the Papal Tiara

CARDINAL MERRY DEL VAL, the Papal secretary, who, according to the general belief in Catholic circles, will succeed Pope Pius X.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 19.—It is the general belief in Catholic circles that Merry del Val, the papal secretary, will succeed Pope Pius X.

When the election of Cardinal Sarthe to be Pope took place in 1903, Merry del Val was the principal candidate for the succession. But Austria vetoed his candidacy and so his name was put aside. As soon as the present Pope had taken his seat he caused the vote power of the Catholic governments to be canceled and absolutely forbade any of the

GRAVEYARD SHIFT WANTS ITS TIPPLE

Miners Who Start Work at 11 P. M. Object to Saloons Closing at 10.

ALLEGHANY, Cal., Aug. 19.—A petition is being circulated asking that the board of supervisors of Sierra county extend the time limit of the closing of saloons from 10 p. m. until midnight. The movement was inaugurated by some of the miners of the district, they claiming that the prevailing ordinance is unfair to the saloon men and detrimental to the community.

Those active in the circulation of the petition are working independent of the saloon men. Within a year the license has been raised, and the saloon men also have to furnish bonds in the sum of $1000. Since July 1 last the saloons have been compelled to close from 10 p. m. until 5 a. m., and it is this latter feature which is deemed unfair.

The miners claim the privilege of being allowed the liberty to obtain a stimulant when going off or on the "graveyard shift," at 11 p. m., advocating the unique plea that the miner is subject to hardships for which alcoholic stimulants are a convenient and cheap remedy.

FATHER SUES FOR LOSS OF TWO OF SON'S TOES

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 19.—Suit has been brought by Caspar Metz of 128 Elmwood avenue, this city, on behalf of his 17-year-old son Frederick to recover $5000 damages from L. Bamberger & Co. of Newark for the loss of two and one-half toes from the boy's left foot. The father will also ask for $2000 damages for himself for the loss of his son's services.

The toes were lost in an accident in September of last year while Frederick Metz was in the employ of the concern. The suit is brought under the Employers' Liability Act of 1909. The act of the present year fixes the amount of damages for a great toe at 60 per cent of the injured person's wages for thirty weeks and for smaller toes at 50 per cent of the wages for ten weeks. As Frederick Metz's wages were $5 a week at the time, the existing law would fix his compensation at $62.50.

MISSING WOMAN NOT KNOWN HERE

Mrs. Nellie Henry Reported to San Francisco as Lost by Relative.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—William Henry of 370 Valencia street asked the police today to endeavor to locate Mrs. Nellie Henry, who lives at 963 Seventh street, Oakland, and who disappeared August 17 while en route to this city. Mrs. Henry is 55 years old, of medium height, slender build, with dark hair and blue eyes, and wore a black dress and a black hat when last seen.

Inquiry at 963 Seventh street last night elicited that no person by the name of Nellie Henry was known there or had ever lived on the premises, to the best knowledge of the present occupants. Neither was there any missing person from that address.

Free From Tuberculosis

Butter, like milk, may carry pathogenic germs. Golden Glow butter is free from same, because made from sweet pasteurized cream. We want the public to know we take more care in having our dairy products pure than any other creamery on the coast. Our butter is made only from pasteurized cream. # JEWELS GONE, BUT DR. HAZZARD SAYS NO

Fast Specialist Under Suspicion of Making Way With Patient's Valuables.

BRITISH CONSUL TO SIFT UGLY CHARGE

Aftermath of Death of English Girl in Sanatorium on Puget Sound.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 19.—AT-though Vice-Consul C. E. Lucian Agazziz has made repeated denials for the return of all the personal effects and belongings of Miss Clara Williamson, the English woman who died under the starvation specialist's treatment at Olalla, Kitsap county, jewelry, dresses and the like of a total valuation of $10000 are still missing. Agazziz charges that they are in Miss Hazzard's possession.

The list includes two brooches, one set in diamonds and sapphires, and the other set in a moonstone. These brooches were found by Miss Margaret Conway, the former nurse of the Williamson family, the day she removed Miss Dorothea Williamson from the Hazzard institute.

In the presence of two witnesses Miss Conway turned over the brooches to Rawlin Burfield to give to Dr. Hazzard, his mother, for safe keeping. Miss Conway and the two witnesses saw young Burfield give the two articles to his mother.

Today Agazziz received a letter from Karr and Gregory, attorneys for Dr. Hazzard, stating in behalf of the starvation physician that she never had possession of two brooches, has not seen them now and knows nothing of them. Miss Conway and the two witnesses are ready to testify that Miss Hazzard is telling a deliberate untruth when she denies knowledge or possession of them. Their combined value is $300. Altogether Dr. Hazzard seized possession of $6000 in jewelry, dresses and other personal belongings of the Williamsons.

SEWER PRISONER FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Crawls Into Channel and Some One Dropped Heavy Lid, Closing Him In.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Tenants in a row of houses in Washington street, Hoboken, complained to Jacob Van Twisk, the janitor, that they were being annoyed by sewer gas. Van Twisk set out to examine the connections with the trunking in the street.

Carrying a lantern, the janitor went down the manhole at the corner of Thirteenth street. As he started he asked a passerby to place a headlamp over the opening. He made his examination, but when he tried to get out he found the lid instead of the barrel the heavy iron cover of the manhole had been put in place.

For fifteen minutes Van Twisk tried to lift the cover, but the ladder on which he was perched was fastened to the wall and he could not get enough leverage for his shoulders. Then he tried to attract attention by banging with his knife and by calling for help. No one passed or no one heard him, and Van Twisk remembered that the cover of the manhole at Twelfth street did not so snugly.

The janitor crawled 300 feet through slime and mud to the other manhole. His recollection of how he met in the hole was better success at Twelfth street than he had at Thirteenth, and he made his escape by placing a ladder over the tunnel. At Thirteenth street he renewed his signals for assistance.

NOT PRACTICAL JOKE. After he had been in the well for half an hour, and having no other way out, he had lost consciousness, some one heard Van Twisk's tapping. He was rescued by a passerby who met him in the police heard his story they began an inquiry to satisfy themselves that some joker had not been responsible for his plight. The matter to the conclusion that Van Twisk's request to have the barrel put over the manhole had been misinterpreted.

Mrs. Hetty Green formerly occupied one of the houses of which Van Twisk has charge.

G. A. R. POST TO HOLD BABY SHOW

Award of Prizes Will Be Made According to Vote of Spectators.

The details of the monthly meeting of the G. A. R. Post No. 50, G. A. R. Hall, 407 Third street, Oakland, on Saturday evening, August 26, have been left entirely to the committee appointed to provide entertainment for the occasion, and the committee announces that the chief attraction will be a baby show, in which ladies of the W. R. C. Circle of the G. A. R. and Daughters of Veterans are invited to participate. With the invitation goes also an urgent request that the members of those organizations having babies eligible to the classes named, bring them and place them in line of favorable consideration for the several prizes offered.

There will be three classes for the consideration of the people passing upon the merits of the coming young patriots of the country, viz:

Class 1. Babies from two months to one year. Prizes for boys and prizes for girls.

Class 2. Babies from one year old to two years. Prizes for boys and prizes for girls.

Class 3. Babies from two years old to three years. Prizes for boys and prizes for girls.

All prizes will be determined by the votes of the people present, each person being entitled to cast as many votes as they choose at the price of a nickel a vote.

ON LONG VOYAGE TO BECOME BRIDE

New York Girl Goes to Chile All Alone to Marry Engineer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—"Love never minds distance nor considers difficulties" was the reply made by Miss Elizabeth M. Seaton of New Brighton, S. I., when asked about her forthcoming sixteen-day journey to Iquique, Chile, to marry Edward L. Hegeman, a civil engineer.

Miss Seaton is a school teacher of New Brighton, S. I. For three years she has been in correspondence with Mr. Hegeman, whom she met in the West Indies several years ago. At that time he was employed by the Westinghouse Electric Company of Pittsburgh. His parents live in Plainfield, N. J.

Miss Seaton sailed on the Royal Mail steamer Trent this morning for the little South American city Iquique, which lies on the coast of Chile. Her journey will be from here to Honolulu across the isthmus to Panama, thence by steamer to Iquique.

Miss Seaton, who is 24 years old, had no fears about making the long journey alone. Mr. and Mrs. John Seaton, her mother and father, were at the steamer with a host of friends to bid her farewell and Godspeed. Mr. Seaton is superintendent of the bureau of public buildings of the borough of Richmond.

SECOND MARRIAGE WITHIN ONE YEAR

Realty Dealer Across Bay to Wed Handsome Daughter of Pioneers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—The marriage of Miss Alice McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. McDonald, to Charles J. Cox, will mark the second wedding in the McDonald family within a year, Miss Beth McDonald having become Mrs. E. F. McDonald a few months ago. It will leave her one daughter, Katharine, in the handsome family home on Cole street.

Cox's fiancée is a striking beauty and a highly accomplished girl. She has planned to have her wedding a very simple one and will have only one attendant, her sister, Katharine, who will act as maid of honor.

The Coxes and the McDonalds are both the pioneer families of the state. F. A. McDonald is a retired capitalist. Cox is the son of C. J. Cox of Hol lister and is engaged in the real estate business in this city. The bridal couple will reside in town after the honeymoon.

The reception of the little people will be from 3:30 to 9:30 o'clock in the evening, after which other interesting features will follow. Entries of babies must be made by 12

COYLY SAYS THAT GEN. CUPID RAISES SHE WILL WED COL. GREEN

Hetty's Son Receives Proposal From Widow Said to Be Fair and Forty.

FEELS LONELY AND IS SEEKING A COMPANION

Rich Man Believes That World Is Getting to Be Nothing But Eligibles.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Col. E. H. Green today received a more or less coy invitation to propose marriage from a widow in London who acknowledges she is fair and forty, neglecting to say whether or not she qualifies for the third.

Mrs. Luella Cruthers is the name signed to the letter. She says, "You say you wish to be married for yourself alone. Well, I will marry you if you will ask me to, for yourself alone, as I think you must be, a dear, good man to make that promise to your mother and keep to it. I am sure you would make a nice husband."

"Well, now about myself: I am a widow, aged forty-three, and my dear husband died fourteen months ago, from an attack of appendicitis. He was taken from me so suddenly after seven years of happy married life and I feel so very lonely and miss him so, and so want some one to care for. I have no children, only brothers and a sister.

WANTS COMPANIONSHIP.

"I don't trouble about your wealth so much as for what your companionship and love would be to me, for I have a nice little home and a small dressmaking business which keeps me very comfortable. I am tall and fair and have a good figure."

The letter, enclosed in an envelope of robin's egg blue, was received by Col. Green, son of Mrs. Hetty Green, today. It was fastened with red wax, bearing the imprint of a smart seal.

Col. Green has begun to believe the world is the smallest kind of a place and that it is inhabited by almost no one else in all its four corners than beautiful women, tall and of good figure. The only difference between them is that some are blondes and others are dark.

BUTTE LABORERS PLAN McNAMARA BENEFIT PARADE

BUTTE, Aug. 19.—For the first time in two years Butte is going to have a parade on Labor Day and America's unions will be asked to come and join in the line. This was decided on at last evening's meeting of the Silver Bow Trades and Labor Council.

A committee was appointed to make the arrangements and issue the invitations. On that day will be sold 10,000 McNamara buttons to help swell the contributions from the local unions to the McNamara defense fund. A committee was appointed last evening to have the buttons manufactured.

PIONEER WOMAN OF PETALUMA IS DEAD

PETALUMA, Aug. 19.—Augusta Maria Magdalena Stehn Reinholdt died in Petaluma last night after an illness of a year. She was born in Oldesloe, Germany, and came to California when quite young. She married eight years ago William Reinholdt. Surviving her are three sisters, Mrs. Henry Orth, Mrs. R. Hennelgrass of San Francisco and Maria Benson, and a brother, Henry Stehn, of Germany. The funeral will take place in Cypress Hill cemetery tomorrow.

REALTY MAN IN FAMILY TANGLE

Seattle Broker's Divorce From Insane Wife Attacked and Property Attached.

SEATTLE, Aug. 19.—That Philip M. Rutledge, formerly of Seattle and now a successful realty dealer with offices in the Provident building in Tacoma, is in reality Moslem L. Lipson of Boston, was the declaration of Attorney Philip Tworoger to Judge H. A. P. Myers in the superior court this morning, in presenting a petition to vacate a decree obtained by him here in 1908, divorcing him from Mamie Lipson, then in a Boston insane asylum.

Tworoger said that Rutledge, who is in Tacoma, admits his identity, but will fight the case in the ground that his divorce was valid.

The Seattle lawyer followed up his petition to vacate this morning by obtaining an order temporarily tying up all of Lipson's property in King and Pierce counties and money in Seattle and Tacoma banks. Lipson is also cited to show cause before Judge John P. Main on September 1 why he should not be compelled to pay Mrs. Lipson alimony for the support of herself and his children, now in Boston.

Advices from Boston say that Lipson left there in 1907. In that year Rutledge appeared here.

While in this city he obtained in the King county superior court a divorce from Mamie Lipson, alleging desertion. Lipson used his own name and stated in an affidavit that he mailed a copy of the summons and complaints to his wife's last known Boston address.

Tworoger's certified papers from that city show that Mrs. Lipson was then in an insane asylum, that Lipson knew the name and address of her guardian, and that he frequently communicated with his children through his brother.

On this alleged false affidavit Tworoger seeks to set aside the King county decree.

Lipson, or rather Rutledge, was one of the parties to a "romantic" marriage in the Archbold hotel last Easter Monday, when he made Miss Florence A. Vogel, an Oakland, an actress, Mrs. Rutledge.

PETITION FOR CANYON ROAD

Endorsement of Niles Chamber of Commerce Is Sought.

NILES, Aug. 19.—The Niles Chamber of Commerce met yesterday and discussed the lack of interest shown by some of the residents toward the clean-up movement.

The members want to have the debris as well as garbage taken care of, and find that it is a hard thing to accomplish without the co-operation of the people.

A petition was brought from the upper end of the county asking that the document, which bore several hundred signatures, receive the endorsement of the Niles Chamber of Commerce before being presented to the supervisors next Monday. The petition asks for a permanent road through the Niles canyon, and wants an appropriation made for that purpose.

A committee of three was appointed to appear before the Board of Supervisors and lend its aid to the project.

SERIOUSLY INJURED IN TRAIN ACCIDENT

A narrow escape from death yesterday was the lot of George Kruger, a well-known pianist, who was struck by a Key Route train and rendered unconscious. His right arm is badly hurt and it is thought that he may lose it. The accident occurred at Twelfth and Washington streets, after Kruger had left a street car and stepped in front of the train.

YOUTH TO ENTER STATE UNIVERSITY WHERE WARM RECEPTION AWAITS HIM.

BERKELEY, Aug. 19.—Benjamin Wade Wheeler, 18-year-old son of President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California, has registered as a member of the class of 1915. Already the "soph" are determined to "lay" for the new member of the baby class and indications point to some trying times ahead for the entrant.

Young Wheeler, who received his preparatory education largely from the schools abroad, has shown that he has something of his father's learning, for he vigorously attacked all the entrance examinations and entered college with flying colors.

Young Wheeler has registered for the classic course, that of the college of letters, pursuing the course which Dr. Wheeler took at Brown university. He will specialize on Greek, a knowledge of which has made President Wheeler eminent in the field of classical lore.

The sophomores are making special preparations to make the freshman year of Wheeler more than of ordinary interest, and somewhat different from that of the baby class.

One of the first duties will be to assist in the hand selling process of painting the big "C" on charter hill.

When Wheeler was a student at the Berkeley high school he was assisted down the hill on the building and forced to meditate for almost a day, surrounded by much darkness and plenty of coal.

The "soph" have arranged to make his entrance on the campus here as entertaining for him.

SAN MATEO FERRY PROJECT OUTLINED

Trade and Development Board Committees Decide to Continue Investigation.

SAN MATEO, Aug. 19.—The ferry committee of the San Mateo County Trade and Development Board, composed of the San Mateo County Development Association held a joint meeting in the San Mateo city hall this afternoon to consider the feasibility of establishing a ferry service between Coyote point and San Francisco.

Captain John Barneson has offered the ferryboat Corcoran for the use of the proposed system and Captain Haary L. Jones of the United States Steamer Captain Barrett has put a plan before the development board for the formation of a company to own and operate a ferry service.

Those who attended the meeting today were:

Captain H. N. Royden, William H. Brown, G. J. McGregor, J. M. Custer and W. J. Martin, of the development association; Charles N. Kinkbride, C. M. Morse, Captain John Barneson, Edward H. Hoag and J. H. Brownfield, of the Board of Trade and Development; L. E. Fuller, of the San Mateo County Development Association.

JULIAN ROSENBERG COMMITS SUICIDE

Lawyer Suffers Breakdown and Follows Father to Grave.

HEALDSBURG, Aug. 19.—Attorney Julian F. Rosenberg, son of the late Wolf Rosenberg, who died suddenly in San Francisco recently, committed suicide here today while suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Rosenberg had been sleeping in a tent with a younger brother. This morning he arose and went to his room in the house while breakfast was being prepared.

When he failed to appear his brother, Theodore, went to call him and found him on the floor with blood pouring from three knife wounds in the breast and his throat cut from ear to ear. Dr. J. W. Condit was called, but Rosenberg died shortly after the arrival of the physician.

A note found in his room, which had been written by Rosenberg read: "It is God's will that I should die."

RIVER HARNESSSED TO LIGHT CITIES

Great Dam Across Mississippi to Generate 200,000 Horsepower of Electricity.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19.—The great dam across the Mississippi river from Keokuk, Iowa, to Hamilton, Ill., for the Mississippi River Power Company soon will be completed and work now is in progress on the construction of the electric transmission lines into St. Louis. These will be built through Hamilton and Quincy, Ill., to Alton, Ill., where they will cross the Mississippi river by means of huge steel towers.

St. Louis will be the first large city in the country to be supplied by power from a water power plant. As soon as the transmission lines into this city are completed other lines will be built into St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn., and Chicago. Intermediary smaller cities also will be supplied with electric current.

The total capacity of the huge plant will be 200,000 horsepower.

LATIN-AMERICA INVITED TO FAIR

House Decides That San Diego Must Provide $2,000,000 for Its Show.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The House passed a resolution today authorizing the President to invite Mexico and the republics of Central and South America to participate in the Panama-California Exposition at San Diego, Cal., in 1915. The exposition was described as a branch of the Panama canal celebration to be held at San Francisco.

Republican Leader Mann's amendments providing that the invitation shall not be extended until the president is satisfied that a suitable site has been selected and not less than $2,000,000 has been raised, were incorporated in the resolution.

MILLION TONS OF ROCK TORN AWAY BY BLAST

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 19.—Four hundred thousand pounds of blasting powder, discharged in two electrically-fired shots, tore more than 1,000,000 tons of rock from the face of a high cliff overlooking the Snake river, south of Spokane, and made possible the saving of sixty miles of road construction on the third division of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Company's system, between Spokane and Ayr Junction. The two shots cost $10,000.

F. L. Pittman, chief engineer of the division, said on returning to Spokane that the work was successful in every way, though the last shot was more in the nature of a test. The blast hurled the rock with greater velocity than the roadbed in a broken condition. However, the rock was well broken and is easy to handle. Meanwhile, freight and passenger trains will be routed over other lines. One hundred men were at work on the roadbed.

GARDEN FETE HELD FOR MENLO CHURCH

MENLO PARK, Aug. 19.—Trinity Episcopal Church at Menlo is the beneficiary for the garden fete held today at "Linden Towers," the famous Flood mansion.

Mrs. Flood had charge of the entertainment that attracted all Hillsborough and Menlo society.

Assisting at the various "attractions" were Mrs. Augustus Taylor, Mrs. Fred McNear, Mrs. Richard Girvin, Miss Girvin, Mrs. Mary Byrne, Mrs. E. J. Pringle, Mrs. Latham McNeill, Mrs. Will Taylor, Mrs. J. B. Corvill, Mrs. D. S. Dorn, Mrs. Washington Dodge, Mrs. Silas Palmer, Mrs. Edward Shortridge, Miss Marion Zelle, Miss Florence Hopkins and others.

Heretofore the fete has been held in the Edward Hopkins' grounds.

Comfort Rather Than Fads In Tuxedo Women's Club

MISS ADELAIDE SPOFFORD, who is one of the most prominent members of the fashionable Tuxedo Colony and member of the Colony Club.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Miss Adelaide Spofford is a member of the Tuxedo colony, one of the most fashionable society resorts on the Atlantic coast. She also has a home in New York, where she is a member of the Colony Club, the famous club for women of which Mrs. J. Borden Harman is the head.

The Colony Club is unique among women's organizations, resembling as it does a man's club, and being devoted to the comfort and entertainment of its members, rather than to literary pursuits. The club house is one of the handsomest in the city, has a ballroom, dining parlor and in fact all the conveniences of men's clubs.

DRY WINE YIELD NOT PROMISING

Long Stretch of Cold Weather Retards Proper Development of Grapes.

The wine crop in the dry wine district, which comprises the bay counties, Alameda, Napa, Santa Clara, Contra Costa and Santa Cruz, will be 40 per cent less than the average yield, according to Theodore Gier. "This is caused," he says, "by the long stretch of cold weather which has endured throughout the summer. There has not been enough heat to set the wine in the grapes. At the time when the grapes were in bloom the weather was also very unfavorable for the best wine results and we anticipate as a result a shortage which will amount to more than one-third less than last year's yield."

"GRANDPA" ROOSEVELT
OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, from the steps of the County Clerk's office last night, beamed with pleasure as he acknowledged the plaudits of a great throng of his fellow townsmen and expressed his happiness at being a grandfather. The occasion was the festival of the Italian-American Society, of which the Colonel is honorary president.

VINEYARD SELLS FOR LARGE SUM

La Favorita Estate and Present Crop, Fresno County, Brings $150,000.

FRESNO, Aug. 19.—One of the largest cash deals in real estate ever made here was consummated when A. W. Lisenby and Karl Emilzian of this city purchased from Captain W. A. Neylles the place known as La Favorita vineyard for the sum of $150,000. The land comprises 480 acres of which 320 is in vineyard and 160 in alfalfa. The present crop goes with the place. The value of this crop is estimated at $30,000. The deal was made through William Kahriman of this city. The land in question is on White's Bridge road, nearly opposite the Kearney estate. Lisenby, one of the new owners, is cashier and manager of the Peoples Savings Bank of this city, and Emilzian is a vineyard owner whose holdings are already large.

WOMEN TO PLAY PART AT KANSAS CITY SESSION

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 19.—Women are to have an important part in the National Conservation Congress at Kansas City, next month. Heretofore the congress has been almost exclusively for men, so far as delegates and the reading of papers were concerned. This year the farm and farm life will be discussed from every phase, and that includes the farmer's wife. The directors of the domestic science departments in the various agricultural colleges have been invited either to read papers or as delegates. The subjects assigned them will pertain to the country school, the country church, social life on the farm, the community club, the community library and the farmer's wife.

CONGREGATIONAL SERVICES.
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Rev. E. L. Waltz, pastor, will speak at Green Street Congregational Church, corner of Green and Stockton streets, tomorrow (Sunday), the subject for the morning service being "Going From God," for evening service, "Doom." The public is invited.

YOUR GRAY HAIRS QUICKLY VANISH

A Harmless Remedy, Made From Garden Sage, Restores Color to Gray Hair.

A feeling of sadness accompanies the discovery of the first gray hairs, which, unfortunately, are looked upon as heralds of advancing age. Gray hairs, however, are not always an indication of advancing age, for many people have gray hairs quite early in life. Of course, it is unnatural and indicates that there is something wrong with the individual, and that Nature needs assistance in correcting the trouble. The same is true of hair that is constantly falling out and becoming thinner every day. If everything is right with Nature, the hair, even in comparatively elderly people, should be long, thick and glossy, without even a streak of gray.

The ideal assistant to Nature in restoring and preserving the hair is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a clean and wholesome dressing for daily use. It not only removes dandruff, but strengthens weak, thin, and falling hair and promotes its growth. A few applications will restore faded or gray hair to its natural color.

This preparation is offered to the public at 50 cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by The Owl Drug Co., 13th and Broadway, 10th and Washington, 15th and San Pablo.

CAUGHT WEeping FOR HIS LIVING

Washington Youth Makes Good Living Preying Upon Members of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Caught "weeping for a living," Joseph Denma, nine years old, was taken before the Juvenile Court and admitted he had made a practice of "loitering around the capital and working on the sympathies of members of Congress by crying and telling hard luck stories in an effort to sell chewing gum. The boy told the judge that he made good money by crying for the benefit of soft-hearted members of Congress. Few of the Senators or Representatives bought his gum, he declared, but many hand him money. "My folks make me leave the house early in the morning and don't let me come back till I've made enough to buy my breakfast," was the unusual story told.

WHEAT DAMAGED BY BLACK RUST

Prices Continue to Fluctuate During Buying and Selling in Chicago Pit.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The market for wheat today was strong and weak, turning, changing frequently and without cause from the most part beyond the fluctuation of the order in the pit, as those to buy or sell preponderated for the moment. Black rust has set its baneful mark on the spring wheat and the tale was told in the reports today from the northwest, giving them miserably small threshing returns, and there being favorable, but the grain dealer was even passably fair. Weight of the grain was so light as to place much of it in the "lighter" class. Canadian reports of the growing crop were very optimistic, the weather being favorable, but the grain dealer was even passably fair. ## PUZZLE OF WALL STREET IS UNION PACIFIC STOCK

Decline of 25 Points and the Sales of 2,000,000 Shares Make It Enigma of Brokers

(By RALPH EMERSON.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Resistance to liquidation and to continuous bear attacks on the market have been shown this week, although many stocks have sold at the lowest prices of the year and even lower than in the 1910 break. The Union Pacific stock, which has been dropping down of the average price which so discouraged and disconcerted Wall Street.

On Monday there was a rally of 1 1/2 points, which was twice the size of that of the Monday previous. On Thursday and Friday again there were advances following closely after pressure, under which "low levels" were made. Obviously stocks had reached a point where their intrinsic values were appealing to investors, and also where the banking interests were willing to, and perhaps felt the necessity of giving support.

PUZZLE OF UNION PACIFIC.

The enigma of the market has been Union Pacific, which did not show any recovery until it had a decline of 25 points. It remains to be told yet who has been so much with the stock. From 1912 to 1917, over 2,000,000 shares were dealt in, representing two-thirds of the outstanding amount. Official cognizance of the disturbance in it has been taken and a statement was issued by President Lovett, claiming that there were no dispositions in its board of directors and that the question of changing the dividend rate had not been discussed. While this was not explicit enough for Wall Street, which wanted to place construction on the statement which it did not justify, it undoubtedly satisfied the 20,000 stockholders in the property who are mainly interested in maintenance of the dividend rate.

The labor situation here and abroad has added to the complication of the situation. So far nothing acute has developed in this country, and it is hardly probable that there will be a contest this year. If labor makes strong demands it will meet with the first real opposition coming to it from the railroad in the last decade.

BUSINESS IMPROVING.

The business end of the situation continues to show improvement. That is only natural. Ninety millions of people have to be fed and clothed, consequently there must be a very considerable volume of trade with the opening of each season, and the autumn is always the most important season of the year. At the present time the south is making the best show of trade enlargement, which is quite logical under existing cotton crop prospects. Heat and drought in the southwest were relieved near the week-end by cooler weather and rain. Some damage has undoubtedly been done, but conservative traders estimate that deterioration will not extend beyond the ten-year average decline in cotton conditions of 6 per cent. With the increased acreage and superior cultivation

TAFT TO SPEAK BEFORE MINERS

John Hays Hammond, James J. Hill and Secretary Fisher Will Also Talk.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—President Taft, John Hays Hammond, J. J. Hill and Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher, will be principal speakers at the fourteenth annual meeting of the American Mining Congress to be held here September 26, 27, 28 and 29, according to plans made at a meeting of the executive committee last night.

"The congress is a practical organization devoted to the economic, administrative and commercial, rather than technical phases of mining," said J. F. Calbreath, Jr., of Denver, secretary of the organization. It is expected there will be 1500 members of the organization present and about 1000 alternate delegates and visitors to attend the opening of the United States naval training station, near North Chicago and will devote one day here to the convention, according to announcement.

GRAPE SHEDS AT LODI MUST BE ENLARGED

LODI, Aug. 19.—Owing to the increase of business over earlier expectations, the San Joaquin County Grape Growers' Association is compelled to again enlarge the shed at Lodi. Early in the season it was thought that an extension 24x110 feet would give sufficient room to handle the Lodi business, but greatly on account of the pre-cooling facilities many more growers have assured the association of their patronage than was hoped for.

OF NEW DRINK CURE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Charles S. Fee of the Southern Pacific, coming back from the Orient, makes the old cry that San Francisco is doing nothing to win the commerce of the Pacific. Of course not. We haven't been brought up to it. Did it ever occur to you that of all the great maritime cities of the world San Francisco is the only one that did not grow up from a fishing village? If you look at this city's history you will at once see that we do not naturally look to the sea for fortune.

San Francisco grew up as a mining town. It always has looked to the land for business and fortune. Every other maritime city naturally turned to the sea. They were brought up on it and to it. They extended operations in natural growth. But San Francisco has no natural maritime instincts. It must force its sea commerce or never get it. Remember that always when men like Fee come back and talk.

Here's a New One on the Habit

Who do you suppose has sprung the most recent cure for the drink habit? Who do you think seems to be inclined to take the place of Carrie Nation in driving the red-eyed Demon Rum from our midst?

Well, you wouldn't guess it in a year. You'd think of Secretary McCoy of the Young Men's Christian Association; or Rolla V. Watt, who is good all the time; or Mrs. Lovell White, whose photographs are ever young—but it is none of these.

No, my dear readers, the person who has achieved the new Keeley cure is none other than our ever-present friend, Ned Greenway, social arbiter, club man, wine merchant. It's strange, but true. Says he:

"If you want to cure the liquor habit, just keep a piece of orange peel in your mouth. Go right on drinking. Don't try to stop at all—but cling to a bit of orange peel. In a very short time you'll not want to drink. Your desire will be gone. The cure will be complete. It must be the citric acid."

It Has Spread to London Town

Do you remember what a time we had—and it doesn't seem so very long ago—in getting our women to take off their hats in the theater. The late Dr. Rotanzi made a great fame and stirred a great fuss with his ordinance when he was Supervisor, forcing the women to sit bareheaded in all places of amusement.

It is easy to recall how people predicted that the miracle never could be accomplished. Now we find the thing so generally accepted that we hardly remember that feminine head creations were once a great and accursed nuisance.

And now I find that the idea has spread to London town. On a play-bill of the famous Empire Theater—a bill brought back by the U. of C. Glee Club—I read this:

"The management earnestly trusts that ladies will very kindly remove their hats (if so desired) and thus add to the comfort of all."

Surely the Paris of America is setting some safe and sane fashions. But here is one the boys brought back from the German steamer:

The Man Whose Place Can't Be Filled

The recent death of Peter Robertson, veteran dramatic critic who was so long with the Chronicle, has called to the minds of some oldsters that there were dramatic critics even before Robertson.

Robertson's predecessor as dramatic critic on the Chronicle was Rinaldo Rinaldini Livingstone—a ventriloquist of great ability, and a writer of ease and conscientiousness. But Livingstone has long since left the domain of the drama for the marts of trade. For a quarter of a century—or thereabouts—he has been the "we quote," the Commercial Editor of the Examiner. Some months ago he took one of his infrequent vacations and Dent H. Robert, the publisher of the paper, said on that occasion:

"Well, I've been connected with newspapers all my life, and I thought it was impossible that there should be a place on a paper that one man couldn't fill about as well as another. But when Livingstone takes a week off I'm hanged if anybody can be found to take his place. He's unique."

Men Who Organize Fortunes

Roy M. Pike has recently been visiting his friends in San Francisco and has been warmly welcomed, particularly at "The Family," his much-loved club. Roy is just putting over the deal for the union depot in Cincinnati, and will make a fine clean-up. But what I started out to tell about was his brother Charles.

Charles Pike was handling iron and steel in this city and bucking the trust. He wasn't making money or headway. One evening in a drug store he bought a package of chewing gum, and an idea came to him. "Is this good gum?" he asked the druggist.

THE KNAVE

MAKES FORTUNE
BY SELLING GUM

"Yes, fine!"

"Sell much of it?"

"Um—no; it isn't much advertised."

Pike wrote on and got the California coast agency for the gum. He started an advertising campaign on new lines and soon was selling all the gum that could be shipped to him. Then he went east and took hold of the gum company's stock. He introduced his advertising methods and incidentally got hold of a big block of the stock that began to boost in price.

Well, the other day the gum trust had to buy out Pike and his associates. His check was written for $750,000 net. And that is doing fairly well for a man who, only a few years ago, was flat broke in the iron and steel business and made his fortune out of an inspiration.

Just the Difference of a Syllable

The other night Watt Brown, the hotel man on the Examiner, was making his rounds and had reached the Manx. At that hostelry he found some visiting printers who had made a mistake, and who wanted to get to the Hotel Argonaut on Fourth street. The hotel clerk was trying to give them directions, but they didn't know the street.

"I'll show you the way," said Brown kindly. "I'm going to the Argonaut myself."

"But who are you?" asked the strangers.

"I'm a reporter."

Then they went along and in time Brown got them to the hotel of their desire. At the Argonaut was a bewildered group who wanted to get to the Hotel Manx.

"Why," said a gentleman of the first company, fumbling for a tip; "here's a man who will show you to the Manx. He's the porter there."

Another Lost Opportunity

One of the great painters of our country—a painter whose works are eagerly sought after in London and New York—is Charles Rollo Peters, who paints better moonlights than any other man living. Like all artists, from the great James McNeill Whistler down, Peters has no knowledge of how to save money. Though he sells his paintings right and left he has periods when some extra expense catches him and leaves him flat broke.

Well, one of those periods recently trapped him. The great painter was hard up and out here in California, where paintings do not bring London and New York prices. He had with him a number of notable canvases, and when the pinch came he threw them on the market for ridiculously low prices. But very few of us had sense enough to take advantage of the offer. The paintings did not go off like hotcakes even at the bargain-counter prices.

Then, one day this week, came the word that John Hays Hammond had bought all the paintings Peters had left in New York—and at whopping big prices. A great fat check came on to bind the bargain. At once the pictures offered here were withdrawn. And now a lot of men are kicking themselves that they didn't buy when they had a chance, and it probably will be a long day before Peters is down on his luck again.

A Fine Old Authority

As I intimated last week, when John T. Gaffey of San Pedro gave the old bell to the Bohemian Club to ring in the big grove on the Russian river the finest kind of a history went with the bell. Ned Hamilton read that contribution to western literature in a sonorous, heart-felling voice, and there never was so wondrous a tale of miracles, adventures and accidents.

Perhaps there was a lurking suspicion here and there that between Gaffey, Hamilton and Justice Fred Henshaw some of those miracles, adventures and accidents had been imported from the shadowy realms of the imagination. In any event a skeptical, elderly Bohemian approached Gaffey the next day and said:

"Mr. Gaffey, I haven't the honor of your acquaintance, but I was much impressed by the history of our great bell. May I ask you where you secured your data for the story that Hamilton read to us last night?"

"Why, I'm delighted to tell you," answered Gaffey promptly.

"Most of my data were secured from that eminent archaeologist of Hermosillo, Professor Dolores Fuertes de la Bariga."

"Thank you," said the Doubting Thomas, and went his way convinced and satisfied.

Now "Dolores Fuertes de la Bariga," being translated, means "Strong pains in the belly"; and Gaffey's "authority" was none other than Professor Belly-Ache.

Fight for Mayor.

The two principle candidates for mayor of this city—P. H. McCarthy and James Rolph Jr.—both got away on the campaign course to good starts during the week just closed. Opening mass meetings were held by these candidates and both of the gatherings were most satisfactory to those promoting them.

Rolph's try-out meeting, held in the Mission, his home district, is voted the largest meeting that section ever had. It was a sympathetic gathering and a sort of heart-to-heart talk was had between the candidate and his auditors, the latter asking questions and otherwise contributing to the good will of the occasion.

The attendance at the McCarthy meeting last Tuesday evening in the Dreamland Rink was the largest ever packed into that auditorium. There was a large overflow meeting and the zeal of the auditors was indicated in the fact that hundreds, even thousands, both inside and outside the building stood from 8 to 11:30 o'clock in patient enthusiasm until the last speaker had presented his claims to political preferment at the hands of his fellow electors.

The McCarthy political organization, or machine, is the most extensive and complete ever had in San Francisco by any party. Those familiar with New York's great political machine and with that in this city, of which the mayor is the head, tell me that in matter of detail the latter is far more complete than is Tammany.

Here the McCarthy organization has a central organization from which radiate district and precinct organizations, the former having headquarters fully equipped for campaign purposes. In each precinct there are three "Captains" who report to the district and central organizations. These captains are on call both by mail and telephone so that they may be assembled at brief notice, as they frequently are, at main headquarters for instructions.

Perfect Organization.

A card system used shows the politics of citizens of the districts and their attitude or expressions toward the candidate of the Union Labor party for mayor. Changes of the political status of electors are also duly reported and recorded.

The perfection of the detail of this organization is conceded by its opponents. The essential question, which can only be solved at the polls, is its effectiveness—its ability to get citizens to cast their ballot for the candidates this machine represents.

Tammany Hall has its off years as well as those of success and the test of McCarthy's organizations will come in the results at the primary election on September 26th.

Rolph's campaign consists in the main of a hand-shaking canvass by day among the men in the foundries, mills, factories and other places employing large bodies of workmen. At night he addresses district meetings. As a mixer and gladhand artist he is a success playing the stunt of "Plain Jim Rolph" with facility and ease as though well accustomed to the role.

His district meetings are well attended, all of them to date having overflows, generally as large as those accommodated in the halls. While not an orator he can make a plain and direct statement and gives the impression of sincerity. Since announcing his campaign platform he has confined his stump utterances to promises to build up a progressive San Francisco, if elected, and to put the city's house in order for the Panama-Pacific Exposition and the rush of immigration that will follow the opening of the Panama canal.

Separating Candidates.

Some difficulty is being experienced by the campaign managers in arranging public meetings so that the candidates of the various factions, wings and interests may not clash in their utterances on the platform. Rolph has been indorsed by the Republican and Democratic local parties and the Good Government League. These organizations have made up the rest of their tickets of candidates upon some of whom they agree and others upon which they do not. The Municipal Conference of 1911 indorsed Rolph and a board of eighteen supervisors, only a part of whom have been accepted by the other organizations. Thus far a clash has been avoided by giving Rolph the right of way, on his arrival at a meeting, the other candidates either preceding or following him on the stump.

The almost mob of candidates for supervisor, and especially those indorsed by the various organizations, have thus far failed to give utterance to anything new in the line of platitudes. The phrases used are a revival of the same old stock, worn threadbare years ago.

The candidates of the so-called Municipal Conference, put forward for the office of supervisor, judging from their platform utterances, are seeking election mainly, if not solely, for the purpose of having the city purchase the property of the Spring Valley

Water company at a price to be fixed by that corporation. That any citizen should not favor the acquisition of that public utility at a figure that will be extremely satisfactory to both its bond and stockholders seems to be regarded in the light of treason by these specially selected candidates guaranteed by the Municipal Conference, and the interest it was organized to represent under the guise of municipal purification and reform. To those not otherwise informed as to the main reason for the existence of the Municipal Conference the election of a board of supervisors pledged to the purchase of Spring Valley would appear to be its only excuse.

These candidates for supervisor have graciously informed the public, from the rostrum, that Spring Valley will, of course, fix a higher figure than before when its price was $35,000,000. The generosity of these, as yet not elected city fathers, in informing the taxpayers as to what Spring Valley will do when they become supervisors certainly is frank if not commendable. Ingenious job chasers these—or are they otherwise?

Ben Fehnermann's Coup.

Ben Fehnermann is disconsolate. To those few benighted citizens who are not informed it may be stated that Fehnermann is the impresario of the P. H. McCarthy campaign for mayor. The cause of Ben's gloom is that his coup de campaign went awry. Fehnermann was active and enthusiastic in arranging McCarthy's opening mass meeting at the Dreamland Rink last Tuesday and it is but fair to the managers to say that the affair was a political hummer.

Ben had arranged for a piece of resistance that he hoped would be the coup de grace of the enemy James Rolph Jr. Thirty young and, of course, beautiful ladies, were to appear on the platform robed in white and bearing handsome silk flags. They were to make their entrance at the moment when the audience was most enthusiastic in its applause of P. H. McCarthy. Then they were to sing a patriotic song, wave their flags, and, aided by the band, stimulate the demonstration to a pitch that would arouse the whole audience to a supreme tension. Then the ladies were to march up and down and around the aisles of the big auditorium, the audience joining in the parade and the frenzy sustained for at least thirty minutes.

Fehnermann had in mind the demonstration at Chicago three years ago when during the National convention the delegates and visitors cheered for Taft for forty-five minutes. He also recalled the scenes at the Democratic National convention in Denver, when these scenes were repeated and extended for a period of one hour. Ben, in his zeal, would emulate if not exceed these demonstrations of political fervor.

It is told in political avenues that Ben even cautiously superintended the designing of the white robes by the modistes, and himself chose the silk flags that were to be waved to the patriotic air and aid in inspiring the audience to greater effort at applause.

The Lady General Ducked.

The ladies in white arrived as per program and marched upon the platform waving their beautiful flags. It was a pretty sight, indeed, these ladies and the flags. The audience had been cheering wildly for two minutes or more. They discontinued their applause to admire the ladies and the flags.

The bevy of charming women stood still for a minute or more until Andy Gallagher, the labor leader who was not in on this coup, suggested that they having marched up the hill might march down again, as did the army of the French general. The ladies obeyed the instruction and retired waving their flags while Fehnermann stood in amazement and chagrin at one side of the pavilion. His coup had flown the coop.

It all came about in this way: The lady leader of the ladies in white did not put in appearance at the meeting and consequently the Fehnermann squad was without a general to issue the commands and lead the charge in what was to be a famous coup de grace. No one but Ben and his lady general knew of the carefully laid plans of attack, hence the fiasco. But the meeting went off with eclat and was a great success even without its piece de resistance. Fehnermann, however, is recovering from his keen disappointment and may revive his political masterpiece at a future meeting.

In the meantime the Union Labor party, which is pledged to woman's suffrage, has suffered a relapse in that cause, or at least the leaders of the party, who have become familiar with the fate that befel Ben's army because of its general's failure to show up on the field of battle, have lost their heretofore keen interest in securing votes for women. Fehnermann refuses to commit himself on that issue because of a lack of words with which to adequately express his sentiments.

COLUMBUS DAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Committees Preparing Grand Celebration, With Queen Ruling People.

A meeting will be held Monday night in the offices of State Senator John W. Stetson in the Oakland Bank of Savings building by the general committee of arrangements to appoint additional committees to participate in the Columbus day celebration to be given October 12, among the committees to be appointed are the following: Executive, finance, publicity, literary, pageant, regatta, closing, public decoration, parade, reception, invitation and transportation. Several hundred men will take an active part in this preliminary work.

Strong efforts will be made by the closing committee to persuade the business men to give their employees a holiday during the hours of the program. If the stores close it is believed that with the active part taken by many of the leading social organizations and prominent men of Oakland the holiday will be the greatest ever given in Oakland and more than 100,000 persons are expected to witness the exercises. Special invitations will be issued to the principal cities in the central part of the state to participate.

MUSICAL FEATURES

A feature will be the musical program and more than fifty bands and orchestras from as many societies will take part in the parade to be held in the morning and the musical and literary exercises at Adams Point. Another feature will be the singing of patriotic songs by a large chorus of school children.

The contest for the choosing of a queen, who as Queen Isabella will be ruler of the great land and water carnival, will be inaugurated in a short time and a large number of candidates will be entered for the honor. In addition to the queen, a certain Columbus, who is to be crowned upon his return from America, she will have a prominent part in the parade and will occupy a beautifully decorated float.

Dr. G. Ghiglietti, treasurer of the general committee of arrangements, has received word that the eight Italian societies of Sacramento will attend in a body. It is expected that more than fifty Italian organizations from all sections of the state will take part.

WOMAN DECLARED ALIEN, TO FIGHT

Mrs. Black, Wife of Canadian, Protests When Ballot Is Refused Her.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 19.—Judge Frank H. Rudkin, sitting in the United States District Court for Eastern Washington in Spokane, will be called on to pass upon several legal problems of international importance at the present session when counsel for Mrs. Maude E. Black, wife of James H. Black, a stone mason, living at 1716 East Marietta avenue, presents an application for a writ of mandamus to force the clerk to issue naturalization papers for the woman.

Mrs. Black has been declared an alien, though she was born and raised in the United States and has never set foot on foreign soil, inasmuch as she is coming a British subject by marrying a native of Canada in the United States several years ago. The district clerk holds that she cannot be restored to citizenship until her husband swears allegiance to the United States. This, Mrs. Black declared with emphasis, she will not permit her husband to do.

"I was born in the town of Weyauwega, Waupaca county, Wis., 38 years ago, and my forbears fought in the revolutionary and civil wars," Mrs. Black said. "My people have been American citizens for more than 135 years and yet I am classed as an alien. I have never stepped outside of the United States, but the clerk of the federal court declares I cannot vote until my husband becomes an American citizen. I did not know I had married away my legal rights."

"I was told at a recent city election that I could not vote though the State law of Washington gives the ballot to all women of legal age. The clerk of the court was challenged at the polls and the clerk very promptly declined to hand me a ballot. I have now engaged counsel to receive my naturalization papers by means of a writ of mandamus, after which the merits of the case may be determined by the courts. I am prepared to fight to the end for my rights."

SEEK GRAPE OUTPUT FOR MANY YEARS

LODI, Aug. 19.—The grape growers of the Victor district, east of Lodi, who recently leased their winery to George West & Son, have received a proposition from the Wests whereby they will contract for a number of years to produce grapes for the Wests. The contract that the growers are asked to sign calls for $9 a ton for Zinfandel this year, $10 in 1912, $11 in 1913 and $12 in 1914, and $12 for Alacanta Bouschet grapes this season. It is likely that many of the grapes will be contracted for at these prices.

TRAINING SHIP FROM ENGLAND IS IN PORT

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—The British training ship Dartford, with thirty-five cadets on board, arrived at this port this morning after an 84-day trip from Newcastle, England. The ship is commanded by Captain MacDonald, and is owned by the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand.

GROWERS NOT WORRIED ABOUT GRAPE MARKET

FEEDLEY, Aug. 19.—It is estimated that very little business in wine grapes will be done this season at less than $12 per ton. No offers have been made as high as that figure as yet, but the season is early for that class of goods and growers are not worrying about disposal of their crops.

OAKLAND COUPLE CELEBRATE FIFTY YEARS OF WEDDED LIFE

MR. AND MRS. JOHN W. RIFFIL, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Friday last.

Hosts of friends and relatives celebrated the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Riffil at their residence, 428 Avon street, last Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Riffil were married fifty years ago at Matville, Mich., August 18, 1861.

Mrs. Riffil's maiden name was Sarah Mann. She was born at Paris, Ohio, and Mr. Riffil was born in Holmes county, Ohio.

They came to California about 13 years ago and settled in San Francisco. About eight years ago they came to Oakland and have made their home here since.

To this union were born five girls and one boy. The boy died in infancy while the girls have all married. Three of them live in this state, one in Idaho and the other in Kansas.

Those present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Moyer from Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. Aug. H. Johnson of San Francisco. Four grandchildren, Ruth, George and Martha Johnson and Thelma Moyer, were included in the list of guests.

CLEARING HOUSE RECORDS PROVE OAKLAND'S GROWTH

Despite Incomplete Bank Reports City's Financial Condition Is Shown To Be Healthy

"While Oakland is far from getting just credit in the weekly reports of its bank clearings for the amount of business transacted through its commerce and industries," remarked William J. Layman of the Layman Real Estate Company in a recent interview, "the records of the Oakland Clearing House are of special value to business men, investors and financiers abroad as an index to the city's growth and prosperity. That the clearing house reports show only a small proportion of the business actually done in Oakland by its wholesale and retail business houses and its industries is due to causes which are well known to every banker and business man here, although to the Eastern student of Bradstreet's weekly clearing house reports of over 100 of the principal cities in the United States this fact is doubtless understood although it is very desirable that they should understand it."

"The testimony of the cashier of one of the leading commercial banks in Oakland may be quoted in support of this statement. Speaking of the Oakland clearing house reports he said: 'They fall to show our true business status. Why, as a matter of fact, he added, nearly three times the amount of business reported weekly by the Oakland Clearing House is transacted over the counters of this bank alone. The greater part of Oakland's legitimate business passes through the San Francisco Clearing House and Oakland will not get proper credit for it until the Oakland banks employ a clerk there to check it. At present at least $10,000,000 of Oakland's weekly business is included in San Francisco's Clearing House returns. This testimony was corroborated some time ago," continued Mr. Layman, "by a special investigation made by a representative of an Eastern bankers' magazine who found that from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 of business which should be estimated by the clearing house is not included in San Francisco's Clearing House returns."

MATERIAL GROWTH

"However, the records of Oakland's Clearing House, incomplete as they are, show material business growth here. The bank clearings for the six months ending June 30, 1911, aggregated nearly $84,500,000, or nearly $9,000,000 in excess of the clearings recorded for the first six months in 1910 and only short of a little over $1,000,000 of equalling the figures of the clearing house in the first six months of 1907."

"The Oakland Clearing House was not established until the latter part of 1906. In the early part of 1907, there were a large number of San Francisco firms temporarily located in Oakland struggling heroically to save their trade from being totally lost as the result of the earthquake and conflagration which devastated the business district of that city. Oakland was, therefore, doing an abnormal business that year. But the monthly reports of the Oakland Clearing House for the first half of the present year shows that the permanent business of this city has attained proportions nearly equal to the abnormal proportions of 1907, and for the sake of comparison the following statement taken from the books of the clearing house for the first six months of each of these two years is highly instructive:

January	$17,302,600.00	$16,810,341.15
February	15,733,647.15	12,016,574.45
March	16,131,972.36	14,060,277.83
April	18,946,556.83	13,025,276.83
May	12,635,130.42	14,170,637.57
June	10,856,077.17	14,528,779.29
Total	$86,675,984.93	$84,412,821.92

"Oakland," continued Mr. Layman, "in the United States to recover from the effects of the Wall street financial panic of 1907-08 which spread disaster all over the civilized world. In the year 1910, business here had assumed a normal condition, the bank clearings showing an increase over those of the preceding year,

January	$9,636,636.33
February	12,038,510.30
March	13,471,417.33
April	13,146,947.25
May	12,675,519.20
June	12,400,320.35

DECREASE ONLY SLIGHT.

"In a comparison between the foregoing statement and that for the first six months in 1911, it will be observed that there was a slight decrease in the clearings of the months of February, March and April this year from those of the corresponding months last year. That indicates the disturbing influence of the uncertainties of this year's municipal election campaign, and the increased clearings in May and June show the revivifying effects produced upon local trade by the election of a ticket which assures a continuance in Oakland of the progressive policy which has marked the administration of its affairs during the past six years."

"The bank clearings for the first six months of each of the past five years were as follows:

1908	86,245,396.45
1909	46,407,529.10
1911	84,412,821.92

"The first six months in 1910 showed the complete recovery of Oakland from the effects of the financial panic started in Wall Street, New York, at the close of the year 1907. It showed an increase of over 60 per cent in the bank clearings over those of the corresponding period in 1909. And the first six months clearings of 1911 now show an increase over the record of the same months in 1910 of 12.7-20 per cent. Notwithstanding the fact that Oakland's clearing house reports represent only about 23 per cent of the amount of bank clearings in which this city is strictly entitled, the other 67 per cent being merged in the San Francisco clearing house record, as I have already explained, the Oakland clearing house's statements of the gain made in the bank clearings in the first six months of 1910 and 1911, show conclusively the great progress which has been made in business here when restored to a normal condition. It is in fact an illuminating object lesson."

ABNORMAL CONDITION.

"However, as I have already stated, the bank clearings in Oakland in 1907 represented an abnormal condition of business because of the temporary location here of a large number of San Francisco business firms who, after the big fire of April, 1906, had taken refuge in this city in order to save their trade from total loss. Toward the beginning of 1908 a majority of these mercantile and industrial refugees had returned to San Francisco and resumed business there and following their departure Oakland suffered from the effects of the financial panic which swept over the entire country and extended to Europe, paralyzing trade. Whatever followed restoration of normal business conditions, and the following statement of the clearing house shows not only how completely this restoration was accomplished, but also the healthy growth in permanent business which has, in the meantime, taken place:

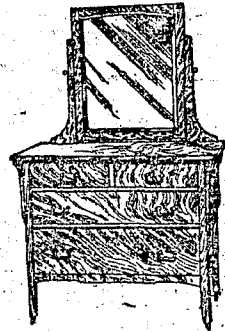

Bank clearings for 4 1/2 years:
1907	$140,516,038.98
1908	76,847,792.83
1909	95,527,088.09
1911 (6 months)	$112,821,921.92

"In 1910, Oakland, according to the clearing house returns, recorded its bank clearings under normal conditions of trade $17,000,000 over the bank clearings of 1907, when trade conditions were abnormal, and the returns for the past six months indicate that the year 1911 will show an increase of $11,000,000 over 1910 and an increase of $22,000,000 over the clearing house record of 1907. # AMERICANISM OF DAVID ALBERTO RESPONSIBLE FOR HIS AMBITIONS

Oaklander Anxious To Interpret MacDowell

The Americanism of David Alberto sticks out all over him. That is what attracts you at sight. His piano playing will do the rest, stamp him on your memory, but the Americanism of the Oakland boy is the magnet that attracts you. And three years in Vienna, where the population is 10,000 Europeans to every American, has failed to erase Alberto's love for his Uncle Sam. He was born here and raised here and when Theodore Leschetzky is through with him he is coming back to stay.

That is why Alberto is ambitious to be known as the interpreter of MacDowell's music. He says he would be content if the musical world would point to him as the greatest exponent of all that the wonderful American composer stood for. "There is so much that MacDowell told the world in his music," says Alberto. "His work ranges from the David that only the lightest touch can interpret to that which demands the greatest efforts and the most tremendous force. When I can take that music and do with it what MacDowell intended, then I shall be happy."

"AMERICANISM" EXPLAINS.

But it isn't the wonder of MacDowell's music that is going to link this boy's name with that of our greatest composer. MacDowell was an American and so is David Alberto—first, last and all the time American. He doesn't tell you that, but it crops out in every word he utters, in his mannerisms and his life. It's a good thing, at that. We need a great American pianist with an ambition to give the world great American music.

Three years ago, Albert D. Cohn—that's the name we used to know him by—went to Vienna as a protégé of Frank La Forge. The remarkable work of the young Oaklander had attracted La Forge and he took Cohn with him to Vienna. For four months he gave the boy the closest attention, superintending every detail of his work. And then—

"I've taught you all I know," La Forge told Alberto. "And now for Leschetzky."

MUSICIAN ENTHUSIASTIC.

The great Polish musician was interviewed, heard Alberto play and was enthusiastic. For the first time David Alberto was subjected to the storms and sunshine of Leschetzky, storms that do not subside until the teacher has hurled things at the head of his luckless and lucky pupil until the teacher has a wreath of musical laurels.

David Alberto is home now with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Cohn, taking a much-needed rest after three years of hard work. November 3 he leaves again for Vienna with La Forge, but before he goes Oakland is to hear him in a public performance. At Ebell hall, October 10, Alberto will interpret the work of the world's greatest composers, MacDowell's compositions to be liberally distributed throughout the program.

David Alberto is 20 years old. He began his serious musical work when he was ten and he has been heard at it ever since. Born in San Francisco, raised in Oakland, he is well-known to a host of bay cities people, who have heard him at private recitals and who are enthusiastic over his ability and what he promises for the future.

Alberto's individuality, as far as his playing is concerned, is at the door of Leschetzky. The Polish musician avoids methods as the plague.

"It is his boast," says Alberto, "that he has none and that he never had and will never acquire the usual methodical instruction that nine-tenths of the world's best teachers use. He watches his pupils like a hawk, picks out their individuality, no matter how deeply hidden, develops it and gives it to the world full-fledged."

That's what he has done with David Alberto and you'll admit it comes for a lot when you hear this wonderful pianist.

LEAGUE FOR MEDICAL FREEDOM HOLDS SESSION Discrimination Among Schools of Medicine Discussed Among Many Other Subjects

LONG BEACH, Cal., Aug. 19.—The National League for Medical Freedom held a rousing mass meeting at the Congregational church of Long Beach recently. The church was crowded with enthusiastic supporters of the league and the remarks of the speakers were received with hearty applause.

A program of music was rendered followed by a short talk by F. A. Knight, attorney-at-law of Long Beach, who acted as sponsor of the meeting. Knight in his talk clearly and comprehensively outlined the purposes of the league, after which he introduced the speakers of the evening, who were Dr. J. Fraser Barbrick, president of the Los Angeles County Eclectic Medical Society and professor of anatomy, California Eclectic medical college, and Rev. Reynolds H. Blight, minister of the Los Angeles Fellowship and chairman of the Southern California branch of the National League for Medical Freedom.

Dr. Barbrick discussed discrimination among the schools of medicine. He bitterly arraigned the allopaths whom he declared sought to monopolize the practice of medicine. Referring to the Owen bill now pending in the United States senate, he asserted that it is so worded as to rigidly exclude from the government service all physicians who do not conform to allopathic methods of practice.

PASS ON FITNESS.

"Do you know," he said, "that the fitness of very applicant for a position in the medical and surgical corps of your army and navy is passed upon by a board, every member of which belongs to the one school of medicine? As a consequence none but allopaths ever gain such positions; or should an eclectic or a naturopath be passing upon the fitness of a candidate for the medical corps, he is forced to adopt in his practice the methods of the allopaths, so for all practical purposes he is an allopath. And still they tell you these bills and laws do not recognize any school of medicine. Of course they do not recognize any school of medicine, that is the purpose of the law. The allopaths claim their is not a school of medicine; that they are just doctors. Therefore the laws recognizing no school of medicine and the so-called regulars belonging to no school of medicine are the ones the laws do recognize, and the eclectics and homeopaths belonging to a school of medicine are the ones the laws do not recognize, and by the very letter of the law distinctly discriminated against."

In conclusion Dr. Barbrick said: "The children of the fathers who persecuted and prosecuted the pioneers of progressive medicine 80 or 100 years ago are still at it only under a different guise. They are responsible for all such bills. And for what? That they may foist on long-suffering American people another monopoly, another trust, that the political doctors may have more public offices, with fat salaries, to fill; may have greater opportunities to graft from the public treasuries. And to prevent all this the National League for Medical Freedom has been formed and is carrying on this campaign of education that the eyes of the public may be opened. The league is waging a battle against state medicine and is working for the continuance of what little is left of freedom of thought to the physician and freedom of choice to the sick."

TO LECTURE ON PRISON REFORMS

Griffith J. Griffith to Talk on Abe Ruef's Proposed Changes.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Griffith J. Griffith of Los Angeles, secretary and treasurer of the Prison Reform League, will address a public meeting under the auspices of the California Prison Commission tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at Golden Rule hall, 110 Silver street, near Third. His subject will be "Mr. A. Ruef's Prison Reforms, etc."

The subject "Live Statistics" will speak Nieto, D. D. will preside.

Tuesday evening Griffith and Charles Montgomery will give addresses on "Give the Under-Dog a Chance." Captain William L. Day will preside. The public is invited to attend both meetings. Admission is free and there is no collection.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—A rummage sale has been arranged by the ladies of Branch 19, Catholic Ladies' Aid Society, to be held at 3183 Twenty-fourth street, between Howard and Polk streets, for ten days, beginning August 24.

COMPULSORY MEDICINE.

Blight's subject was "Compulsory Medicine." "There is a nation-wide effort," he said, "to obtain legislation that will result in establishing state medicine. State medicine is as repugnant to the American spirit as state religion. State medicine means tyranny of a most obnoxious character. It is a monopoly of the government, a monopoly of the government and its methods of treatment upon all citizens, without respect for the individual opinions or conscientious scruples of such citizens."

"State medicine," declared Blight, "is a discrimination against all methods of healing save that of the dominant sect. State medicine will put under the control of the regular practitioners the powerful machinery of the government for the imposition of their peculiar ideas upon the community. This is an unwarranted and indefensible invasion of the liberty of the people. State medicine will place at the disposal of the regulars the distributing system of the government for the dissemination of their literature of propaganda. State medicine would mean the employment of armies of physicians at the public expense to dominate over the wishes of the people in medical matters."

Blight stated with great emphasis that the league did not oppose sanitation or quarantine, and was not fighting the doctors in the legitimate conduct of their profession. "We oppose," he said, "only such legislation as tends to create a class privilege in the right of the individual citizen to choose his own method of healing in case of sickness."

C. E. Jarvis, well-known in Los Angeles for his connection with the Farmers and Merchants National Bank and a resident of Long Beach, made a stirring appeal for the league. He said that the members of the league were not already members, took advantage of this opportunity and signed their names as being in sympathy with the purposes of this organization.

Blight answered the many questions asked in the lively discussion which followed the addresses.

SUGAR BEET CROP OPENS UP LIVELY

Sixty Tons Per Day Go to Factory and Shipments Will Increase.

WOODLAND, Aug. 19.—The Sacramento Valley Sugar Company is shipping thirty tons of sugar beets a day from Davis and thirty tons from the Miller farm, near Yolo, to the sugar factory at Hamilton City. These shipments will increase very materially as the other fields ripen. The average on the Miller field is twelve tons to the acre. That field of 600 acres was not irrigated, hence the crop has ripened sooner than in other fields. The yield may run as high as eighteen or twenty tons to the acre in irrigated fields.

The force engaged in harvesting the crop consists of fifteen white men and thirty Hindus. Three ten-man teams are used for plowing. The Hindus do the topping. Most of the Alameda Sugar Company's fields were irrigated and the crop will not be ready to harvest before September 1.

DEEDS TIMBER LANDS BEFORE HIS DEATH

OROVILLE, Aug. 19.—W. E. Wheeler, whose death occurred recently in New York, made a deed before his death that has just been recorded here. By it he transferred to his son, 14,955 acres of timber lands in Butte, Yuba and Plumas counties. The Mooretown mill property, the mountain ditch and water rights, and the Sucker Run and Fall River rights are included in the transfer. Development of the properties is expected.

SPokane Superior Tribunal Plans Unique Punishment.

After fifteen years' experience as buyer in the millinery department of Abrahamson Brothers in this city, Miss M. Conroy, in company with Miss D. Buzzalino, who also worked five years in the same establishment, have formed a partnership and opened a millinery store at 606 Fourteenth street under the firm name of Conroy & Buzzalino. The store was opened August 15 and since that time the two well-known milliners have been enjoying a patronage that speaks well of their popularity among the trade on this side of the city.

Following a trip to New York recently Miss Conroy made large purchases of material and all the latest shapes and prevailing colors. The most widely known firms were patronized and the stock of the new establishment speaks well for her taste in selection.

"We have spared no expense to make our store one of the most attractive in the city," she said upon her return, "and we have all the new tones including browns and the purple and white which will be the prevailing colors this fall, owing to the popularity they won during the recent coronation festivities. There are also two-toned effects, Pocahontas wings and tailored hats which we are sure will meet with the approval of the most fastidious."

The new store which is opened in the heart of what is rapidly becoming the retail district of Oakland is furnished in a pleasing manner and the half dozen employees are all experienced persons in their respective lines. The congregation of a host of friends has marked the entrance of the two women into the business world of Oakland for themselves and that a large measure of success will be theirs is predicted.

NEW MILLINERY STORE LAUNCHED

Miss M. Conroy and Miss D. Buzzalino Join List of Oakland Concerns.

After fifteen years' experience as buyer in the millinery department of Abrahamson Brothers in this city, Miss M. Conroy, in company with Miss D. Buzzalino, who also worked five years in the same establishment, have formed a partnership and opened a millinery store at 606 Fourteenth street under the firm name of Conroy & Buzzalino. The store was opened August 15 and since that time the two well-known milliners have been enjoying a patronage that speaks well of their popularity among the trade on this side of the city.

Following a trip to New York recently Miss Conroy made large purchases of material and all the latest shapes and prevailing colors. The most widely known firms were patronized and the stock of the new establishment speaks well for her taste in selection.

"We have spared no expense to make our store one of the most attractive in the city," she said upon her return, "and we have all the new tones including browns and the purple and white which will be the prevailing colors this fall, owing to the popularity they won during the recent coronation festivities. There are also two-toned effects, Pocahontas wings and tailored hats which we are sure will meet with the approval of the most fastidious."

The new store which is opened in the heart of what is rapidly becoming the retail district of Oakland is furnished in a pleasing manner and the half dozen employees are all experienced persons in their respective lines. The congregation of a host of friends has marked the entrance of the two women into the business world of Oakland for themselves and that a large measure of success will be theirs is predicted.

OFFICIAL SPANKER FOR THIS COURT

DeAn of Spokane Superior Tribunal Plans Unique Punishment.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 19.—Judge E. H. Sullivan, dean of the Spokane county Superior Court, advocates the appointment of an official spanker as an official of the juvenile department, where he is presiding this term.

"I would have the spanking done in open court by a man competent to do the work," Judge Sullivan said. "There would be no necessity for severity, but just to inflict sufficient punishment to teach the offender a lesson. Once having come in contact with the official spanker I do not think the youngster would return very soon to the juvenile court."

"There is nothing gained by sending children to correctional institutions, except in serious cases; hence, I am of the opinion that an official spanker would be the most practical way to handle some of the juvenile delinquents. There are several of which we are aware and we must decide upon the proper punishment, but I do not believe we would make a mistake by resorting to the old-fashioned method of spanking. After two weeks' experience in this court I believe it is the right thing."

ORCHARDS COMPANY FILES BIG MORTGAGE

OROVILLE, Aug. 19.—The record-breaking mortgage for Butte county has been filed by the Annie E. K. Bidwell Orchards Co., recording for $281,892 in favor of Mrs. Annie E. K. Bidwell in part of the John Bidwell ranch at Chico.

The mortgage is given to Mrs. Bidwell or her heirs, and matures on August 7, 1921. President T. D. McLaughlin and Secretary Clarence M. Reed, of the company, placed the mortgage on record. The mortgage brought to light the varying values of land. Part of the land which figured in the deal is situated in foothills, and was valued at $11.50 an acre, while land between the Sperry Flour Mills and the cemetery brought $1500 an acre.

SPokane to Finance NATIONAL APPLE SHOW

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 19.—At a meeting of the Spokane business men and citizens last night, $23,000 was raised toward financing a national apple show to be held here in November. It is planned to raise $35,000, and when this amount is assured arrangements for the show will be pushed forward.

TOGO UNABLE TO VISIT STATE FAIR

Japanese Admiral Writes That Pre-Arranged Program Denies Him Pleasure.

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 19.—Secretary Telfer at the State Fair has received the following:

Boston, Mass., Aug. 17: Mr. C. Allison Telfer, Secretary, State Fair, Sacramento: Your kind invitation to visit the fair is received but regret very much my inability to accept the same owing to prearranged program. Wish you a great success.

ADMIRAL TOGO.

Secretary Telfer was anxious to show the Japanese statesman and admiral what California could do in the arts of peace, and to invite, through him, the Japanese warships, who are noted for their triumphs in the horticultural art to present evidences of their skill at the next California State Fair. The invitation, although circumstances forced the admiral to decline, may be remembered as evidence of California's good will when his countrymen come to consider the making of an exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition of 1915.

A Strong and Capable Labor Leader.

The International Typographical Union is fortunate in having at its head a man of such sound sense and mental poise as James M. Lynch possesses. Mr. Lynch is an instinctive lover of order and fairplay. His leadership is of a quality that commands the respect of employers and yields the best results for the working members of the craft. While no man is more devoted to the principles of unionism nor more sturdy in standing up for what he considers to be the rights of printers, Mr. Lynch believes in peaceful methods and the rule of reason. He approaches every controversy with a tempered judgment and a candid mind. Hence he is strong in any position he takes and wields a moral force which is exerted invariably to bring about an adjustment that is just and amicable on both sides. His calmness and moderation sometimes expose him to the criticism of extremists, but they give backbone to a policy which has been for the best interests of the Typographical Union and those engaged in the printing trade.

Mr. Lynch's first object is to secure fair treatment, good wages and steady employment for working printers, but he recognizes that these objects can be attained when business conditions are stable and the relations between employers and employed are on a cordial and mutually satisfactory basis. He realizes that nothing could be worse for working printers than for the printing business to be unsettled and unprofitable, and that continued conflict engenders ill-feeling and disturbs business. Therefore he is in favor of settled methods of settling disputes on fixed terms and a permanent basis. Consequently he is both a potent champion of the rights of labor and a friend to legitimate business.

By no means do we wish to intimate that Mr. Lynch is partial to publishers when any question arises respecting the rights (as he sees them) of the organization he heads. As we understand him, he desires to see the printing business thrive that a high standard of wages may be maintained and security and permanency given to employment. In our opinion he can render his organization no higher service than promoting these objects.

In other respects Mr. Lynch has a claim on the goodwill of all the people on the Pacific Coast. He is a friend of California and a warm promoter of the Panama-Pacific Exposition. He gave San Francisco his aid in the contest with New Orleans and has never failed to sing the praises of this State when opportunity offered. He gave his voice in favor of the International Union meeting in San Francisco this year. He is in favor of the union meeting here again in 1915, when the exposition will be open. In short, he has served the interests of California in a way that deserves gratitude and remembrance. We hope he will come again and often, and that each time his welcome will make him feel that he has friends here in all ranks of society who will be glad to meet him. Aside from being the successful head of a puissant labor organization, he possesses qualities which would win him respect and regard in any walk of life—a broad, manly way of looking at things and a just and ready faculty of assaying mutual responsibilities and obligations. As we said in the beginning, the International Union is fortunate in having a man of this type for its executive officer.

The so-called practical joke is always stupid; it is often brutal and cruel, and sometimes wicked and malicious. It is never prompted by the spirit of genuine humor, having its origin in the spirit of torment. Occasionally, however, the practical joke develops into a shocking tragedy and turns upon its perpetrators with hideous ferocity. At Detroit the other night two practical jokers lost their lives while trying to frighten a friend. They were watchmen in a railroad yard, and decided to give a scare to a special policeman on the beat who had had an encounter a few nights previous with a pair of hoboes. They hid behind a car and jumped on their victim as he came along with intent to frighten him into running away. Instead he shot them both dead, and is now overcome with remorse at slaying his friends. The watchmen died as the fool dieth, but what of the living who are left in grief and mourning? The joke not only slew the jokers, but recoiled with terrible force upon their families. But was it a joke?

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Geraghty and their pinto bull terrier are vying with John Jacob Astor and Miss Force for attention in the newspapers. If Mrs. Jack were not an heiress and related to the Vanderbilts, and the husband with whom she eloped a chauffeur, the pair would not have been given a second look. The bull terrier would not have been photographed and played-up as star stuff in the newspapers. The interviews she has given to the newspapers show the girl to be a fool. The chap she married has not sense enough to hold his tongue nor the modesty to refrain from cackling in concert with his silly wife. But columns and columns are given to the pair daily simply because the foolish woman belongs to a wealthy family. The American press is a great snob.

England on the Brink of Famine.

Herbert Spencer once said that if everybody should stop work for twenty-four hours all England would be on the verge of starvation. What he meant was that a cessation of all activities for a single day would bring on a famine.

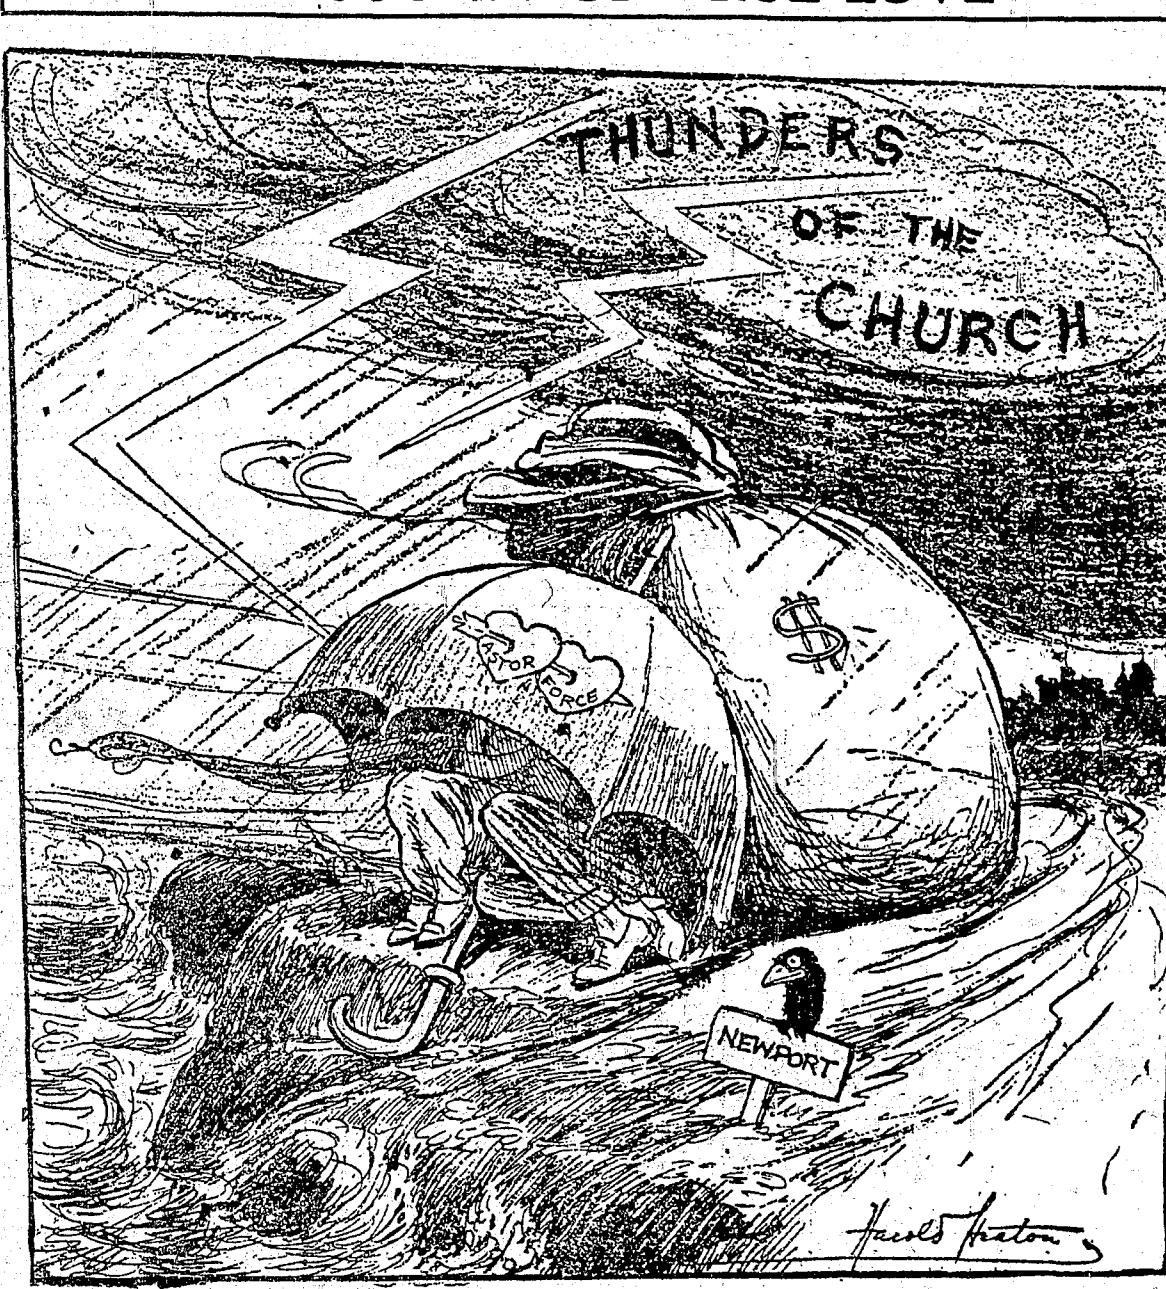

The truth of his remark has been demonstrated in a startling manner by the great dock and railway strike which illustrates, by the way, the vulnerability of England. Even in such great seaports as Liverpool and Bristol, a partial cessation of work has created food scarcity and a vast amount of distress and sent the price of provisions soaring. The blocking of transportation has stopped distribution to a certain extent, and as Herbert Spencer declared famine is imminent in all the centers of population. The rich as well as the poor are threatened with want. The man with money cannot have the food brought to him and finds it difficult to go where food is. The poor have no money for the purchase of food or to pay traveling expenses.

Hence the tremendous confusion that has resulted from the strike. Hence the extraordinary measures adopted by the government to keep the railway lines in operation. Were the railroads to stop running for even a brief period the whole nation would be in danger of starvation. If the population in the great cities should go hungry mad the consequences would be terrible beyond description. That is why the troops have been called out to prevent mobs from interfering with the running of the trains. If the trains were to stop for a day millions would be unable to get anything to eat. If they stopped for three days all business would suspend and the whole nation would be starving.

It is a dynamic situation. It reveals the internal weakness of Great Britain and the fearful danger that lurks at her doors. It explains the extravagant fear that Englishmen feel when their supremacy on the sea is threatened. A blockade of the island would compel England to surrender without firing a shot.

England draws the bulk of her food supplies from abroad. These supplies come in day by day from the United States, Canada, Australia, Argentina, Northern Europe and Ireland. The vast hives in the cities live from hand to mouth. The dockers will not unload the ships in the seaports and food immediately becomes scarce and the prices go up. A stoppage of the trains would prevent the cities in the interior from getting anything to eat. It is precisely this condition that the strike leaders are trying to bring about. They are trying to bring the whole nation to the point of starvation, and have come perilously near succeeding. They would have succeeded had the government not promptly resorted to stern measures to prevent interference with the running of trains.

THE COURSE OF TRUE LOVE

In reality London is in a state of siege. "We'll starve you out," said Ben Tibbatts, one of the strike leaders. "If your government tries to stop us we'll smash the government." So the life of the government itself is at stake. Famine must be averted or there will be a revolution and excesses which might parallel the horrors of the Revolution in France. The government is fighting to feed the people and to sustain itself. That is the plain truth of the matter. It shows the extremity to which England could be reduced if her fleets did not protect her lines of communication.

As it is the amount of distress is appalling. Of course the poor suffer first and suffer most, but the situation is nevertheless pregnant with sinister warning to the statesmen and capitalists of Great Britain. It has now been borne in upon them that the seeds of national destruction are planted in the bosoms of hungry and desperate mobs, infuriated by a sense of wrong and injustice. England has never before faced such a crisis. In Wat Tyler's time the multitude was ignorant, credulous, disorganized, and under the awe of class subjection. The conditions were the same when Jack Cade led the insurgents, and there was, besides, a false quantity in the popular complaint. When England was convulsed by the Chartist riots, it was country folk who mainly took part in them. Again there was no organization, no cohesion and no understanding of where the power lay.

It is different this time. There is organization and a clear conception of the weak and strong points of the situation. The masses have lost their awe of the aristocratic class, are in an angry mood and are led by desperate and reckless men. Like Samson they are disposed to pull the temple down if their grievances are not redressed. And singularly enough, they have reached this desperate pass at a time when the government is striving earnestly to ameliorate the conditions complained of. The masses are in open revolt against the administration that is more in sympathy with them than any of its predecessors and has gone further in trying to better social and industrial conditions. But it was even so in the French Revolution. The most virtuous, harmless and tender-hearted of all the Bourbon Kings fell a victim to the wrongs inflicted on the people by his ancestors. A vicious system was destroyed when his throne was overturned, but in England the system is not bad and the evils from which the laboring class is suffering is in process of being redressed. Hence the outbreak is to be deplored.

But it has showed John Bull the wolf at his door and admonished him to put his house in order. A nation that can be starved needs to be united and at peace within its household.

Cremation Increasing

Modern cremation originated in 1866. Today, after forty-five years of agitation, there are eighty crematories in Europe. Of these, twenty-two are in Germany, seven in Switzerland, and thirty in Italy. About 13,000 bodies were cremated in Europe during 1909. In the United States from 1878 to 1909 there were 13,012 cremations recorded. This method of disposing of the dead is growing in favor, says the Journal of the American Medical Association, in a recent editorial. In Boston, the substitution of crematories for potter's fields has long been agitated. In New York, the bodies of immigrants dying of infectious diseases at the quarantine station are cremated, unless the surviving relatives have religious scruples against this method. While the advance is slow, cremation seems to be gaining in favor.

SERMONS IN BRIEF

KINDNESS IMMORTALIZED.
By REV. J. G. DICK,
Pastor of Hanna Memorial United Presbyterian Church.

"She hath wrought a good work." No one realized the far-reaching import of the anointing at Bethany save Jesus only. To the devoted worshiper the anointing meant an expression of love, the best she knew. To Jesus it meant not only a passing act of love and kindness but a deed worthy of mention before the whole world. It exemplified the daily life of Jesus. It symbolized the fragrance of the act was meant for Jesus but Jesus shared it with all the world. "She hath done what she could." It is such service which makes life complete, the world brighter and happier.

The world is suffering for want of kindness and expressions of love and sympathy and good cheer. Too often kind words are left unsaid and kind deeds are left undone until the opportunity is past, the life departed and sad memory only is left to remind us of what we might have said and done. "She hath done what she could," could not be said of all, yet all have abundant opportunity for doing good. A word of cheer, a kindly smile, a helping hand, a word of comfort, consideration, love and kindness for all; these are opportunities in the path of every one.

Christ's life on earth was full of such deeds. "He went about doing good." He was ever doing kind things and making people happy.

Odds and Ends

The man who intends to swim across the Atlantic Ocean promises that he will start February 13, 1913. It will have to be admitted that he is not superstitious, however faulty his judgment of the public's needs may be.

The citizens of Humboldt, Iowa, are so enthusiastic over Frank Gotch, the wrestler, that they want to have him elected governor of the Hawkeye state. If Gotch becomes governor of Iowa we may expect a movement in Michigan to elevate Hon. A. W. Wagoner to the gubernatorial chair, and then it will only remain to make Mr. Jack Johnson President.

Newport approves of John Jacob Astor's forthcoming marriage to an 18-year-old girl. This being the case, Mr. Astor will hardly care what the rest of the world thinks. He doesn't have to look the rest of the world in the face.

The ex-Shah of Persia and his followers won a battle the other day, but they are still a long way from the home plate.

Lord Roberts has joined Lord Haldane's standpatners in the British house of lords. This is one of the few times when the attitude of "Bohs" has been ridiculous rather than heroic.

Without desiring to make anybody nervous, we feel that it is our duty to warn people to be prepared now to hear things crashing through their skylights.

When B. A. D. Luck of Pine Bluff, Ark., registered at a Chicago hotel the other day the clerk did not assign him to room 13. We assume that the clerk does not pretend to be a humorist.

A rich woman from New York angrily declined to become a patron of a Los Angeles hotel when she was informed that her doggie would not be permitted to receive massage treatments in the barber-shop. Aren't some hotel-keepers independent!

A Canadian on a visit to New York complained to the police that he had been swindled out of $1100. New York regrets that he didn't have more with him.

They have all sorts of ways by which competition is destroyed in New York. For instance, 2483 deaths occurred from violence there last year. This seems to us as a case of unresponsible restraint of living.

CENTER OF POPULATION

One of those statistical facts that are so hard of acceptance among our Atlantic coast neighbors comes from the census bureau in the form of a statement that the center of population of the United States has moved thirty-one miles westward, and slightly northward, within the past ten years. Part of the $10,000,000 or so that this country spent in taking the census was spent in figuring out that the exact continental center of population is now located four and one-half miles south of Unionville, Monroe county, Indiana. For ten years this honor lay in a cornfield six miles southwest of Columbus, Ind.

The westward movement, we are told, was more than twice that of the 1890-1900 decade, and the development is attributed by the census experts to the growth of the Pacific and southwestern states. As the geographical center of the United States remains in the vicinity of Kanopolis, Kas., or what is left of that once ambitious village, it is an interesting fact that the center of population and the geographical center are about 550 miles apart. All of which indicates progress toward that ideal future when the two points will be coincident and the population of the country will be harmoniously and evenly distributed. Of course, it will require many decades to bring the center of population as far west as Kansas, and it is more than doubtful if Kanopolis will ever achieve the double honor of being the center of population and the geographical hub.

To those rooted citizens of New York and environs who limit the western boundary of the known universe by the Allegheny mountains these new census figures will prove meaningless. They reluctantly concede that somewhere in the west there is an amorphous social condition wherein Indians, buffaloes, Kansas and mining kings abound, and that congressmen, wheat and money come east at gratifying intervals. But they insist that the congestion of wisdom, culture and enjoyment in New York will ever determine that metropolis as the true center of American life, mere population not counting for much, anyway.

But to those who know their United States this movement of the center of population to the west is highly significant. It means a constant shifting of political power and popular influence. It means that this vast country is steadily developing. Our frontiers have long since disappeared and from now on our restless people will flow into the more inviting regions, and this movement will tend to national homogeneity and the development of a true American character. When all our broad land is settled with approximate evenness, there will be less sectionalism and geographical prejudice, and many of our hard national problems will be made easier to solve.—Kansas City Journal.

JAPAN'S GROWTH

Eight thousand students in the University of Tokio! A graduating list of 1000! These are the somewhat staggering statistics furnished by Professor T. Takasugi, of Japan, in an interview given out in Seattle. "We hope to improve some time," he added.

The showing is a magnificent one. It's the sort of thing that shows Japan's many-sidedness. It proves that the little brown men of the East are thinkers no less than fighters—students no less than patriots.

"We still have much to learn in the way of education," the professor declared. "We have not yet learned to do anything but study. Our university men—there are about 80,000 in Tokio—are serious students, but that is about all. We have none of the other joys that go to make up a happy college life."

It is fair to presume that Japan will follow in the wake of the United States in humanitarian laws, as it has in other notable achievements. Recently considerable prominence was given to the fight against child labor.

It was found that long hours in factories are sapling the vitality of children and weakening the entire race as a natural result. Already it is agreed among leaders in Japan that child labor must cease.

China—which bids fair to duplicate the marvelous advance achieved by Japan in a few years—is suppressing the use of opium, no less by popular opinion than by imperial edict.

Both countries are building railroads, studying agriculture, devoting attention to cure of diseases peculiar to Asiatics.

At the same time Japan finds time to play at world politics. China may be expected to do so whenever conditions develop strong men of the kind that has swayed Japan's destinies for the past generation.

Education in Japan means development. Development means more general demand for the comforts and the luxuries of civilization.—Seattle Times.

AGE OF THE FLYER

Recent accomplishments with the flying machine in Washington go to show that navigation of the air has nearly reached a point where something practical and useful may be expected of it. Experience proves that the operation of the aeroplane is no longer attended with the feeling that a man takes his life in his hand when he grasps the steering levers. All in all, the fliers behave well, are subject to almost perfect control, and the operator goes where he will, reaches his destination, ascends with ease, and alights safely. This, of course, has been brought about after many mishaps, wrecked machines and fatalities, but the record is not so much greater than that of the early use of fast-running automobiles.

Practical men have had their doubts whether the flying machine would ever be anything more than a plaything. Truth requires the admission that it is little more at the present time, yet we read in current dispatches that an aviator in France remained in the air a little over twelve hours, and covered a distance of 56 miles, at an average speed of almost 60 miles an hour. This looks like a complete conquering of the air. With such an achievement realized, the worth of the flying machine as respects speed is assured, and its use as a swift-courier, if for nothing else, is demonstrated.

The automobile for years was nothing but a passenger vehicle, and it is only in the past five years that it has been effectually and practically put to the work of the dray-horse and the truck. But the mechanical vehicle has now proved its adaptability to all modes of land locomotion, and without doubt the aerial car will show its worth in the work of the world. Just what forms the useful and practical flying machine may take is now problematical, but the form does not matter so long as the machine demonstrates its efficiency to carry burdens, and to distance the god Mercury, in carrying the messages of mankind.—Chicago Record-Herald.

THAT MANCHURIAN PLAGUE

After the appalling accounts of the ravages of pneumonic plague at Harbin and elsewhere in Manchuria and Siberia last winter it is gratifying to have it intimated that there was really very little truth in them and that the outbreak was insignificant in extent and effects. Yet it is difficult to derive any other conclusion from the official reports which are now made by the Russo-Chinese medical expedition which has gone there to study the plague on the spot.

There is, we are told, an infectious disease among the marmots. It is epidemic and not epidemic, and it is not extensive in its ravages. Only two dead marmots have been found in Siberia, though in Manchuria there are said to be many. The expedition has explored the country along the Amoor, Sungari and Ussuri rivers, and has found it entirely free from plague, of at least has been unable to discover a single case of that malady. The same is true of the Korean frontier around Hunchung. Moreover, "has been established that the reports of mortality during the winter epidemic in the remote and sparsely settled regions were grossly exaggerated and, as regards Hunchung, utterly unfounded."

The interesting statement is added that while a plague undoubtedly exists among the marmots and it is identical with the plague among men, it is not a formidable source of danger, for "the skins of diseased marmots after being dried in the sun are perfectly harmless." We must conclude then that this was another case of exaggeration through fear. There was none of the wholesale ravage of cities and provinces of which we heard, and there was no air-borne pestilence which defied all treatment and which threatened to depopulate whole realms. It is not difficult to imagine how such exaggerated tales got into circulation. Whether they did much harm may be a matter of uncertainty. If they have conduced to the sending of this authoritative scientific expedition to ascertain the truth and to rob the plague of half its terrors by discovering its real character they have served a good end.—New York Tribune.

20 YEARS AGO IN OAKLAND

An attachment was levied upon the Hotel Crellin today on a judgement secured in Justice Spook's court by Max Marcuse, as assignee, against Frank McLaughlin, lessee of the hotel. The attachment is the result of a difference of $2.50 in a bill owing creditors.

Mayor Chapman, escorted by Superintendent of Schools J. W. McCloymonds, inspected the High, Cole, Prescott and Lafayette schools, with the result that they determined them to be greatly overcrowded.

The will of the late Catherine Vogt who left an estate of the estimated value of $10,000, bequeathed to her daughter, Annie, a house and lot on Union street and the remainder is distributed among John Y. William, Emil and James Hahn and David Vogt, her husband.

Articles of Incorporation of the Arroyo del Leon Land Company have been filed with the County Clerk. The company is capitalized at $50,000 and has the following directors: R. B. S. York, James E. White, Henry L. Smith, Charles L. Pierce and Frank Harold, all of Oakland.

Senator Charles N. Felton is in Southern California enjoying the hospitality of many friends; Mrs. Francis Blake, Miss Alice Blake, Miss Emma Eckley, Miss Ethel Perry and E. B. Perry started yesterday for a tour of Yellowstone park and the north country; B. F. Armstrong has returned from an extended trip through the East; Professor E. W. Hilgard arrived on Tuesday in Washington, D. C.; Justice and Mrs. Mrs. Stephen J. Field leave for the East today; Dr. A. Fine of East Oakland has returned to his home and Mr. and Mrs. W. Parker Lyon have gone to Bartlett Springs.

The present improvement of Oakland is a guarantee of its future. A drive through the suburbs is an education in what a year ago brought forth and the trip will well repay any doubting Thomas. Captain Gifford of Golden Gate returned last week from a two years' voyage in the South Sea Islands, where he went to trade. During his absence from this place the rumor spread that he and his crew had been massacred by the natives during the civil war. On the contrary, he made a neat little stake out of the war, for he and his crew helped the king to overcome the rebels and for their services were duly rewarded.

Henry V. Herbert, claim adjuster of the Southern Pacific, has received a hurried summons from Collis P. Huntington to go East and it is believed that his trip has to do with the settlement out of court of the will left by Mrs. Hopkins-Searles by which Timothy Hopkins was cut off.

WRITING ADS IS GREAT SCIENCE

People Now Well Educated in Buying Goods Through Offerings in Papers.

Woman Specialist Is Preparing Telling Advertisements for Oakland Lace House.

THE invasion of woman in business is the order of the day. In every aspect of business life woman is making a place for herself. Up to the present time a few pursuits have still been held exclusively by men, but even in those woman has made inroads. One of the very last posts to be held out by the sterner sex has been that of publicity work, especially as it is seen specialized in the writing of advertisements for newspapers, but even here man is no longer supreme. Here in our own enterprising city of Oakland, and in the establishment of one of the most up-to-date firms, there is a woman doing this highly specialized form of work and doing it in a way to reflect credit both on herself and on the enterprise of the firm which employs her talents. That firm is the establishment of H. C. Capwell, Twelfth and Washington streets, and the woman is Mrs. Henrietta Mansfield.

One of the very first firms in the country to appreciate the peculiar fitness of a woman to perform this character of work, provided she possesses the technical training which goes with it, was Capwell's and in this it has shown its up-to-the-very-minuteness, just as it has for so many years in the conduct of its affairs and finally in the beautiful building which is now

PARIS ORIGINATES AEROPLANE SLEEVE

Latest Conceit Gives Wearer the Appearance of Winged Creature.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The aeroplane sleeve, more prosaically known as the gauntlet sleeve, is the latest Parisian conceit in the way of women's clothes. This contrivance, as the correspondent ascertained on making the rounds of the leading makers of modes, has an armhole extending from the waist line to the shoulder, gradually narrowing at an acute angle to a wrist of ordinary circumference. It gives the wearer something of the appearance of a winged creature, especially in the bottle green and sulphurine, or yellow, shades, which are making the highest bids for popularity.

"The most significant thing this season," said M. Louis, head of a leading model house, "is that all the chief firms are making jackets of three lengths, to be determined by the figure of the wearer. Thus, a short, dumpy woman should not wear a short jacket; and a tall, thin woman should not wear a long, thin jacket. This year's styles permit any length, from just below the hips to just below the knees."

FIRE COMES NEAR WIPING OUT TOWN

Heroic Work Saves California Town From Destruction.

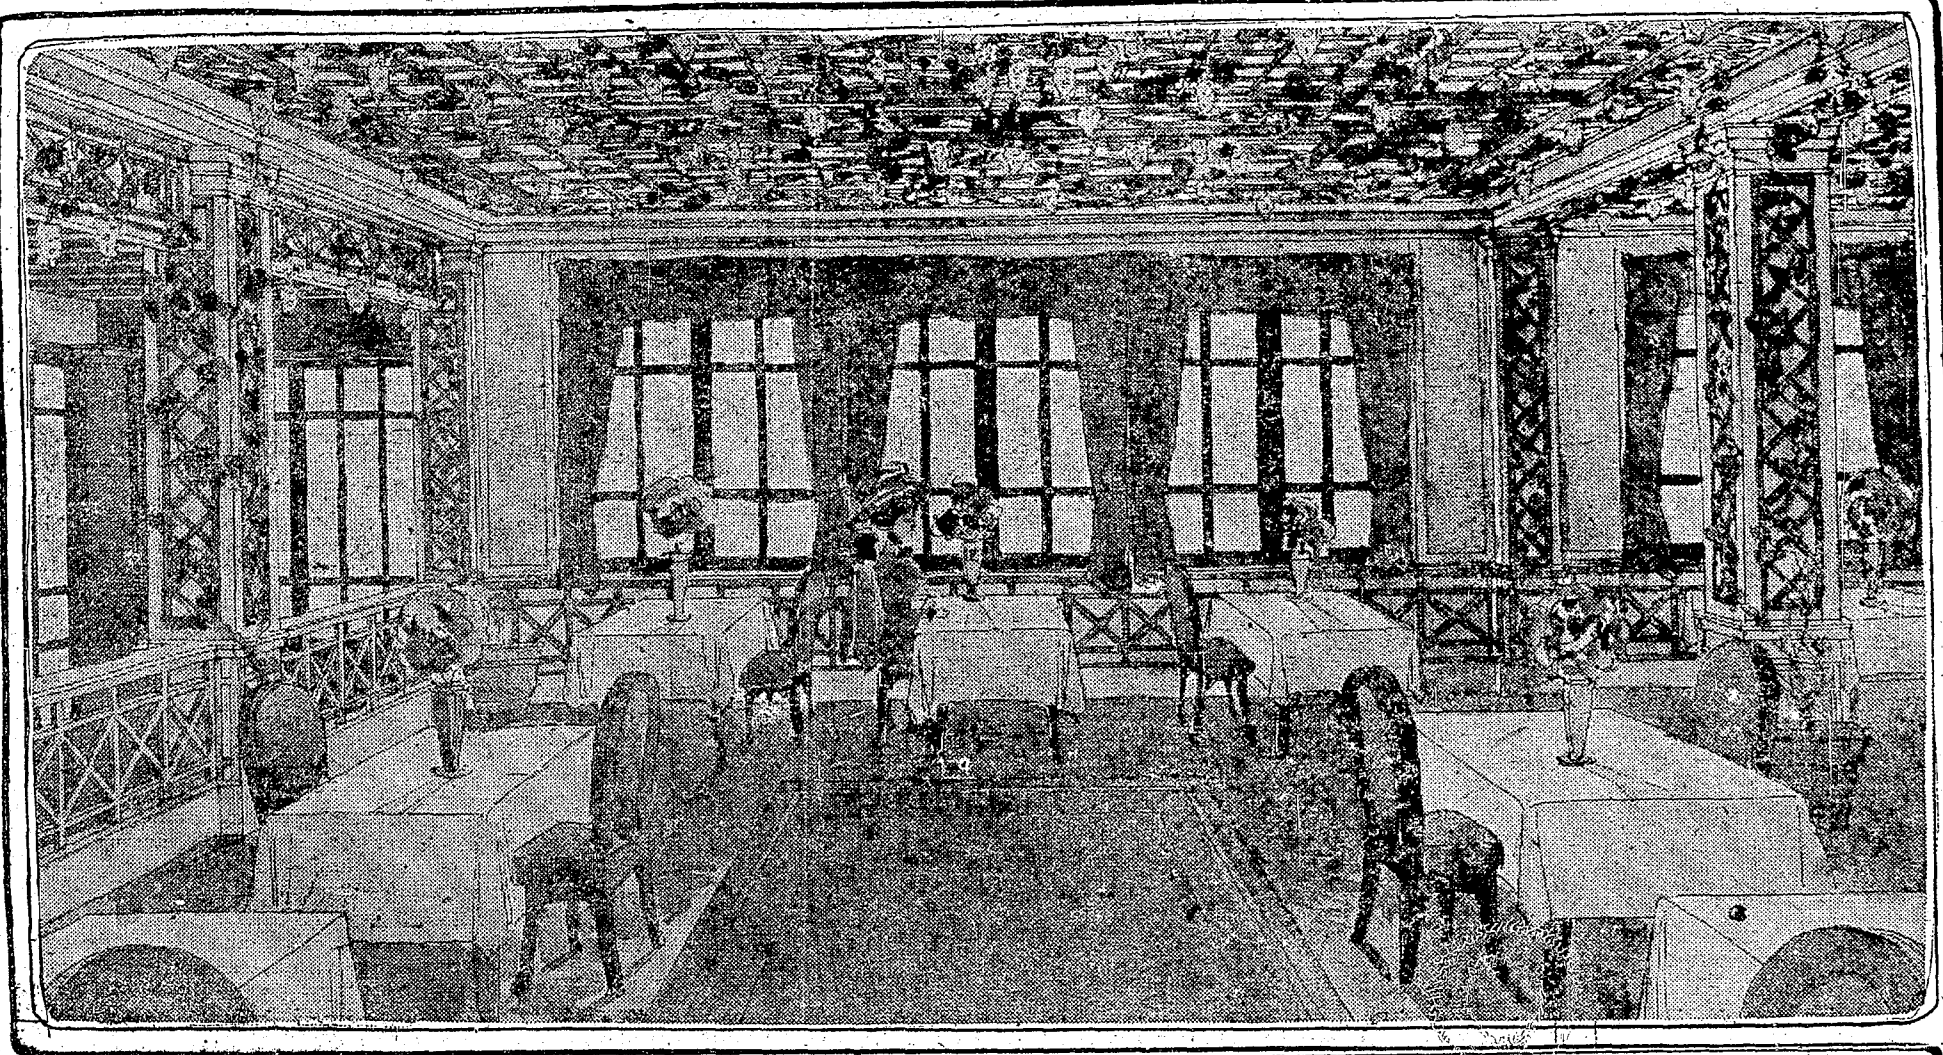

GUADALUPE, Cal., Aug. 19.—Fire caused by a gasoline explosion today threatened the destruction of this town and was extinguished only by the heroic efforts of virtually every man in the vicinity. Despite their work, at least eight buildings were destroyed, the approximate loss being more than $12,000. The destroyed property included the Guadalupe opera house, two saloons, a fruit store, a barber shop, a poolroom, a Japanese laundry and the home of Mrs. E. Forney. The flames burst from the cellar under the saloon of John Carrington and, fanned by a brisk wind, soon spread to adjoining structures. Buildings across the street were scorched and applications of water were all that saved them. The telephone office was in danger throughout the fire, but the brave operator stood by her switchboard.

MISS CLEARY TO WED BANKER'S GRANDSON

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—The engagement of Miss Virginia Cleary and Mr. Raleigh Kelly of this city has recently been announced. Miss Cleary is a singer of note, and has a host of friends in this city. Mr. Kelly is a recent graduate of St. Ignace College, and is at present practicing law in town. He is a member of the Olympic Club. The wedding will take place in early spring, and will take place at the home of the bride in Third avenue.

Mr. Kelly is the grandson of James R. Kelly, president of the Hibernia Bank.

being erected in the heart of the city as a proper setting for the establishment. A few years ago this question of ad writing was one which did not concern mercantile firms greatly, but with the tremendous change in conditions within the past few years this firm, which has kept abreast with all that is latest and best in business life, has seen the advantage to be derived from the newest quirk of particularizing and has not failed to make the most of it.

ATTRACTIVE ADVERTISING.

It was less than a decade ago that it mattered little whether an advertisement in a newspaper or magazine was well gotten up or not. Few people read what advertisements did appear, and so little were they esteemed that the more conservative old establishments considered the publicity of the public prints beneath their dignity. Nothing shows the change in point of view within the past few years better than the fact that advertising is now not something to be despised, but is ranked as an art. It was Elbert Hubbard, gifted editor of the Philistine and the Era, who only a few years ago came out with one of his most artistic publications, which he called "The Art of Advertising," and no one has been a better exponent of his own theories than he himself. Nowadays this art is more than a dilettante pursuit, too. In fact it has become an essential in the business world, requiring as serious thought and consideration as any other feature of that world.

That is the reason why ad writing is being more and more studied and why woman is beginning to take her place in a phase of business activity which she seems likely to make peculiarly her own. This is because advertisements in newspapers and the vast majority of magazines have women for their readers. In this day of bargain and other species of sales it is woman who watch the papers with the greatest of care and who regulate the large part of their purchases by what they see advertised therein. It is this fact which makes the newspaper one of the greatest agents in securing for the business man, especially the proprietor of a mercantile store, his business, which fact is being more and more recognized, in no way better than in the fashion in which the large city dry goods stores work up elaborate advertisements for the Sunday papers, the definite literature for the vast majority of readers for the day of rest and recuperation. And it is their assertion that this additional outlay of time, thought and money required for the building up of these Sunday advertisements is amply repaid to them by the increase of their revenues for the first day of the business week.

WHAT A WOMAN WANTS.

With the appeal as it is to women in this writing, who is better able to understand and cater to this appeal than a woman? Who knows better what a woman likes to hear about in an advertisement or how better to phrase the text of the advertisement that it will reach the attention and interest of the woman reader? Nor is the purely aesthetic side of the advertisement to be neglected in this form of writing, for a woman naturally senses the effort after the lovely in form and an artistic arrangement of lines, varying sizes of type and a proper use of spacing all contributes to an ensemble that at once attracts the eye and leads unconsciously to a desire for further examination of the subject matter behind the form. All this a woman possesses primarily, and so is able to embark on this peculiar vocation with an advantage over "mere man."

But this counts for little without a definite technical equipment which embodies a knowledge of the mechanical side of writing ads. This requires a knowledge of the necessary numbers of letters of a given size which go to make up a line of a certain length. This is where a man is generally considered superior, but only because of his wider experience. As for Mrs. Mansfield, Capwell's ad writer, she was a newspaper woman before taking up this new work and can even perform the purely mechanical feat of type-setting if necessary. In consequence the advertisements which have been appearing in print exploiting the Capwell wares have been attracting wide attention both from the women readers, who have spoken of the singular aptness displayed in them, and from those experts who appreciate their technical excellence.

POWER OF ADVERTISING.

H. C. Capwell, head of the firm which bears his name, said, when discussing the store's possession of this novelty among ad writers:

"Yes, a woman in such a position is a rarity, but we feel that it is a position peculiarly suited to her. We realize the potent power of an advertisement in a newspaper, provided it is able to make its appeal to the readers. The paper can furnish the readers, which are necessary to business success in that line, but it is up to the man or woman who presents to these readers the virtues of his wares to make the presentation interesting and that we believe a woman can do. We believe that when a certain article is presented to the public, as it were, through the columns of a paper, that the woman reader will have twice as much interest in the description given when she knows it comes from another woman, who can understand her feelings and admirations. We believe in being up-to-date throughout our entire establishment, in giving of our best to our customers, and feel that in this case we have achieved what we have been aiming for."

That this purpose of the proprietors to give the customers the latest and best in everything is no idle boast is demonstrated as well in the care with which the plans for the new building of the firm, on Clay street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, are being prepared. To give to the people of Oakland all the comforts and luxuries in a modern store is only another way of advertising to the world at large the enterprise of the firm and with them the public itself, for which the comforts have been provided, and by whom they will be appreciated.

CAFE ON THE ROOF.

The latest in connection with this beautiful new building, which will represent when completed a total value of one million dollars, is a beautifully arranged cafe upon the roof, from which can be had an unrivaled view of the bay and foothills. This will be the only roof garden as elaborate on the entire coast, and the only thing of the sort in this particular vicinity. The architect for the building is an Oakland man, C. W. Dickey, and he has made especial efforts to make this feature one of the show points of the city. Part of the roof garden will be open to the sky, while another section will be enclosed in glass, particularly that portion which will contain the cafe proper. This room is planned to seat comfortably in the neighborhood of two hundred people, will be arranged to secure an al fresco effect, with treasured walls and vines clambering over them, all lighted from behind with concealed lights. There visitors to the city can be taken and shown the true magnitude and beauties of the surrounding country, as effective an advertisement for the city as the cafe is for the store or Mrs. Mansfield's clever handwork is for the newspapers.

For all these things are related, one to another, and the enterprise of Capwell's, shown in this particular instance in true appreciation of the merits of clever and artistic advertising, pushed to its highest degree of efficiency, is shown again and again in the entire conduct of the establishment which has made it what it is today, one of the finest and most successful mercantile stores on the entire Pacific coast.

Loves Drivess Slayer to Clear Name Gaby's Coming Stirs Up Ohio Women

SALLISAW, Okla.—After coming back from the Pacific coast to surrender himself for a crime committed eleven years ago, in order to clear his record for the sake of the girl he loved, Edward Plunkett, Spanish war veteran and a hero of the fighting around Manila, has left for Portland, Ore., with a parole from Governor Lee Cruce of Oklahoma. He now claims his Oregon sweetheart and bring her back to Oklahoma with him when he comes to attend the annual reunion of the Spanish war veterans, to be held in Oklahoma City next month.

On December 2, 1900, Plunkett, then a boy of 16, killed his chum of the same age, "Bud" Sanders, when both were drinking. He fled from the state, and at Quincy, Ill., enlisted in the Ninth Infantry for service in the Philippines. After serving with distinction in the island possession he was badly wounded in some sharp fighting on the walls of Manila. It was not thought at first he could recover from his wounds, but after spending two years in the hospital he was finally discharged in San Francisco, with permanent injuries from his wounds, for which he was given a pension of $40 per month. He is still able, however, to make a place for himself in the world.

Still a boy in years, being less than 19 at the time, he entered school, educated himself and located at Portland, where he has been successful in a business way. His father died several years ago, and he sent for his mother and for a brother and sister, whom he is now keeping in school in Portland. Some months ago he fell in love with a young woman in Portland, and the date had been set for their marriage, but before the time for the wedding came he decided to tell his fiancée of his early trouble in Oklahoma, and to come back here to face the charges against him. He notified the local officers that he wanted to come back and surrender, and make arrangements for giving bond.

He was tried before Judge John Pitchford of Tahlequah in this city, and pleaded self-defense, but was convicted of manslaughter on June 7 of this year and sentenced to two years' imprisonment. Almost as soon as sentence had been pronounced his friends here, who were familiar with the circumstances of the case began to get busy in an effort to secure a pardon or parole for him. Judge Pitchford, the trial judge, wrote a personal letter to Governor Cruce, which was backed up by petitions signed by practically all of the county officers, including the county attorney who prosecuted him, the sheriff, the county judge, by 130 teachers attending the Sequoyah County Teachers' Institute, which was in session at the time, and by 800 other citizens of Sequoyah county. As a result of their efforts Plunkett's term of actual imprisonment was reduced to about thirty days.

As soon as news was received here that the governor had granted the parole, Plunkett wired to his sweetheart in Portland and left for that city as soon as his affairs could be arranged. He is a member of Scout Young Camp No. 2, Spanish War Veterans, in Portland, and before he decided to come back to Oklahoma and clear up his record here, he had been elected the delegate from that camp to the reunion to be held in Oklahoma City in August. Now he is planning to be married in about two weeks' time and bring his bride back to Oklahoma with him for a honeymoon trip.

CINCINNATI.—Opinion seems divided here as to the reception that will be accorded Miss Gaby Deslys when she lands in this country next season. Some think the girl for love of whom King Manuel lost his crown may be slighted on account of her slighting remarks made in song on the divorce question in America and her styling herself an "Ohio belle" in London.

Helen Mercel Schuster, director of the Schuster School of Dramatic Art, said recently: "Miss Deslys' idea of America is very insulting, to put it mildly. Of course, the general public will be attracted out of curiosity, but she will be decidedly repellent to the true American woman. Such acts as she is given credit for putting on are anything but tending to elevate the morals of the stage."

Mrs. Gusie Ogden, prominent in social circles, herself a divorcee, whose first husband, a brother of Mrs. Philip Ogden Armour of Chicago, left her a large fortune, part of which was contributed to a fund for the protection of women whose husbands had slandered them, said: "I think Miss Deslys intends her songs and references to the divorce laws of this country as a burlesque. The point is well taken; the divorce laws themselves are burlesques. Her reference to divorce should not keep others from receiving her in this country, and it will not keep me."

"I think she is very impudent," said Miss Emeline Fessell, prominent club woman and member of the local Socialist party. "No Ohio belle would talk that way. I am sure no real American girl would patronize any playhouse while she is on the bills. Let Miss Gaby come to this city, and see how the American women will receive her. She is a plain undesirable, and if she plays to large audiences here it will be to undesirable that she is playing."

Mrs. Herbert S. Bellaglow, social worker and wife of Rev. Robert S. Bellaglow, once candidate on the Democratic ticket for secretary of state of Ohio, said: "I don't think American women will pay much attention to Miss Deslys."

TEXAS PLANS TO SPEND MILLION ON EDUCATION

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 19.—That Texas does not intend educational interest shall lag, is emphasized by an appropriation of a sum aggregating almost $1,000,000 for the state university and a large sum for the state agricultural schools. While the university is playing a most important part in educational affairs, it is generally recognized that the agricultural schools are doing much for the resources of the state by turning out young men and women thoroughly capable of taking care of themselves.

Mr. Feldman is known throughout the United States and Europe and is a graduate of the Conservatory of Music of Berlin, Germany.

SAFETY IN MINING TO BE SHOWN TO 30,000.

Underground Workers Will Watch Demonstration at Pittsburg.

PRESIDENT TAFT TO BE AMONG THOSE PRESENT

Mimic Explosion and Rescue to Be Feature of Important Exhibition.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Thirty thousand miners are expected to attend the great national mine safety demonstration to be held in Pittsburg, Pa., October 25 and 27 under the auspices of the Federal Bureau of Mines, the American Red Cross, the Pittsburg Coal Operators' Association and the United Mine Workers of America.

The date, which was originally set for September 18, has been changed so that President Taft may be present on the second day, October 27, to witness a mimic mine explosion in a temporary steel gallery on Forbes field, an exhibition of rescue work by helmeted miners following an explosion, and to review the parade of miners.

The President will make an address and will present souvenir prizes to the miners taking part in the first aid to the injured and rescue work exhibitions. Walter L. Fisher, secretary of the interior department; Governor Tener of Pennsylvania and Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, the director of the bureau of mines, will also be present. The general arrangements for the demonstration are in charge of H. M. Wilson, engineer in charge of the bureau of mines.

The demonstration, the purpose of which is to teach greater safety in mining, will begin the morning of October 26 at the experimental station of the bureau of mines, Portieth and Butler streets. The first day will be devoted to the interests of the mine operators, mine owners, mining engineers and superintendents of mines. There will be an explosion of coal dust in the experimental gallery and tests of mine safety lamps in gas. The dangers of electric sparks in gas and coal dust will also be shown in one of the galleries.

USE OF HELMET.

A class of miners will be trained in the use of the oxygen helmet which permits breathing in poisonous gases for a period of two hours. The oxygen helmet has proved a valuable aid in entering mines filled with fire damp following an explosion.

In the afternoon the operators, engineers and superintendents will witness an actual mine explosion in the experimental mine of the bureau at Bruceton, Pa., twelve miles from Pittsburg. Coal dust will be allowed to accumulate in the mine and, by means of powder, the use of which is strongly urged against by the bureau in mines where there are dangerous conditions, will be used. In other words, the bureau's experts will cause out in this mine all the bad practices which they believe lead to explosions.

The next morning, October 27, the demonstration will take place on Forbes field, the Pittsburg baseball park. In the presence of the President of the United States and other distinguished visitors. A temporary steel gallery will be erected on the playing field and the cause of the recent great explosion in coal mines will be dramatically shown in an explosion of coal dust. Immediately following the explosion members of one of the rescue corps of the bureau, in their oxygen helmets, will enter the smoke-filled gallery and go through the work of rescue. Supposed victims of the explosion will be brought forth and given first aid to the injured.

Expert rescue teams from the principal mining states will be present to give friendly exhibitions and then the miners will pass in review of the President. The parade of the miners will continue downtown to river front, where a special pier has been assigned them to witness the marine parade in honor of the centenary of the beginning of steam navigation on the Ohio river. The miners' demonstration will conclude at noon and the remainder of the day will be taken up with the river centennial.

DRUG CLERK ARRESTED ON BAD CHECK CHARGE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Thomas A. Madden, a drug clerk of Los Angeles, was arrested today on a warrant issued by the southern city charging him with passing bad checks. Madden admitted that he was the man wanted.

FOR THE NECK AND SHOULDERS

A Free Prescription That Instantly Removes Blemishes, Tan, Freckles, and the Wrinkles and Marks Left by High Collars.

Prepare It at Your Own Home

The Dutch neck and the evening gown too often exposes the discolorations and blemishes of high collars or the effects of tan and freckles. It is easy to overcome these conditions by using a beautiful and white and soft and smooth—to remove, in other words, every blemish, and to make the Dutch collar as attractive as it is comfortable. This prescription can also be used on the shoulders and it is most effective to beautify the hands and arms.

If you want to try it, go to your drug-gist, get an empty two-ounce bottle, also a one-ounce bottle of KuluX Compound. Pour the entire bottle of KuluX into the two-ounce bottle, add a quarter of an ounce of witch hazel, then mix with water. Prepare this at your own home, and then you know what you have. One application will astonish you. It is deliciously cool and soothing, and is not affected by perspiration. It will not rub off. If you put it on one hand only, or on one side of the neck, and note the difference, you will see the wonderful change it makes instantly. The results are permanent, and continued use of this prescription will result in a skin as soft and smooth as a child's, a skin from which redness and roughness and freckles have been entirely removed.

CONGRESS MAY END Y. M. I. COUNCIL TO EXTRA SESSION CONVENE AT WEDNESDAY SEA SHORE

Five Months of Bitter Turmoil and Trouble About to Terminate.

Twenty-Seventh Annual Meeting Will Be Held August 28.

POLITICS RULES BOTH BRANCHES

Yet Accomplishments of Important Nature Have Marked Work.

MANY FEATURES ON FIVE-DAY PROGRAM

Grand Parade Will Follow Arrival of Delegates at Santa Cruz.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—At last the end of the extra session of Congress is really in sight, after nearly five months of bitter turmoil and trouble with endless political maneuvering in preparation for the presidential campaign and with politics overshadowing statesmanship. The end will come not later than Wednesday and is likely to come on Tuesday. Already Senators and Representatives are leaving the city.

Little remains to be done in the Senate, save to talk over what has happened and discuss questions that are to come up next session. The House has before it the cotton-revision bill, plus a number of amendments, and has also before it the compromise statehood resolution, which went through the Senate last evening. The House is expected to concur Monday in the cotton bill as it passed with amendments in the Senate.

ANOTHER PRESIDENTIAL VETO

The ways and means committee today decided to report it favorably. It will go to the President and be vetoed. The House is expected to pass the statehood resolution. The accomplishment of the session has been the passage of the reciprocity bill.

Another most important development has been the starting by the House of important investigations, foremost of which is that of the Department of Agriculture, with its amazing revelations of a cabal against Dr. Wiley, and failure to enforce the pure food law.

Passage of the statehood measure will cause this session to be long remembered, as will also the second Lorimer investigation by the Senate and the remarkable tariff which developed after the reciprocity measure passed.

FIG MARKET HIGHEST IN TWENTY-FIVE YEARS

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Aug. 19.—The fig market of 1911 has been the highest in twenty-five years. With the price opening at 4 cents to 4 1/2 cents early in the year, it has maintained that level throughout, and the clean-up at about this figure now seems assured. The market has been remarkably stable, with practically no fluctuations. Figs have been about cleaned up from the growers' hands. Also, they are being readily taken from the packers by the east, which is buying well at the high figures, allowing the goods to move out naturally.

PEARS ARE BACKWARD.

UKIAH, Aug. 19.—Reports from Bartlett pear growers are to the effect that in some localities the pears are already beginning to fall a little and packing will have to commence soon. The fruit is very small this year, although it has grown more the past ten days than in all the rest of the season before. The prune crop is likewise light and backward.

DANGERS OF FAT

HOW FAT AFFECTS THE STOMACH

STOMACH

The stomach is the seat of digestion, wherein are separated from food the nutritious elements that build and sustain our bodies. When the stomach ceases to function, the food, instead of being converted into muscle and sinew, there comes an excess of fat, where there should be firm, hard flesh. This excess fat collects in most undesirable places, impeding motion until movement becomes an exertion. The layers of fat check the stomach's natural movements for digestion of food—thus increasing the trouble. But many people have found relief in the famous Marmola Prescription that there is hardly any necessity for obesity. And now that Marmola Prescription Tablets can be obtained there is even less excuse for too much fat. Dieting and exercise are rendered unnecessary by this new form of fat reduction. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or the Marmola Co., 78 Monroe Ave., Detroit, Mich., at 75c the case. They quickly and harmlessly reduce the overfat body at the rate of 10 to 16 oz. a day, improve digestion, clear the complexion and promote bodily health.

NEW FIRM SHOWS CLEVER METHOD

Finds Way to Tell Where Inquiries Come From.

The demand for the Central California Traction Colonies lands, which are owned by the Central California Traction Company, and for which Sine and Kendrick are the exclusive agents, has been so great that it was found necessary for them to have some firm in Oakland to represent them and they have succeeded in getting Messrs. Ball and Gunn, who have offices in the Union Savings Bank building, to handle their Alameda county business.

Messrs. Ball and Gunn make a specialty of farms and for several years have been connected with a firm in San Francisco who handled farm lands exclusively.

When asked what they thought was the cause for the rapid sale of Central California Traction Colony lands, Sine and Kendrick said that they attributed it to the fact that the Central California Traction Company was not after making a profit on the sale of the lands, but was interested in getting the section of country through which their road runs settled up in order to increase their freight business.

Messrs. Ball and Gunn report business good and getting better. They say that they know from their experience in the farm lands business in San Francisco that they get more inquiries from Alameda county than they do from San Francisco county, therefore they have come to the conclusion that the Alameda county people are wide awake and looking for good investments.

LUMBER PRICES REACH EBB TIDE

San Francisco Market Lowest Since 1893 and Continues Dull.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Not since 1893 has the price of lumber in San Francisco been as low as at present. The price now is from $10 to $11 per thousand. This exceptionally low price has prevailed for more than a year. In 1893 lumber reached its minimum price, $8 per thousand. The highest point ever reached here was $28 per thousand. The lumberman's situation in Los Angeles is not a happy one owing to the low prices which prevail there despite the building activity. Building is going on all over the West. From Seattle, Tacoma and Portland come improving reports. The San Francisco bay districts are using large and growing quantities of lumber.

A total of 40,065,000 feet of redwood, fir and spruce lumber were received in San Francisco from July 30 to August 14. Europe's Gray's Harbor, Coos Bay, Willapa Harbor and Fort Bragg are the principal points of shipment.

JESSIE MINOR IN PORT. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—The schooner Jessie Minor, from this port April 13 for Bristol Bay, for the safety of which grave anxiety was felt, is safe at its destination. She arrived June 10.

IGNAZ HAROLDI, POLISH VIOLINIST, TO BE HEARD IN OAKLAND THIS SEASON

Local Lovers of Music Much Interested in His Tour

Ignaz Haroldi, the great Polish violinist, to the delight of music lovers will be heard this season in Oakland.

Haroldi has been called the poet of the violin, because of the poetic beauty of his interpretations.

His fame in Europe is well established where on the occasion of his concerts in public he is enthusiastically greeted.

He possesses a rich, sonorous tone and plays with brilliancy and with liquid sweetness, possessing remarkable technique and commanding depth and breadth of tone.

After touring the United States Haroldi will tour Europe.

LECTURES TO TEACHERS. Through the efforts of Superintendent of Schools McClymonds a talk by Mr. Tomlin was arranged for the teachers of the department at the Commencement assembly hall last week, and at that time several hundred teachers signified their interest by attending a class to go more deeply into Mr. Tomlin's theories and methods.

The board of education was appealed to and permission obtained to use the assembly hall for this course. Evening classes may be announced for Monday and Tuesday evenings that may be open to a few outside of the teachers.

Very great interest is being manifested in Mr. Tomlin by the department teachers as they realize the wonderful results to be obtained by these methods, and the benefit to themselves as well as to the children.

In England as well as in many parts of this country this work has been adopted and endorsed by leading educators and musicians. For several years the English government has carried on exhaustive investigations resulting in the nationalizing of the work and further asking Mr. Tomlin's full time. A very complete report is now being published by the English authorities giving in detail the great things accomplished.

The Oakland school music supervisors are earnestly supporting Mr. Tomlin and Miss Elizabeth Sherman has taken charge of the classes now forming.

HILLSIDE PROGRAM.

The Hillside club will open its season with a Wagner program on Tuesday evening. Wagner numbers will be given by Miss Andrew, violinist, pupil of Miss Eileen Mitchell O'More and Frederick Maurier, pianist.

Mrs. Cassa Maurer, first president of the organization, will give some reminiscences of the Bayreuth festival. Mrs. Frederick Searby will address the members taking for her subject "Some Legends of the Wagner Operas."

GRAND OPERA AT IDORA. The Lambari Grand Opera Company will open this afternoon at Idora Park to the delight of the general public. Many of the artists are favorites to music lovers around the bay and in addition there will be several new stars.

The repertoire includes the following: "Madame Butterfly," "Marion," "Thais," "Siegfried," "The Bohemians," "Norma," "Carmen," "Othello," "La Boheme," "La Tosca," "Aida," "Lucia," "Fedora," "Mascara," "Furber," "Faust," "Il Trovatore," "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," "The Barber of Seville."

Angelo Antola, well remembered here for his beautiful voice, will be given a cordial welcome. The list of artists include Elvira Bosetti, dramatic soprano; Emilia Lepavutti, lyric soprano; Lydia Levy, coloratura contralto; Monti, Luisa Cecchetti and Adelina Glana; Tenors—Agostino Guarnieri (lyric), Enrico Sgarbi (dramatic), and Lucio Neri (dramatic); baritone—Michel Gioacchini (dramatic); Angelo Antola (lyric); basso—Eunavura Marzani (lyric); basso—maestros—Chevalier Fulgenzio Guerrieri, Signor Luigi Cecchetti and Signor Mario Hedigar, stage director, R. Petrovich.

COMEDY TO BE GIVEN BY CATHOLIC LADIES. SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—On Tuesday evening a comedy in one act, entitled "When the Cat's Away," will be presented by eight of the young ladies of the choir in the Guild Hall of Holy Innocents Church on Fair Oak street, between Twenty-fifth and Twenty-sixth streets.

Those taking part are the Misses Alice Glennon, Merle McDonald, Dorothy Chase, Nina Luke, Mabel Dawes, Elsie Nelson, Mona Leslie and Mildred Chapman.

Mr. Melvin Williams will render a vocal solo and Mrs. Christian and Miss Parison will give musical selections.

The Rev. F. C. Murgotten is rector.

FRUIT SHIPMENTS HAVE BEEN HEAVY. WINTERS, Aug. 19.—After a very heavy shipping season the forwarding business of the local fruit sheds has slackened off and until grapes begin to go in quantities the shipping will be light. The season was exceptional from the growers' standpoint up to a few days ago, when a long delayed slump hit some of the Eastern markets. All varieties of peaches have been shipped in large quantities up to now, but the bulk of the crop will not be moving for several days yet. Potatoes and vegetables proved to be money-makers from the shipping standpoint this season, but the season is practically over now. Melons are going in quantities now and are of exceptional quality and demand a fair price all over the coast.

IGNATZ HAROLDI, the great Polish violinist, who will be heard in concert in Oakland this season.

CAPT. PARKER READY TO DIG FOR SACRED RELICS

Work to Be Resumed in Holy Land; Contract With the Turkish Government Comes to Light

JERUSALEM, Aug. 19.—Word is received here that Captain Montague Parker expects to resume the work of excavating for sacred relics in the Valley of Sileam in August.

It will be recalled that after much excavating had been done and some relics it is claimed, recovered, the work was interrupted by charges that the explorers had violated the holy mosque of the east of the guardians of the Turkish government. A decision as to whether the Captain's contract with the Turkish government can be technically construed to justify his operations at the mosque of Omar is awaited with interest.

It will be recalled that after much excavating had been done and some relics it is claimed, recovered, the work was interrupted by charges that the explorers had violated the holy mosque of the east of the guardians of the Turkish government. A decision as to whether the Captain's contract with the Turkish government can be technically construed to justify his operations at the mosque of Omar is awaited with interest.

Now the contract between Parker, representing an Anglo-American syndicate, and the Turkish government has come to light. Its personal leaves one in doubt as to whether the explorers can be shown to have exceeded their rights, but, on the other hand, it furnishes unmistakable evidence that the Captain was sanguine of discovering rare treasures and that he financed the affair liberally. It also develops that the Turkish government was a partner in the transaction and was to share in the spoils.

TWELVE ARTICLES. The contract contains twelve articles, some of which are worth reproducing. Article I. The Turkish government undertakes to furnish whatever land or property the Captain may select and determine upon as the site where to excavate by adopting every feasible method of procuring the transferring the same to the Captain, whether by right of purchase in the case of the property belonging to private individuals or by issuing a grant of land in case of the property belonging to the Crown.

PARKER RESTRAINED. Article II. The Turkish government undertakes to furnish whatever land or property the Captain may select and determine upon as the site where to excavate by adopting every feasible method of procuring the transferring the same to the Captain, whether by right of purchase in the case of the property belonging to private individuals or by issuing a grant of land in case of the property belonging to the Crown.

Article III. The Turkish government undertakes to furnish whatever land or property the Captain may select and determine upon as the site where to excavate by adopting every feasible method of procuring the transferring the same to the Captain, whether by right of purchase in the case of the property belonging to private individuals or by issuing a grant of land in case of the property belonging to the Crown.

Article IV. The Turkish government undertakes to furnish whatever land or property the Captain may select and determine upon as the site where to excavate by adopting every feasible method of procuring the transferring the same to the Captain, whether by right of purchase in the case of the property belonging to private individuals or by issuing a grant of land in case of the property belonging to the Crown.

Article V. The Turkish government undertakes to furnish whatever land or property the Captain may select and determine upon as the site where to excavate by adopting every feasible method of procuring the transferring the same to the Captain, whether by right of purchase in the case of the property belonging to private individuals or by issuing a grant of land in case of the property belonging to the Crown.

Article VI. The Turkish government undertakes to furnish whatever land or property the Captain may select and determine upon as the site where to excavate by adopting every feasible method of procuring the transferring the same to the Captain, whether by right of purchase in the case of the property belonging to private individuals or by issuing a grant of land in case of the property belonging to the Crown.

AMERICANS NEED AN AUTOCRACY TO FLOURISH

THEY HUNGER FOR SOCIAL POWER

Marquis of Queensberry Makes Pertinent Observations Regarding Yankee Cousins.

Divorce System, "Cheek" of Children, Capitalistic Power and Reporters Derided.

Some things in America that the Marquis of Queensberry dislikes:

- The way the children "cheek" their elders and betters.
- The way Americans tire of their husbands and wives.
- The way a few capitalists get more money than they made and rule the country with it.
- The way reporters are served up with your breakfast, whether you wish to see them or not.
- The fuss Americans make over an obscure person like a marquis, a duke or a title of any kind.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The Marquis of Queensberry has not yet found the job he came to America to look for. He is studying America and Americans—and has made some interesting discoveries, which he told today in an interview.

"I was not at all prepared to be rushed as I have been," he declared. "I thought I could land here quietly enough and avoid notoriety until my plans had begun to shape themselves; but I have given up. Why, you Americans ought to have an aristocracy of your own, you approve so strenuously of European aristocracy."

"That's a queer thing to say, I suppose. But I don't really believe America would be the great country she is destined to become until she has."

DIVORCES ARE SHOCKING.

"You would not have so many divorces, you know, if you had an aristocracy. You can't have love of home and the family and perpetuate the best instincts of a race unless you care enough for the family name to keep it unstained. Why, it's shocking the way you Americans get divorced. It's done in England, too, but not nearly so much as here."

Just think of contracting alliances with four different families during a lifetime. It's too much to contemplate. You can't keep up the tradition of the Smith family if you are going to cut away from it and join the Jones family, and then marry into the Robinson household.

"But I do not want to criticize America. I have too much respect for your enterprise, your business ability and brains. England is drained out, you know. It's the plutocratic peers that are to blame. I'm a Liberal; all most all the older peers are, and we are for the people and with the poor. The newly designated lords have no use for the poor people."

"Coming over on the boat," he continued, "I noticed that the American boy begins to develop his business sense at a very early age. That is well, I think, but I do not like the way they 'cheek' their parents, nor the way their parents regard it as a mark of status in their children when they simply are naughty."

LIKES MODEST GIRLS.

"In England we like our girls to be modest and innocent. I am proud of my little daughter. She is 14 years of age and does not begin to be as independent and headstrong as an American girl of her age. Why, the American girl is a regular little flirt at 14. And when she becomes a woman she is rather hard and calculating. Oh, no, not all American women are 'hard,' but there is a certain class that is."

"There is another thing about aristocracy. If Americans care more for a name than for money, four or five men would not be ruling the industrial condition, but then I don't know enough about this subject to talk any more."

Estrada Has 100,000 Votes Over Alfaro

Ecuadoran Congress Declares the Election Valid and Opposition Forces Chosen.

QUITO, Ecuador, Aug. 19.—Congress today declared that Emilio Estrada had been legally elected president of Ecuador by a plurality of more than 100,000 votes over General Flavio Alfaro.

Estrada will assume office on August 31. Congress convened in extra session to consider the protest of Alfaro's partisans that Estrada had been elected through fraud. Troops are still pursuing the rebel force that recently raided the town of Vinces. The rebels are followers of General Alfaro.

AMID CHEERS OF LOYAL THOUSANDS QUEEN IS CROWNED

GAY CROWDS MAKE MERRY AT THE ELMHURST FETE

Festivities to Come to Close on Sunday Evening

ELMHURST, Aug. 19.—In the presence of thousands of loyal subjects, Queen Gertrude was crowned this afternoon by R. D. Holmes, the personal representative of Mayor Frank K. Mott, who at the last moment found it impossible to be present and sent Holmes in his stead.

The ceremony took place directly following the grand parade in which her majesty took part, being seated in an automobile surrounded by her court, consisting of Miss Emily Olliver, Miss Orellia Eist, Miss Ollie Montero, Miss Mabel Battiste and two pages, Marie Rose and Lorad Strand. The crowning was performed on the specially constructed throne in the center of the carnival grounds.

Queen Gertrude was greeted by the members of the arrangements committee and was congratulated by many of the prominent people of the community. The grounds were then turned over to the merry-makers for the rest of the day.

GRAND PARADE.

The parade lined up at Jones avenue and East Fourteenth street shortly before 3 p. m., being headed by a platoon of police from the Melrose squad. Then came the San Leandro band, followed by Grand Marshal Phenegar, supported by his aids, Geo. Murphy and Joseph Gibson. The order of the remainder of the parade was as follows: Troop of cowboys, queen's automobile, arrangements committee, automobile, Lockwood school band, boy scouts and floats, among which were those constructed by the Nelson Company, the Home restaurant concern, the J. R. Olivera Company and the Elmhurst Lumber Company. At the end of the parade came the horribles, the most noticeable being a fantastic representation of the Elmhurst fire department.

The floats and automobiles were elaborately decorated, the whole being in keeping with the flags and bunting on the houses and power poles along the line of march, which was from Jones avenue east to Stonehurst, then back along East Fourteenth street to the fair grounds. In the committee machine were Alfred Dowson, J. C. Toffelmier, E. Dowson, H. Hogan, Tony Garcia and R. D. Holmes. B. Magnusson, chairman of the arrangements committee, rode in the place of honor beside Queen Gertrude in the royal automobile.

Thousands of persons from every section of the annexed district and towns in Alameda county lined the street along the line of march, the best seats being taken sometime before the formation of the parade. Hundreds gathered at the store and office windows that they might witness the pageant to more advantage.

The baby show and contest, which was postponed from yesterday afternoon, proved a great success, the attendance being large and the babies shown exceptionally lusty specimens. The affair was held in the Foresters' Hall on East Fourteenth street near Ninety-second avenue. These to carry off the prizes were: First, Edwin Arlett, son of Mrs. A. Arlett; second, Mildred Wehrmann, daughter of Mrs. F. Wehrmann; third, Neal Curtiss Monroe, son of Mrs. C. A. Monroe.

The taking of the third prize by baby Neal, who is a bouncing boy of three years, was a complete surprise to his mother, who is the wife of Dr. C. A. Monroe, the Elmhurst physician. The child had been taken out riding in J. Hood's automobile when the latter suddenly concluded to enter the youngster in the contest.

Elmhurst presented an unprecedented scene of activity tonight when a myriad of many colored lights

Miss Priscilla Williams Carries Off Prize at Chicago Target.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Miss Priscilla Williams, 11 years old, daughter of Dr. C. L. Williams of Chicago, was the brightest and the smallest star in the closing day's shooting of the thirty-third annual tournament of the National Archery Association.

Miss Williams succeeded in winning the narrow wand in the competition, tying with Mrs. C. F. Woodruff of Evanston, Ill., and Miss Edna Wilson of Chicago. In shooting off the tie with three arrows, Miss Williams was the only one to strike the object.

The hazel wand came from the vicinity of Robin Hood's grave in Sherwood Forest, England.

Spanks His Wife for Being Too Extravagant

Judge Condone Throwing, Declaring Spouse Received What Was Coming.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 19.—Alberman Ricketts of this city discharged William Novalous of Ashley, who admitted spanking his wife because she was extravagant. His wife had Novalous arrested and he did not hesitate to admit that he had beaten her.

"It is this way, your honor," he explained. "I gave her a sum of money every month on which to run the house. When a couple of days ago I found that she had used considerable of this money for another purpose, I got angry and spanked her with my razor strap."

As Mrs. Novalous appeared none the worse for the spanking, the alderman discharged the man.

1500 Acres Burned Over at Monte Rio

Bohemian Club Grove Is Threatened as Well as the Railroad Tunnel.

MONTE RIO, Cal., Aug. 19.—Fierce forest fires burned their way over 1500 acres today, on which luckily there were no large trees.

Fire surrounded the mouth of the Northwestern Pacific tunnel two and a half miles south of here. The fire department is in readiness for the expected battle with the flames.

The Bohemian Club grove is in danger, the fire being within one and a half miles. Employees of the grove are busy cutting a break in hopes of checking the flames.

The conflagration, also, is working west and threatens Camp Meeker. One hundred men are on the ground making a determined fight. It is reported that twenty firefighters were killed by the flames but by heroic work they fought their way out.

Representatives of the forestry service are expected momentarily to help check the flames. No loss of life has been reported so far.

Tried to Get Into Wrong House; Hospital

Landlord Says the Stranger Fell, Victim Thinks Locomotive Ran Over Him.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Sheldon Levitt, 65 years of age, of Augusta, Ga., formerly a captain in the Confederate Army, who stays at the Army and Navy Club when here, tried to get into the wrong house today. In consequence he was taken to the hospital, where two stitches were taken in a cut over the right eye.

Patrolman Cook found Captain Levitt lying before No. 125 West Forty-fifth street, a theatrical boarding-house. Levitt said he had been pushed down the stoop of nine steps.

Bennett, the owner of the boarding-house, said Levitt went to the house and asked for "a certain party." Though the maid told him the person did not live there, Levitt insisted on entering. Bennett said he "heard a rumpus," went to the hall and told Levitt he was in the wrong house. Levitt stepped backward, tripped over a rug and fell down the stoop. Patrolman Cook took Bennett to the West Forty-seventh police station. He was released in $500 bail.

Negroes Killed in Battle With Whites

DONALDSONVILLE, Ga., Aug. 19.—Three negroes, members of a party of blacks who barricaded themselves in a house and fired on whites, were killed at Jakin yesterday. Further clashes are feared. Race troubles of serious proportions followed the killing of Marshal Neuberry, Tuesday night, at Jakin. Aroused through the murder, people have burned a number of negro lodgings, school houses and churches.

WILSON HEAD MAKES RECORD

IN CARRYING PASSENGER

Dr. Liberty H. Bailey of Country Life Commission Is Slated for Cabinet.

Official Confirmation Not Yet Given Ousting of Aged Agricultural Secretary.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—That Dr. Liberty H. Bailey of New York, one of the leading agriculturists of the United States and the man who was named by President Roosevelt to head the Country Life Commission, is to be appointed secretary of agriculture to succeed Secretary James Wilson of Iowa is the report which is in circulation here in well informed circles.

The report lacks official confirmation, but it is believed to have substantial foundation. Dr. Bailey's name has been quietly mentioned here for some days in connection with the department of agriculture.

That Secretary Wilson's tenure of office will be brief is the conviction that has settled down over Washington.

The President has studiously refrained from saying what he would do about the department of agriculture, but it is considered of the utmost significance that after getting almost ready his decision in the Wiley case relating to the Rusby contract, he held it back, then announced he would take all the evidence brought out before the Moss committee to Beverly with him and see what should be done.

PUBLIC IS AROUSED.

The President has been compelled to realize that he has the problem of reorganizing the department of agriculture on his hands to consider and that public feeling is deeply aroused over the situation.

In selecting a successor to Wilson, Dr. Bailey is sure to receive serious consideration if indeed the matter has not already gone beyond deliberation.

10,000 Hoboes to Meet in Convention

Freight Trains Already Carrying "Delegates" to Meeting in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Freight trains throughout the country are reported to be carrying as passengers thousands of hoboes bound for their annual convention, which this year will be held here from September 1 to 4.

James Eads How of St. Louis, the "millionaire hobo," chairman of the national committee of the unemployed and Brotherhood of Welfare Association, is here making preparations for the gathering. He informed Chief of Police Sylvester that there would be between 6000 and 10,000 delegates to the convention.

"Well, that won't be as many as came with Coxey," was the chief's comment. "I guess there will be no difficulty in handling this convention."

How said the convention would consider demands to be made on Congress for the establishment of national free employment bureaus and legislation providing free transportation to jobs, shortening of working hours, a minimum wage scale and other reforms which will be appreciated by the employed and unemployed "until the establishment of the industrial republic, in which all will receive a full product of their labor."

He said a number of Congressmen would address the convention.

Sold Ox Loaned Him In Canada; Arrested

Mounted Police Trail Man Who Failed to Keep His Agreement.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Because he sold an ox which had been given him or rather loaned him, by the government of Canada, Ernest Court was arrested here today and will be sent over the border for trial.

Court was for years a motorist on the local lines, but some time ago went to Canada and was given a homestead and three oxen by way of a loan. Two of the beasts of burden died and he decided to return to San Francisco. Court sold the third, pocketing the coin.

He had not reckoned on the Canadian mounted police, however, and Superintendent Robert Cutbert communicated with the local authorities and today Detective Michael Burke took Court into custody.

Lands in California Forest to Be Opened

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The unappropriated public lands in 22,550 acres near the Monterey National Forest, California, will be opened to settlement under the homestead laws on October 17 and to entry November 16. Less than half these lands are unappropriated. They had been under temporary withdrawal for forestry purposes but have been released on the recommendation of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Oaks Make Grand Eighth-Inning Rally and Turn Bitter Defeat Into Great Victory

BIG DOINGS IN EIGHTH AT LOS ANGELES SADDENS HAP

Oakland Drives Gipe Out of Box and Brackenridge Fares but Little Better;
Locals Again in Form

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—Vernon had just driven Kilroy from the mound in the seventh inning of today's game with Oakland and taken a 6-to-3 lead, when the storm broke that enabled the Oaks to come from behind and beat the Hooligans at their own game of making a strong finish.

Gipe, who is rated as a $10,000 beauty, pitched splendid ball for several innings without a sign of wobbling, but the first three Oaks to face him in the eighth nearly knocked the fence down with their long two-baggers and Gipe was benched in favor of Brackenridge. He was treated no better and a walk, sacrifice, single, double and triple completed the downfall of the league leaders, resulting in five runs. Plater succeeded Kilroy in the seventh and the Oaks were in trouble in retiring the villagers, but after that round he never was in the slightest trouble. He whiffed them when they became dangerous and in the ninth allowed only three batters to face him. Oakland scored one in the first on clean hits, but Vernon came back with two, similarly earned. In the sixth the villagers gathered in another pair and repeated in the seventh. Then came the scoring. Oakland put over a pair in the third, due to Burrell's wild throw to second and completed the scoring with a single in the eighth. The victory was a little flimsy, but it was a victory and the eighth inning rally that was elegantly sufficient.

RAIN INTERFERES IN GAME BETWEEN ANGELS AND DUCKS

THIRTY ENTRIES WILL START ON TAHOE RUN

Great Interest Is Being Displayed on All Sides Over Outcome of Coming Four-Day Grind

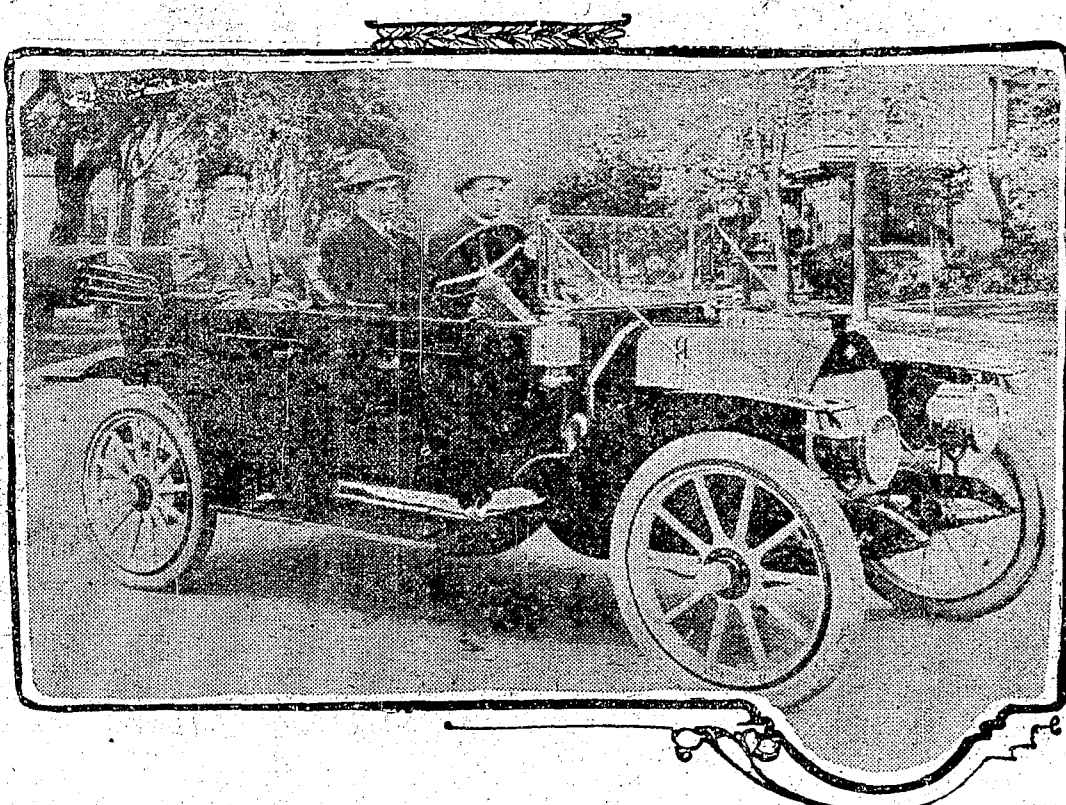

By J. A. HOULIHAN.

There is every indication that at least thirty cars will take the road when start is made from Oakland next Saturday morning on the second annual Lake Tahoe endurance run. In fact the number of cars that have already entered the tour very nearly approaches this figure and every day is bringing new entries. As yet the cars entered by dealers are in the preponderance. But with the increased interest that the private owners of this section of the state are taking in the run, there is good indication of their having more machines entered eventually than the local agents. This is not because of any hesitancy on the part of the dealers in entering the run, for as a matter of fact no contest for a long time has met with such general favor from this coast. Eighteen cars have already been entered by agents in Oakland and San Francisco and several more can be expected within the coming few days. This means that the number of cars sent on the run by dealers should easily number twenty-five. The entry of nine cars by private owners has already been assured. In addition to these owners there are about as many more who are so seriously contemplating making the trip that they have not yet entered the run in mind. As an accommodation to those who wish to enter the event, the committee in charge has established offices at 568 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco and all applications for entry or information should be addressed there to Earle Snell.

The majority of the owners who have thus far entered have registered in the regular contest division. A few, however, have taken advantage of the private owners' division, which is made subject to no rules and which is arranged especially for those owners who desire to go on the tour for pleasure only. The cars entered by the private owners thus far are a representative lot, all being of different makes except two Loziers. One of these Loziers is entered and will be driven by C. E. Mathewson, Pacific Coast manager of the Diamond Rubber Company. While by no means the last, Mathewson was the first private owner to enter a car in the contest division. The other Lozier is entered by Ben Sheuerman, who will also officiate at the wheels. Among the other private owners are J. Williams who has entered a Buick; J. W. Varney entering a Locomobile; C. H. Collier with a Hudson; Manager Pratt of the Fisk Rubber Company in a Pope-Hartford; George H. Young in a Winton; and Roy Yates in an Autocar. A Crawford is also to be entered by a private owner.

A happy co-incidence that is giving additional attraction to the coming run is the fact that it will offer the tourists an opportunity of visiting the State Fair at Sacramento, which has its opening on the 28th. This is the date on which the run also has its start from Oakland. The schedule does not provide any long stop in the capital city on this date, however, the night control being fixed at Auburn so as to have the cars in easy reach of the Tavern for the following day. Time will be taken in Sacramento nevertheless to parade of the cars through the fair district, and naturally it is expected that they will occasion considerable interest. On return the night control for the 25th is fixed at Sacramento and this will afford the tourists an opportunity of engaging in the real festivities of the fair. The schedule puts the first car in Sacramento at 5 p. m. on this date and consequently a long evening will be given for the fair. It can be arranged, the cars will check both in and out at the fair grounds.

The new 1912 Everitt Fore-Door Touring Car, a late arrival from the East. At the wheel is John Fremming. In the tonneau, W. L. Hunsaker and A. M. Davis.

BRITISH PEER ON INSPECTION TOUR

Visits Mitchell Factory and Is Amazed at Up-to-Date Methods Used.

Having driven an American car over most of the highways of England and Scotland and wishing to see the process by which they were manufactured Lord Exmouth, a member of the British peerage, during his recent visit to Chicago, took occasion to go to Racine, Wis., and inspect the factory of the Mitchell-Lewis Motor Company, where the car he owns was made. As a result he declared himself more pleased than ever with American cars and methods and the Mitchell people have a correspondingly high opinion of British aristocracy.

It was Saturday afternoon when he appeared at the Racine office and asked to see J. W. Gilson, assistant secretary of the company. So deferential was "His lordship's" manner, according to Mr. Gilson, that one might suppose he was seeking a position to suit in all kinds of ways.

"Certainly," was Mr. Gilson's reply. "Have you a card?" And when the Englishman handed him a bit of pasteboard bearing the inscription "Member of the House of Lords" and various other marks of rank it gave the automobile man the surprise of his life. Needless to say the visitor spent an interesting afternoon in the factory. "He was very much surprised at the vast difference in the methods of manufacturing in this country," he compared with Great Britain and the continent," said Mr. Gilson. "He could not realize that we are turning out forty complete cars a day and that a year's output is between 7000 and 8000 cars. In the old country they are in the habit of turning them out in lots of a hundred or more, and body who builds two hundred of the same model is considered a large manufacturer."

MOTORCYCLE NOTES

V. R. Spence of Fairbairn, Minn., a fear maker, has just completed a three-thousand mile tour on a motorcycle. He rode from his home in Fairbairn, Minn., to attend the celebration of American Motorcyclists' convention, and then rode home again. He made as much as two hundred miles a day, part of the time.

Mayor Keller of St. Paul, Minn., has recently suggested that there is a serious reason for licensing street-car motorcyclists drivers to obtain licenses. He believes further that the drivers of all power-driven vehicles should be required to submit to physical examination and test, the same as is required of steam road employees.

Another American is to startle Europe this time with the aid of a motorcycle. William Streiff sailed to London recently and will spend several months on his motorcycle, covering England, Ireland, Scotland, Germany, Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland and Italy. Mr. Streiff made a trip from New York to San Francisco last fall on the same motorcycle.

A Tri-Cities motorcycle race meet will be held Thanksgiving day in Redlands, Cal., to be participated in by the Redlands Motorcycle Club, the San Bernardino Club and the Riverside Club. The plans are for one of the largest race meets ever held in California.

A big interstate motorcycle race meet is scheduled to be held on the State Fair grounds in Indianapolis on August 19. Entries have been obtained from Ohio, Illinois and Indiana. The success of the motorcycle meet in Indianapolis July 4, which was attended by President Taft, has encouraged the Indiana motorcyclists to organize a State racing association and to plan the new meet on a much larger scale.

Physicians give the motorcycle credit for saving the life of a man suffering with appendicitis. Frank Boyd, president of the Baltimore Motorcycle Club, became ill and was operated on for appendicitis. He rapidly recovered, following the operation, and the surgeon said his fine physical condition, due to motorcycle riding, was responsible for his rapid recovery.

MANY STARTERS IN ELGIN ROAD RACE

Crack Drivers Entered and Record Time Is Predicted on August 26.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—The eye of the automobile industry and automobile enthusiasts generally is now turned toward the Elgin National Stock Chassis road race, to be held at Elgin, August 26 and 27, under the joint auspices of the Chicago Motor Club and the Elgin Road Racing Association.

Reports from the "front" indicate that the inspection of the course by officials of the Chicago Motor Club last Sunday was most gratifying. The course is eight miles and 2499 feet in length, but the improvements which have been made since the races of last year cannot help but result in the making of much faster time than the 1910 record of 52.55 miles per hour. Many hundreds of dollars have been spent in widening the road and in straightening out curves. The home stretch has been widened to 54 feet; Brittons hill has been cut considerably; the Udine turn has been entirely removed and widened to 100 feet and telegraph poles set back from the road. The west leg, which a year ago was a country lane, is now one of the fastest portions of the route and the McQueen turn at the northwest corner has been carried further outside. The average width of the course for the entire distance is 24 feet, as against 15 feet in 1910. In other words, for the coming races a strip eight feet wide and eight and a half miles long has been specially prepared. Last year 4,000 spectators were present, and the properly laid dust, but this quantity has already been sprinkled this year, and there are 30,000 gallons more to be used. The early start of the preparations will set the oil permanently before the circuit is opened for practice.

Competing cars and their crews are being lined up at the Elgin Hotel, beginning to report and the signing of two cars, driven by DePalma and Wishart, and the three Aicos, with Grant, Harmand and Lee, are leaving for Elgin today.

The demand for tickets and parking spaces has been unprecedented and more sales have been made down to date than the totals of a year ago.

The timing and press arrangements have been fully completed and the demands of the former along the tour for additional and larger score boards have been met.

Formal announcement has been made of the officials, among whom are Governor Deneen of Illinois, who will review the National Guard in camp at Elgin at that time; honorary referees, George H. Hunter of the Elgin Watch Company; referee, Grant, with Earl, Judge; President Hooper of the A. A. A. Max Harrison of Chicago, Mayor Heidebrand and President Grainger of the Automobile Club from Savannah, President Metzger and General Manager Miles of the N. A. A. M. President Clifton of the Automobile Board of Trade, and Messrs. Fisher and Canfield, presidents, respectively, of the Indianapolis and Atlanta Speedways, with Mr. Hugh Chalmers of Detroit and President Everett C. Brown of the A. A. U.

The Warner electrical timing apparatus will be in use; Fred Wagner will handle the pistol and F. E. Edwards, chairman of the A. A. A. technical committee, will look after the technical details.

In recognition of the generosity of the Aurora Automobile Club in donating the cup for the 151 to 230 division on August 26, this event will be run for the Aurora cup, instead of the Fox River.

The complete list of entries to August 10 is:

Elgin National Stock Chassis, under 600 cubic inches—Lozier, Mulford; National, not named; National, not named; Also, Grant, Aico, Hartman, Aico, Lee, Simplex, DePalma; Simplex, Wishart; Pope-Hartford, Buck.

Illinois trophy, Stock chassis, 451 to 600 cubic inches—National, not named; National, not named; Velle, Jeffkins; Velle, Jeffkins.

Kane County trophy, Stock chassis, 231 to 300 cubic inches—Fal, Grefner; Fal, Grefner; Fal, Pearce; Staver-Chicago, Monckmeier; Staver-Chicago, not named; Staver-Chicago, not named; Cole, Jenkins; Cole, not named; Corbin, Maisonville; Colby, Pearce; Colby, Armstrong; Colby, not named.

Aurora cup, Stock chassis, 161 to 230 cubic inches—Abbott-Detroit, Roberts.

DE ROSIER COMING BACK TO AMERICA

Winner of World's Motocycle Championship Will Soon Race Here.

Jake DeRosier is on his way back to America with the world's professional motorcycle track championship in his possession. His victory at Brooklands, England, over C. R. Collier, the English champion, is regarded as another success for American industry. In addition to DeRosier's records American built motorcycles took first, second and third over a field of sixty-seven starters in the Tourist Trophy race.

DeRosier broke the world's record for the mile and the kilometer with a flying start, covering a mile in 40.45 seconds, at a rate of 88.24 miles an hour, and the kilometer in 25.15 seconds, at a rate of 88.77 miles an hour.

DeRosier is expected to appear in a number of exhibitions upon his return to this country, and some of the other

LOZIER CO. AND TETZLAFF AT OUTS

Emphatic Denial Made of Reported Published Statements of Teddy.

The Lozier Motor Co. have issued an emphatic denial of the published statements reported to have been made by Teddy Tetzlaff to the effect that the Lozier Company has been anxious to secure a better car or have made him any offer to compete in the Santa Monica race at the wheel of the Lozier car. Tetzlaff has never been in the employ of the Lozier Company. The car which he drove in the Santa Monica race was of the Lozier type, but it was not the former Lozier agents and Tetzlaff purchased this car after the race. In his match race wherein he defeated De Palma in the 90 horse power Flat he drove the car on his own account and this was the only time he drove the Lozier car.

The Lozier Company state emphatically that no proposition has ever been made to Tetzlaff to engage his services. Tetzlaff's statement that his reason for accepting position with the Lozier Company was because of his ambition to secure a faster car is rather strange, in view of the fact that in a match race in this same car he decisively defeated De Palma in a race in which the 90 H. P. Flat car ran regularly and steadily, but failed to show the speed of the 46 H. P. Lozier. Either the Lozier itself is capable of greater speed than the Flat, or Tetzlaff has assumed that his superior ability was responsible for the defeat of the Flat car. As to the matter in which those who are aware of De Palma's ability, may feel disinclined to agree.

As regards the relative speed of the 46 horsepower Lozier and the 90 horsepower Flat, car ran regularly and steadily, but in every race in which these two models competed within the last year the Lozier car has come out victorious. Ralph Mulford and Joe Horan in the Grand Prize race at Savannah defeated with their Lozier car, and also in the 90 horsepower Flat. Tetzlaff himself defeated the 90 horsepower Flat in the two engagements on the Coast, once in the Santa Monica and again in De Palma's race, in both, establishing American records which still stand. This year Mulford, in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, defeated the 90-horsepower Flat driven by Bruce Brown.

fast motorcyclists are preparing to take him on for some lively contests. Events are already being arranged by the Riverside Motordrome in Chicago, where Graves, Balke, Mitchell, Albright and Walters have been riding for some time. Motorcycle racing has taken hold on popular fancy and new tracks are springing up all around the country. The Federation of American Motorcyclists is keeping in close touch with all the developments of the game with a view to keep the sport clean. Race sanctions are being issued by the Federation of American Motorcyclists competition committee, of which Dr. J. F. Thornley is chairman.

WARREN IS CENTER OF PUBLIC INTEREST

Motor Car Devotees on Both Sides of Bay Attracted to Announcement.

The news on Wednesday of last week announcing to the automobile public that the Warren Detroit would be sold in the future by the Matheson Sales Company has resulted in no end of comment in motor circles on both sides of the bay. As for the car itself, during the last year it has attracted to an enviable height in the automobile world at large, throughout the East in particular, and no doubt will soon be heard from to some extent in this locality.

A number of them are in active use in this city at the present time. That the present ranks will be greatly augmented once the new models, three in number, arrive is not disputed even among the competitive dealers.

During the last two years but one model was produced—a 30 H. P. This season a 30, 35 and 40 H. P. car are included in the season's output contemplated by the Warren Motor Car Company.

The 40 of the Warren 12-40, as it is called, is listed at $1700 at the factory with complete equipment, including a silk mohair top, top cover, and automatic windshield. It is a five-passenger, fore-door touring car and has detachable foredoors. Briefly, some of its specifications are: Wheel base, 116 inches; tires, 34x4 inches, with demountable rims; motor 41/4x4 1/2; three bearing crank shaft; drop front axle; full floating rear axle; 14 inch brake drums and torque rod of unusual strength; double dropped pressed steel frame, water cooled with highest grade of cellular type radiator, centrifugal in front and three-quarter elliptic in the rear.

The "35" has a 4 1/4x4 1/2 inch motor, and throughout carries the same general specifications as the "40". The wheel base is 112 inches, the tires are 34x3 1/2 inches. Bosch magnetos supply the ignition.

The "30" is the famous car upon which the Warren reputation has been built. It has been refined and improved, and, as in the other two models, all the latest improvements have been added on each of the style cars built on this chassis.

The first carload shipment should be here in the next ten days. To the Warren-John every city in the north part of California, the Matheson Sales Company are offering to dealers an attractive proposition.

The same ironclad guarantee which has been given on the Matheson Six cars is given by this firm on all cars sold by them, namely, all repairs, for the first year, free of any charge.

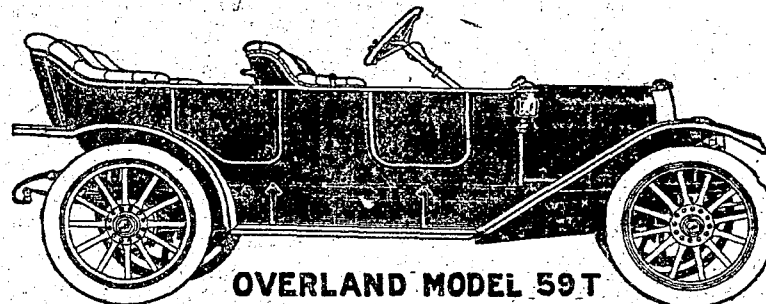

A new thirty-mile boulevard circling Oklahoma City is proving to be a haven for motorcyclists. There is no speed limit on this boulevard.

ANNOUNCEMENT

to Overland Owners and Prospective Overland Buyers

We will represent in Alameda county during the coming season this renowned line of cars, unquestionably the leaders in their class in the motor car world.

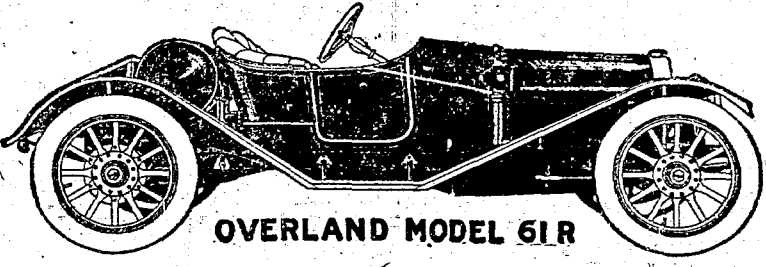

All Overland owners are cordially invited to visit us. We desire your acquaintance to assure you that our policy will be to give you the best of treatment and to assist and advise you on anything pertaining to your car. Just a word about the new Overland models.

OVERLAND MODEL 59T

The introduction of the new thirty-horsepower model 56-T, five-passenger fore-door Touring Car at $900 is probably the greatest single manufacturing stride ever made in this or any other industry. It is an industrial leap directly due to the remarkable and economical progress of a great institution. It demonstrates clearly that the large-production factory can give you more for your money than the small-production factory. By this we do not mean that the small-production factory does not give you a square deal. They do. Their goods are priced honestly enough in proportion to their manufacturing costs. But we do mean that no factory smaller than ours has the operating equipment which can permit their production cost or selling price to be as low as ours.

We are positive that no other manufacturer today can produce this car and sell it at this price, except at financial loss. Write or call for a catalog describing this car. It will be worth your while. This year we have nine new body styles, including runabouts, roadsters, small and large touring cars, torpedoes and coupes. Horsepower runs from 25 to 45. Price $850 to $2000.

OVERLAND MODEL 61R

PRICE $1500.00

Overland Model 61-R—Easy riding qualities are much sought because difficult to obtain in the Roadster. These are possible only by long wheel base and perfect spring suspension. The Model 61-R has these features. Its upholstery is of the best and even slight conception of its comforts cannot be gained without riding in it.

We also represent the Invincible Air-Cooled Franklin, the most perfect cooled car in the world. The name Franklin implies and means a great deal in motor car construction—easy riding, low upkeep cost and minimum tire expense best illustrates the superb Franklin qualities.

FLANDERS 20 IS AGAIN A WINNER

Captures Class Event Last Saturday in Dead Horse Hill Climb.

That the Flanders "Twenty" is destined to play an important part in automobile contests during the coming year is evident from the remarkable manner in which the machine is attacking rivals and coming out with perfect scores, much to the astonishment of everyone concerned, as the road conditions were extremely discouraging to even the highest powered and highest priced cars which participated. A few weeks later the two Flanders entries in the Minneapolis-Helena reliability run, a most trying grind of nine days, divided honors with only one other car, and that a much higher priced and higher powered machine. The two Flanders were awarded perfect scores.

Now comes the news of another, a third victory in one month. At the American hill-climbing classic at Worcester, Mass., Saturday, August 12, the Flanders won the event in her class by climbing Dead Horse hill in one minute, 13.35 seconds, breaking all previous records for her class by forty-six seconds and defeating the second car in the race by thirty-seven seconds. The car also beat the records made in the same event by nine other higher powered and higher priced cars.

The Flanders proved the sensation of the day, say newspaper accounts, the sixty and seventy-horsepower machines barely beating her performance. Dead Horse hill is one mile long, with a rise of 400 feet to the mile. The average speed of the Flanders was better than forty-six miles per hour.

Work on 1912 Chalmers Begun One Year Ago

"During the past few days thousands of people in San Francisco and vicinity have read the announcement of Chalmers cars for 1912. I have wondered how many of those who have read and been interested in the 1912 Chalmers cars, appreciate all that must happen before the hundreds of Chalmers dealers in all parts of the country can be ready to make such an announcement," states E. O. Leonhart of the Pioneer Automobile Company, the local representative of the Chalmers Motor Company.

"As a matter of fact, a score of engineers as many as twenty and forty or fifty expert mechanics began work more than a year ago on the models for 1912. Since the first of November, 1911, the new models which are now offered for the inspection of the public have been tested by the experts of the Chalmers engineering department in all parts of the country—on hills, in sand, in mud and in snow. All this work, extending over months and requiring the services of about 150 men, was merely the preliminary work of giving the public an ever-increasing motor value in proportion to the money spent.

"For months many of the manufacturing departments of the Chalmers factory have been working on parts for 1912 cars. Since June 1 every manufacturing department in this vast plant, which occupies a site of thirty acres with 750,000 square feet of manufacturing floor space, has been working full speed on the new cars.

"Just as fast as the final blue prints have come from the engineering department hundreds of workmen have been put at the task of getting out the many parts for the Chalmers '22' and '23' and the money spent.

COMPETING IS MADE INJURY, SAYS PERKINS

GEORGE W. PERKINS, who was one of the organizers of the steel trust and who recently retired from the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., thinks that competition is the death of trade.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—George W. Perkins, one of the organizers of the steel trust, and who recently retired from the firm of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co., thinks that competition is the death of trade.

Called as a witness in the steel investigation when he was about to address the Michigan College of Mines on the question of national policies, Perkins had his paper on the subject read by President McNair. So, while he was telling the Congressional committee what he knew about trusts, he was denouncing Congress by proxy.

Perkins resigned from the J. Pierpont Morgan firm last year to devote himself to other business.

TALK ON "SPIRITUAL LIFE," SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—At Hamilton Methodist Church, Waller and Belvedere streets, the Rev. John Jackson will speak at 11 a. m. tomorrow on "The Spiritual Life," and at 7 p. m. on "The Mystery of History." Special music at both services.

PICKPOCKET GETS WATCH SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—While riding on a Sutter street car, Wallace McKnight of 1855 Post street, had a watch valued at $20 taken from his pocket.

Chalmers factory has been ticking off the cars, each cog, as represented by some department, fitting in with every other cog, the whole working together to get the first of the 1912 cars out in time for a waiting public.

"To accomplish this great work requires a factory investment of $3,500,000 and over a half million dollars worth of the finest automobile machinery built. For only a company like the Chalmers, which builds its own parts, such as motor, transmission, rear axles, steering gear, etc., can give the great dollar for dollar value which is offered in Chalmers cars. In Chalmers cars is represented one cost and one profit. To accomplish this result the Chalmers company has built up one of the greatest manufacturing plants in the world."

LIFE AFTER DEATH TO BE SOLVED, HE THINKS

HIGHLY INTERESTED IN SURGICAL EXPERIMENTS

Says That War Game Has Been Spoiled by Introduction of Airships.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—That the mystery of life after death may soon be solved is the belief of Thomas A. Edison, as expressed in an interview today. Edison has been interested in the surgical experiments of Dr. Carrel at the Rockefeller Institute. He said:

"Dr. Carrel has succeeded in grafting the leg of a dog which had been cut off and kept in cold storage back on to an animal so that the grafted leg became normal again.

"Such a successful experiment inspires the imagination; it prompts one to ask if the great question of consciousness after death may not eventually be solved in some such manner.

"If some day the scientists arrive at a point where the human body after life is extinct can be thus preserved, and, after an indefinite time, through the transfusion of life-giving blood or fluid, be brought back to resume its normal functions, who can say that we may not learn definitely if there is consciousness after death?"

ACCIDENTS OF NATURE.

"At present, however, man must be regarded as an intricate mechanism, susceptible as a wax recorder to his special environments. Each individual does his best in the circumstances surrounding him. The degree of moral responsibility one may possess in accidents of nature. If a man is born with a face that lacks proportion, he cannot be blamed for picking pockets or indulging in other unkindly deprived him of the normal balance he is entitled to. In other words, we work well or ill, as a machine, according to the degree of perfection with which we are turned out of nature's workshops.

"Our prisons and asylums are consequently only storehouses where a deficient human machine or phonograph is locked up out of harm's way. Civilization must have machines that work properly to achieve the grand results of development which, I believe, are the fruits of the future mind."

WAR GAME SPOILED.

Turning to other things Edison declared that the war game has been spoiled for good by the perfection of the aeroplane.

"I have been told as a fact that France is able to enroll in one day 1200 airplanes for the aeroplane branch of the army. This tempered in no mean way the position taken by Emperor William in the Morocco question. Think of the effect of a fleet of a thousand aeroplanes, and they can get more than five thousand of these air war engines for the price of one Dreadnaught. All the great destructive possibilities of the aeroplane are dwarfed by the moral effect on populations caused by the fear of one of discriminate annihilation.

"We have passed the era of conquest, but the lesson for generations to come would be more plainly presented if on each of the great historical monuments of Paris that excite so much admiration the details of its cost to the French people were placed."

New York Fashion Apostles Prepare to Welcome Prince

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—Fashionable New York, and particularly the members of New York's German colony, are making elaborate preparations to welcome Prince Friedrich Hohenzollern when he visits here and in the near future. He and his brother, Prince Franz Joseph, are two of the Kaiser's cousins.

Prince Friedrich is going to the United States as an officer on the cruiser Victoria Louise, and though extensive plans

ASSAULTS OFFICER WITH KEEN RAZOR

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—After a chase through Chinatown, tonight, Policeman Jack Dolan arrested David Puente, a fireman, who drew a razor upon him. Puente, who is a stranger here and is on a vacation from the northern part of the state, was creating a disturbance when Dolan approached and attempted to settle the trouble. Puente ran and the officer pursued him. As he caught up, his man drew a razor and attempted to slash him.

FALLS FROM WAGON AND FRACTURES JAW

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Nathan Cohen, a bagman residing at 1512 Buchanan street, fell from his wagon at Thirteenth and Howard streets tonight and received a broken jaw and a lacerated wound of the scalp. He was taken for treatment to the Central Emergency hospital.

BUSINESS HOUSES NOW FILL STREET

Once Residence Thoroughfare Occupied by Stores of First Class Quality.

A street which has experienced a remarkable change in the past few years is Fourteenth, between Grove and Washington streets. Not more than three years ago that thoroughfare was devoted strictly to residences, and now there is nothing to be found there but places of business.

The most recent changes in this transformation is the cutting up of the building at the southwest corner of Washington and Fourteenth streets into small stores, all of which have already been rented. Many of the structures between the limits referred to are of a fine and imposing character and indeed an ornament to the city; though most of them are small stores which carry, however, an excellent assortment of goods.

There is no over-crowding of the lines followed and as a consequence, the owners are generally doing a remunerative business. Leases command a liberal sum and there is no time when there is not a demand for places on the thoroughfare.

The street west of Grove street is making a stand against the invasion of business, but it is apparent that it will be but a short time before all the structures there will have to be abandoned as places of abode and make way for commerce. In fact, many of them are now partly occupied by professional people, small dealers and artisans of various kinds who find that the traffic on the street enables them to do a remunerative business. On the south side of Fourteenth street, the onward advance of the places of trade will be somewhat impeded by the Oakland Public Library and the First Unitarian Church and there will as a consequence necessarily be a jump to west of Castro street and that jump will be taken before long. There will then remain but a short leap before the business section at the corner of Market and Fourteenth streets is reached, where there are already a number of successful stores in the enjoyment of a paying patronage.

"Boston never did have a sense of humor," says a Texas paper. Nevertheless the American Press Humorists are going to meet there next week and assume such risks as may be necessary.

BEGINS FIGHT AGAINST TAFT'S PLAN OF TRADE

R. L. BORDEN, the leader of the opposition in the Canadian Parliament, who has begun his campaign against the reciprocity treaty.

R. L. Borden, the leader of the opposition in the Canadian parliament, has begun his campaign against the reciprocity treaty. He has already been in the north making speeches against the measure.

Borden was born in Nova Scotia and has been a conspicuous member of the Canadian bar for many years. He has been a member of the Canadian parliament since 1896. In February of 1901, when Sir Charles Tupper resigned, Borden was made leader of the Conservative party.

PROPOSES WHEN HE IS INTRODUCED

Meets Girl and in Hour Becomes Engaged, Marries, Robs and Leaves Bride.

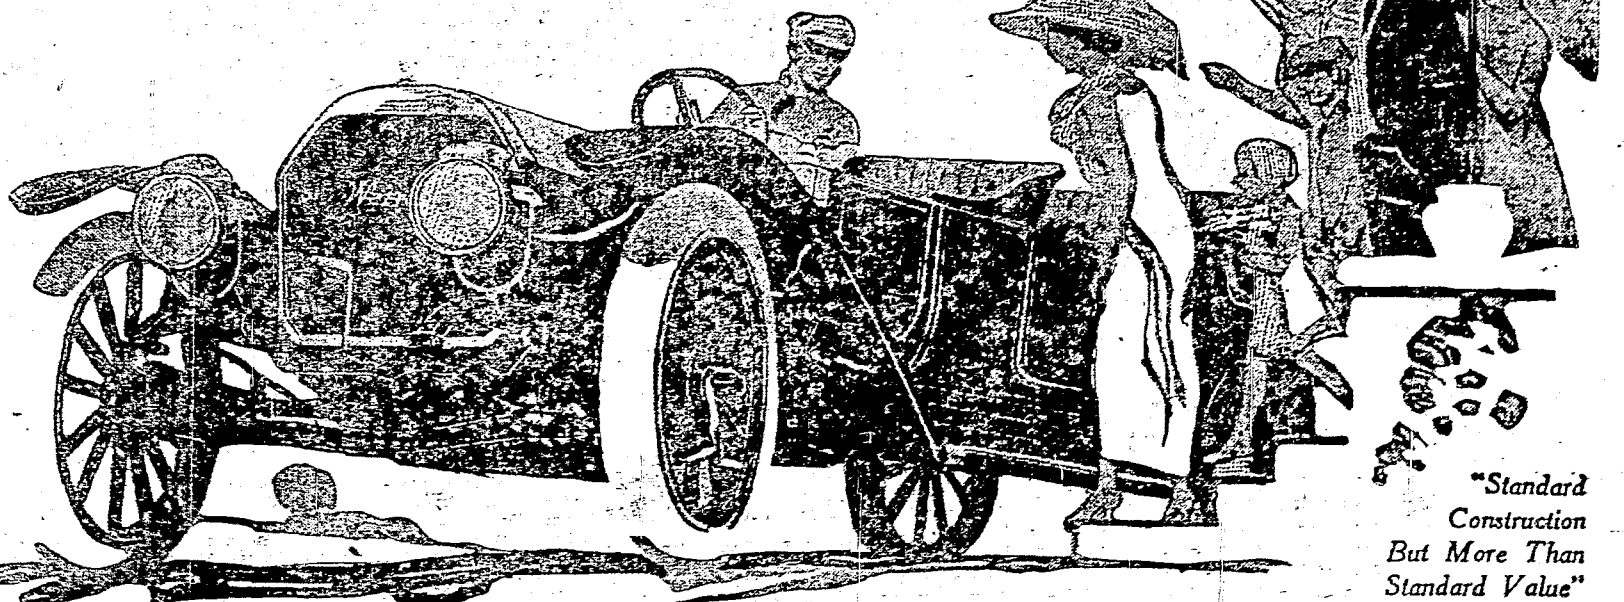

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Dorothy Hersey Hillman, 23 years old, told Judge Bennett in the Central Police Court this morning that she had only known her husband, whom she charged with non-support, five minutes before they were married. An hour after they were married this husband after taking $75 of her money. Mrs. Hillman says she can speak seven languages and that she is a graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music. She says she is a graduate nurse of a New York hospital and that she was at one time assistant head nurse of St. Agnes' Hospital in New York city and at another time a nurse in the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Her husband, who comes from Maine, she said, she first saw when he had a room at 124 Chandler street in this city, while she had a room at 144. He used to wear a sweater with the letter of a Maine college which attracted her notice. At 1 o'clock on the morning of July 8 they met and spoke a few words. Hillman proposed, and they were married. He immediately borrowed $25 for a suit and also took her pocketbook, which held $5. She complained to the police, who arrested Hillman for non-support. He was bound over to support his wife. band. Peter G. Hillman, she said, left

Warren 1912

The Warren Has "Made Good" wherever it has been sold—and it will continue to make good because every Warren has back of it a service—a factory service and a dealer service that is unique in Automobile history.

A CHAMPION CAR

Recall the Warren record for 1911 and you will remember that it established its title as one of the staunchest, fastest, best built stock cars in America. You will remember that it holds two official American records for five and ten miles in the 161 to 230 piston displacement class—that it went through the racking, tearing strain of that famous 24-hour race at Los Angeles on April 8th last, covering 1187 miles in 24 hours without a single motor adjustment or tire change, establishing a world record for mileage and speed.

Recall the dash of the Warren "Wolverine" thirty horse-power car traveling from Detroit to New York City and back in the dead of winter—over a thousand miles through snow and ice; the same car later crossing the continent, doing over forty thousand miles and wearing out three sets of drivers and correspondents.

Favorite in "Auto Capital"

Ask the people of Detroit—where sixty per cent of the world's automobiles are made—what they think of the Warren, and they will point to the large number of Warren cars on Detroit streets and tell you that for the season of 1911, Detroiters gave the Warren preference. They will tell you that the company is ultra-conservative. That it has never failed to meet a promise; that it never made a promise it didn't know in advance it could keep. That it has never sacrificed quality for low price—has never hesitated to spend money on improvement—has been quick and eager to take advantage of every practical advance in automobile engineering, but always adhering to the proven, the tried-out, the practical.

They will tell you that this policy of refinement and improvement has brought their cars a reputation for durability, reliability, simplicity and economy. They will tell you that the factory is managed by practical automobile men, who know the automobile business thoroughly.

Warren Owners Boost

Ask any Warren owner what he thinks of his car. He will tell you that it has made good—that it is capable of duplicating any record made by any Warren on track or speedway. Keep in mind the fact that the Warren has always made good—and you will appreciate why this 1912 announcement without adjectives or flourishes of any kind is of vital interest to every one contemplating the purchase of an automobile.

The Warren Company has always dealt in facts—it has never been boastful—never claimed the earth—has always and everywhere fulfilled its promises.

Finer Finish—Full Equipment

Warren models for 1912 have the staunchness, stability, quality, reliability, power and speed that distinguished Warren cars the past season, but added to these features is mechanical and detail refinement wherever possible. The 1912 motors are even more flexible, more eagerly responsive, more alert. All the valves are enclosed within an aluminum case, keeping the oil in and shutting out the dust, dirt and sand, contributing to durability. The springs in the 1912 cars are more flexible, more resilient—easier riding, because they are longer and wider, and each leaf thinner and of especially tempered spring steel, giving more strength with flexibility. The fine thing about the Warren proposition is that all cars come completely equipped.

Nine Body Styles. Prices ranging from $1225 to $1825, F. O. B. Oakland and San Francisco.

HUMANE SOCIETY PLANS CONVENTION

San Francisco to Welcome Delegates to Association's Meeting.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Preparations for the thirty-fifth annual convention of the American Humane Association, which will be held in San Francisco October 2, 3, 4, are occupying the attention of the Humane societies throughout the state. The American Humane Association is the only national anti-cruelty federation which represents the Humane societies of the United States. The meeting in San Francisco will be the first ever held west of the Rocky Mountains in the history of the Association and the fifty odd societies of the state are preparing to give its delegates a royal welcome.

Special low rates have been granted for the convention from all parts of the country and every effort is being made to make the attendance as large as possible. After two days' sight-seeing in San Francisco and vicinity, the delegates will be entertained for two days in the southern part of the state. Among those who will address the convention are the most prominent humanitarians identified with the movements as well as some of the most brilliant speakers in the state.

GOVERNOR TO SPEAK.

Governor Hiram Johnson, Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, J. A. B. Scherer, president of Throop Polytechnic Institute, Dr. E. L. Conner, president, State Humane Association of California, E. W. Newhall and John Partridge, representing the San Francisco societies, are some of the local speakers. Among those who will come from different parts of the country expressly to be present and speak at the convention are: Dr. William O. Sullivan, one of the foremost humanitarians of the present day, president of the American Humane Association and holding honorary and executive office in many organizations throughout the world; John L. Shortall, for a number of years president of the Illinois Humane Society and director of the American Humane Association; H. H. Hart, representing the Russell Sage Foundation of New York City; Oscar A. Troenstine, secretary of the Ohio Humane Society, Cincinnati, a very active and successful humane worker, well known throughout the United States; Rev. E. B. Gilchrist, D. D., representing the Louisiana S. P. C. A.; Guy Richardson, secretary, American Humane Education Society, Boston; Hon. Robert J. Wilkin, president New York State Convention of Anti-Cruelty Societies, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Nathaniel J. Walker, secretary American Humane Association, Albany, N. Y., and many other distinguished speakers.

LONGFELLOW SCHOOL DEDICATION TOMORROW

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—The dedication of the Longfellow School will be conducted by the West End Improvement Club, Inc., tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The school, at Morse and Lowell streets and is one of the Class A structures built with the proceeds of the 1908 bond issue. H. J. Hinz, president of the club, will preside. Songs will be rendered by the pupils of the school under the direction of Mrs. Mary Glade and the flag will be raised under the direction of Professor S. Miehling.

Among the speakers will be Alfred Franciotti, superintendent of schools; Mayor P. H. McCarthy, members of the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Education and Frederick J. Churchill, secretary of the Mission Promotion Association.

George I. Vassar, secretary of the West End Improvement Club, will deliver the "Address to the Flag." Arrangements are in the hands of the committee comprising H. C. Lester, chairman; E. A. Moline, secretary, and S. Stephens, George I. Warren and Axel Larson.

NEW YORK BECOMES GREAT TRADE CENTER

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—New York is coming to be one of the greatest distributing centers in the world. Foreign merchandise is carried from New York to more than seventy different countries. The greater part of this foreign merchandise is carried to Canada, Germany, France, Belgium, Cuba, Mexico and Argentina in the order named. Canada alone, our largest customer of foreign merchandise, received nearly $14,000,000 worth last year. South America and West Indian ports show a rapidly developing trade in these important articles. Last year an increase of fully 50 per cent. was registered over the previous year.

FOR ITCHING SCALPS DANDRUFF AND DRY, THIN, FALLING HAIR

Cuticura Soap and Ointment Afford a Speedy, Economical and Agreeable Treatment.

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, of women, the following special treatment has been found most effective.

On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin at the side and make a parting, gently rubbing Cuticura ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Anoint additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the ointment on the scalp skin rather than on the hair.

The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but for women's hair once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment. Men may apply Cuticura ointment as they would a pomade or in any other convenient way, preferably at night, as often as necessary to keep the scalp clean and the hair from falling, but may shampoo lightly with Cuticura soap every morning, when making the toilet.

Notwithstanding that Cuticura soap and ointment are sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, those wishing to try this treatment may do so without expense by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. U, Boston, for a free sample of each, with 32-p. book on the care and treatment of skin and hair.

It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the pillow from stain.

PASTOR READY TO TIE ASTOR-FORCE NUPTIAL

REV. PERCY STICKNEY GRANT, who it is thought will perform the ceremony which will unite John Jacob Astor to his girl bride, Miss Madeline Force. The Episcopal clergy are loath to officiate at the ceremony owing to the recent denunciation of the coming nuptials by prominent members of the diocese.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—That Rev. Percy Stickney Grant will perform the ceremony at the wedding of John Jacob Astor and Miss Madeline Force has been reported, and it is said arrangements to that end have already been made.

In consequence of the denunciations of the coming nuptials made by all the bishops of the Episcopal diocese because Astor is a divorced man, very few clergymen would dare to perform the ceremony.

It is reported that because of the notoriety given the marriage all over the country, Astor may be married privately.

KLINKNER GETS DEEPER IN TOILS

Wife Beater Arrested on More Serious Charge of Threats to Kill.

Because C. A. Klinkner, a clerk residing at 1239 East Twenty-second street, who was twice arrested for beating his wife, told the police that as soon as he was released he would go out and "finish the job," a warrant was issued late yesterday afternoon charging him with making threats to kill, and he was consigned to the city prison. Bail was fixed by Judge James Quinn at $1,000 cash.

Neighbors of the Klinkner family were aroused late Thursday night by the screams of Mrs. Frances Klinkner and the police were notified. Patrolman Kimmel rescued the woman and arrested Klinkner. He was released on $500 bail and immediately returned to his home after appearing in court the following morning and again attacked his wife. She ran screaming from the house and made her way to the police station. Her face was bruised and bleeding. Klinkner was again arrested, and while being taken to the police station by Bailiff James Flynn, he declared that he would again get out on bail and "get his wife." Bail was fixed at $500 cash, and today when it was learned that it was possible he would gain his release, a warrant was sworn out charging him with making threats to kill.

The case will come up in the police court Monday morning. The case has been set over to September 17 for trial.

SPECIAL MUSIC FOR PARK CONGREGATIONAL

Evening—Double quartet, "Softly How the Light of Day" (Nevin); solo, with violin obligato, "Just As I Am" (Greene), Mrs. Frank and Miss Blanche Liebing; quartet with tenor solo, "Lord With Glowing Heart" (Marsh), Miss Graham, Mrs. Frank, Mr. Cowan and Mr. Delmar; duet, "Twilight" (Nevin), Mr. Hyde and Mrs. Frank; solo, "Love Divine" (Nevin), Miss Frances Graham.

WELL KNOWN PIONEER WOMAN PASSES AWAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Laura Griggs Buckbee, for forty-one years a resident of San Francisco, is dead. She was 83 years of age. Mrs. Buckbee was the widow of Charles A. Buckbee, a well known Baptist minister of this city, who died eight years ago. Her brother, Samuel C. Griggs, formerly was the head of the Griggs Publishing House in Chicago.

The deceased is survived by five children, John C., Samuel G. and Spencer C. Buckbee, Mrs. Robert J. Curry and Mrs. William S. Bliss. The funeral will be private.

SON OF HORSEMAN CLAIMS BIG ESTATE

LA PORTE, Ind., Aug. 19.—Efforts are to be made, it is announced here, to establish the claim of Charles R. Regan of Lima, O., to the nearly $100,000 estate left by Collins Regan, a former race horse owner, in Kings County, Cal.

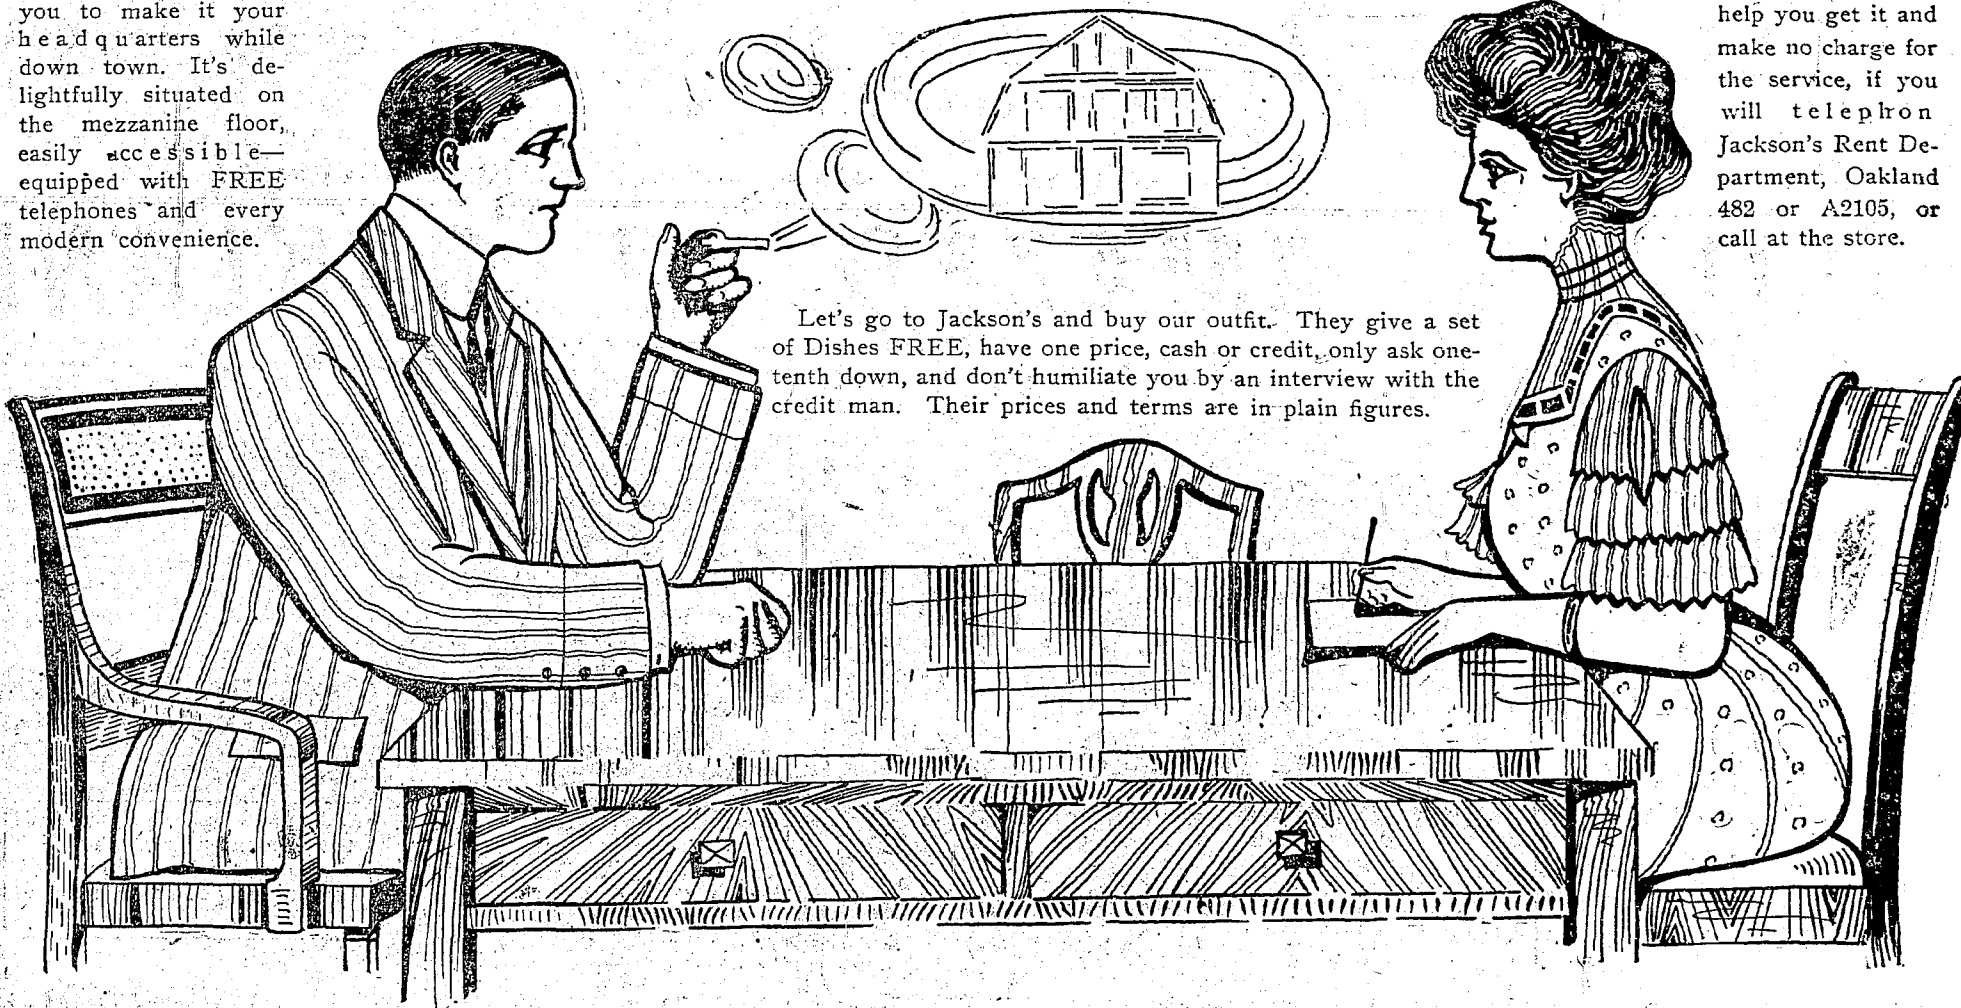

Young Regan's mother married Regan in 1873, shortly after Regan's famous stallion, Monarch, Jr., had cleaned up the grand circuit.

VISITORS AMAZED AT OAKLAND'S GROWTH

'TIPOS' PRAISE OAKLAND'S GROWTH

Real Estate Progress Called to Attention of Thousand Visitors.

Booklet Giving Facts and Figures Presented to Delegates.

There was never a body of visitors to this city, who were invited to accept the hospitality of any organization in this community, who were more enthusiastically and successfully entertained than were the delegates to the convention of the International Typographical Union which has been in session in San Francisco during the week just brought to a close.

These were, in the main, the guests of the Oakland Typographical Union which raised the greater part of the money required for the display made and the hospitality dispensed. This was done by the members of that organization assessing themselves a certain percentage of their wages for some time past, thus forming a fund upon which the managing committee was able to call for the purpose of properly showing regard for their brethren not alone from the United States but also from Canada, Sandwich Islands and the Philippines.

It is not because the local Typographical Union played the host in a capable and liberal manner that the late visit becomes entitled to reference in this development department of THE TRIBUNE but because the latter organization through the thoroughness of its entertainment gave Oakland an advertisement equal to any it ever received through the visit of any collection of humanity which was ever harbored here.

There are thousands of conventions held throughout the country in the course of a year, the delegates to which return to their homes in other sections without receiving a single line of the individuality of the place in which they have been deliberating. This may be because the entertainers take no interest in caring for their guests or perhaps there is nothing in the place of meeting to which the attention of the delegates can be directed with the hope of arousing the admiration or enthusiasm of the stranger.

WELL-INFORMED BODY.

Such, however, is not the case with Oakland and no body of men in this community is better informed on the subject than Oakland Typographical Union, which, while entertaining their friends taxed itself to show the strangers the marvelous beauty of the place, the matchless serenity of its climate, the improvements of all kinds which are being made in the streets, the parks, the foot-hills, the residences along the waterfront and the comprehensive plans for the construction of quay walls, for the accommodation of commerce, fashioned after those of Liverpool, which are calculated to bring to this port a large part of the shipping of the world.

While the inner man was fed at the banquet board the minds of the visitors were stored with facts so ingeniously contrived that there was not a delegate who did not realize that here is really the coming city of the Pacific coast with a future which is entirely his own.

When the last word at parting was said between the local entertainers and the passing guests, there was not one of the latter who did not promise, even pledge himself, to leave nothing undone to tell of Oakland, Cal., in the East and North and South and to take pleasure in doing so for the reason that they were able to appreciate the possibilities of this city, the genuineness of its hospitality and the countless features which made it really a favored place among the famous cities of the world.

HOW IT WAS DONE.

The local union in question made use of several expedients in accomplishing the good work, in many instances by pointing out the various advantages of Oakland but more especially in a leaflet showing places of interest which were visited on the day of their entertainment, copies of which were taken home as souvenirs of their sojourn in this city, and from this the following are a few excerpts:

Oakland—The Athens of America. Population, 250,000. One hundred and fifty-three miles of electric railway. One hundred and ten churches. Magnificent public buildings. Hotels costing millions of money. Fifteen banks safeguarding over $40,000,000 in deposits. You will be given a quick view of

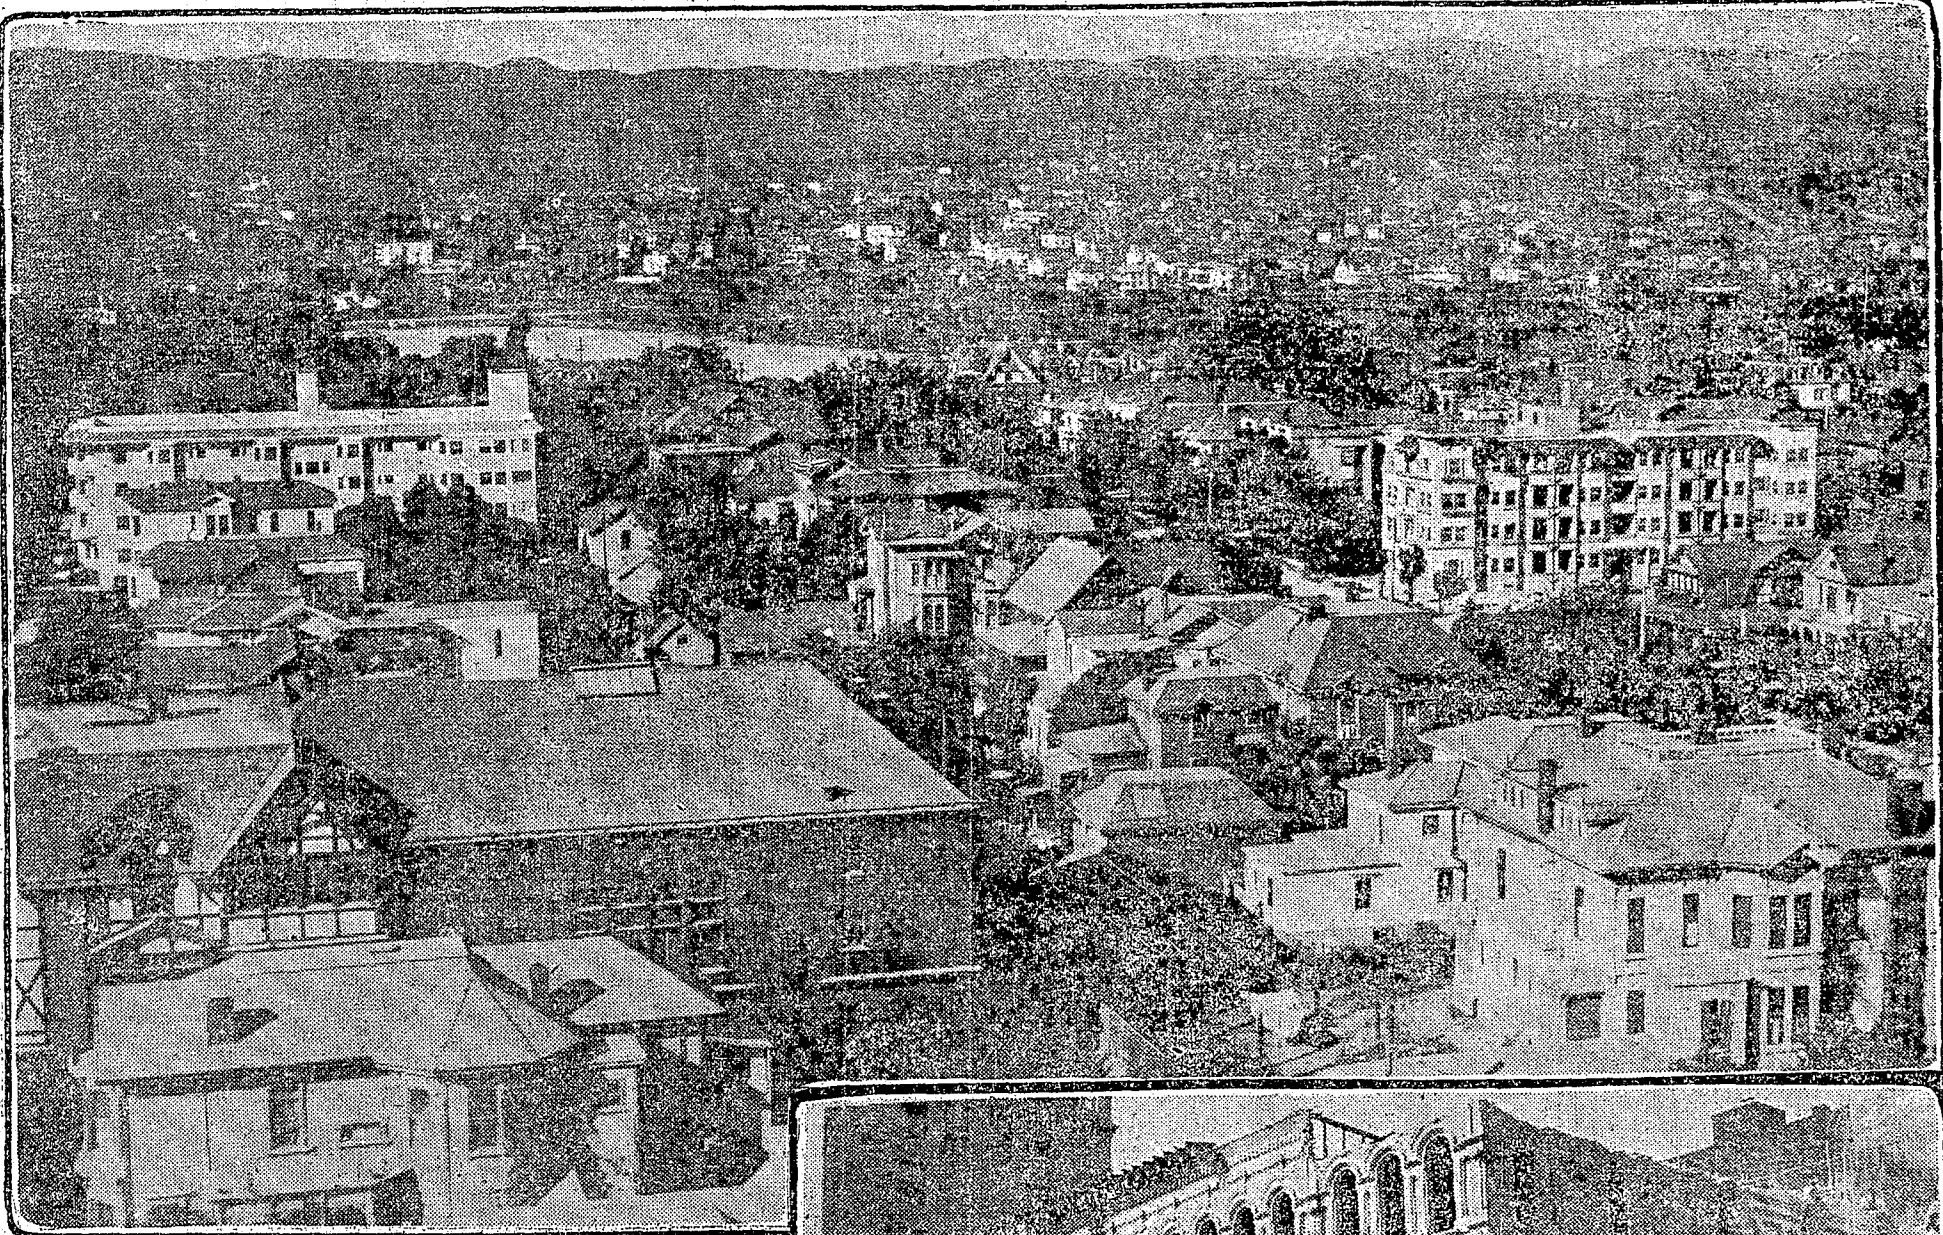

"City of Berkeley—Population, 45,000. Gain in ten years, 30,000. Assessable property, $38,000,000.

"University of California—Grounds, nearly 300 acres. Average attendance, 6,000. Faculty, 400. Points of interest in campus.

"Father Gate—Just completed at a cost of over $25,000. Scenic cars will take you through the most attractive home section of Central California. You will see "Oakland Harbor—Completely landlocked and teeming with shipping from every port of the world.

"Lake Merritt—Oakland's beautiful water park, bounded by boulevards and fringed with tropical foliage.

COUNTY RECORDER REPORTS INCREASE

Healthy Activity of the Realty Business Shown by Figures.

Report of the business transacted in the office of County Recorder Bacon during the week ending Thursday last, shows an increase, not alone in the number of documents filed as compared with those of the preceding week but also with those of the corresponding week of one year ago.

In the general activity of the increase has been due to the number of deeds which have been recorded, which shows healthy activity in the realty business, not alone of this city but also of the county of Alameda, because several important transfers of property have taken place beyond the limits of the larger cities of the county.

The total number of instruments filed during the past week was 945 as against 798 for the corresponding week of last year. The receipts reached a total of $1227.30 as against $1028.75 for the corresponding week of 1910. The showing by days of the week is as follows:

It is apparent that, in the above table, one of the days of the corresponding week last year was a holiday. Of course, on that day there were no instruments filed. Regardless of that fact there has been a substantial increase in the business of the county as shown by the records for the week just closed, more especially because it is the experience of those who have long been connected with the Recorder's office that where important documents are to be filed, the party interested places them on file at the earliest possible moment when a legal holiday is approaching, or in the event that it may not be able to reach the office before the close of the day before the holiday, he is sure to be on hand almost of the opening of the office on the morning after the holiday.

LOWEST TAX RATE.

MARYSVILLE, Aug. 19.—The city council will fix upon $1.50 on the $100 of valuation as the municipal tax rate for the year 1911 in Marysville, against a rate of $2.50 last year, of which 85 cents was for the levee fund. The rate promised for the levee fund this year is the lowest in many years.

"Alameda—The city of beautiful residences. Population, 30,000. Climate delightful the year round.

"The local Typographical Union has done a great work and has set an example for other organizations in this community which should be followed when it comes their time to act as entertainers. The good the latter will accomplish for this city will be well incalculable.

BUNGALOWS HAVE CALL IN ALAMEDA

Fernside Boulevard, Garfield Avenue and Mastick Park Centers of Activity

ALAMEDA, Aug. 18.—Building Inspector John Davies issued the following building permits this week:

Owner, C. A. Wakefield; builder, George Wakefield; addition to 468 Central avenue; cost $200.

Owner, C. A. Moore; builder, C. A. Bailey; alteration to 2112 Buena Vista avenue; cost $200.

Owner, Mark T. Cole; builder, day's work, 1-story 5-room dwelling at 1832 Ninth street; cost $1500.

Owner, D. C. W. Bronson; builder, alteration to 1233 Park street; cost $400.

Owner, L. T. Olderton; builder, George A. Benesman; alteration to 1516 Chestnut street; cost $1600.

Owner, G. Farfane; builder, owner; addition to 522 Taylor avenue; cost $400.

Owner, Charles S. Neill; builder, owner; architect, William Dufour; summer house 1847 Sherman street; cost $400.

Owner, Grace M. Mininger; builder, Charles Burton; repairs to 1642 Broadway; cost $187.

William Dufour has plans in his office for the erection of cottages at Santa Clara avenue and Eighth street in the Bowers tract and at Webb avenue and Everett street. The cottages which will be modern and commodious will be placed on the market. Dufour has built a number of the most attractive homes in the city, and it is expected that the new cottages will sell rapidly.

R. C. Hullen who has constructed a block of bungalows on each side of Garfield avenue is now preparing to build on the north side of Liberty avenue and on Fernside boulevard and Garfield avenue. Hullen has already built more than twenty bungalows in the east end, all of which have been sold. The price of the new dwellings range from $1500 to $3500. Frank Hally is the agent for the property.

Twenty dwellings of the bungalow type are under course of construction in Mastick Park, in the west end. The tract of land is owned by the San Francisco Investment company. Charles Adams is the agent. The bungalows are attractive and admirably located.

Sales this week have not been so brisk as formerly but the realty brokers are expecting a rush business during the latter part of this month, many sales being under way and not yet consummated.

A temporary building will be erected on the high school lot at the southeast corner of Central avenue and Walnut street, for a biological laboratory. The new Haight and Washington schools which the pupils are now occupying are entirely satisfactory.

PRIVATE GOLF COURSE

REDWOOD CITY, Aug. 19.—Mortimer Fleishacker has purchased the Attorney Gish place, and the George Bogel property at Portola Park near Woodside. He recently bought other parcels in the park so that he has now a tract of 48 acres of land. He is building the only private golf course in the West, which will be ready for use within the next fortnight. It will be as large as the course of either the Burlingame Country Club or Hillsborough or the Menlo Country Club of San Jose.

REALTY MEN TO AID STATE FAIR

Local Dealers Arranging for Exhibit of Photographs and News of Oakland.

In line with the recent campaign of activity, the Oakland Real Estate Association at the last meeting, took action for representation at the state fair in Sacramento, which opens August 26. It was decided that space in connection with the Oakland exhibit be utilized by the organization and that L. W. Jefferson, the assistant secretary, be sent to Sacramento in charge of it.

It was further decided that a display be made of the excellent photographs of Oakland which the different members of the association have in their possession.

It was also agreed that every possible aid be given Secretary Denison of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce.

Action upon banquet and universal form of contracts was laid over, owing to the absence of the chairman of the committee, Chairman C. V. King of the appraisal committee reported he was proceeding with the work of fixing the values of different city blocks to be filed in the books of the association.

Out of the large list of applications for membership, those elected were: McHenry & Kaiser, F. F. Porter, Lewis & Mitchell, B. L. Spence and George M. Flint.

The association has also under consideration a proposition to become a member of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges, which has branches in forty-two of the leading cities in the country. The aim of the national organization is to bring the realty dealers of the country together and eventually to hold annually national conventions for the purpose of securing the passage of legislation which may be deemed necessary, both in the several states as also in Congress.

It aims also to enable members in one city to conduct deals in distant parts of the country, where there may be a branch of the organization formed.

Among the cities in which branches exist may be mentioned Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Denver, Omaha, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Louisville, and a number of others. The branch annual dues are $25 for an organization having twenty-five or fewer members, $50 for a branch

WINE GRAPE CROP WILL FIX PRICES

STOCKTON, Aug. 19.—Grape growers will not know what they will receive this year for wine grapes until the crop is ready for the pickers. Andrew Mattel, a big independent grower of Fresno, has been quoted as saying that the price for Zinfandels this year will be $10 a ton. In San Joaquin county, according to Frank West of George West & Son, there is a much better crop than last year. What the price will be he would not venture to state other than repeat Mattel's figures.

It is understood that there are many of the members of the local association who are strongly in favor of joining the national organization referred to which is now represented here by L. J. Halsey. It is believed that the proposition will be acted on at the next meeting of the association.

NEW HOMES GROWING IN UNIVERSITY CITY

BERKELEY, Aug. 19.—Building permits have been issued during the week as follows:

One-story six-room dwelling, Parker and Abel street, for Mrs. G. M. Ramsey, $1700.

One and a half story seven-room dwelling, Oxford street and Los Angeles avenue, for Rev. George H. Henman, $2850.

Two-story six-room dwelling, Elmwood court and Ashby avenue, for Mrs. Kate R. Haskell, $2500.

Two-story 11-room court, El Camino real, for D. R. McCall, $5000.

One-story four-room cottage, Burnett and San Pablo avenue, for Taunton, $1235.

Two-story 7-room dwelling, Woolsey and Claremont avenue, for A. S. Dalziel, $4500.

One and one-half story 6-room dwelling, Earst and Highland avenues, for Mrs. Mary Moffitt, $1000.

One-story 4-room bungalow, Carlton and Ninth streets, for Mrs. E. Delmos, $950.

OLD LANDMARK FAST DISAPPEARING

Little Remains of Hotel Merritt, Well Known in Other Days.

Represented One of City's Early Real Estate Enterprises.

THE TRIBUNE herewith presents a picture of the building which, for the past thirty-four years, has been known at different times as the Merritt Hotel, and the Hotel Merritt, now in course of demolition at the northwest corner of Twelfth and Franklin streets. Parts of the familiar cream-colored walls have already disappeared and, before the end of this month, the entire structure will have disappeared and be a memory of those only who love the past.

This structure is one of the most valuable in this city which has ever been destroyed for the purpose of making improvements here, for the reason that it is built of brick, solidly constructed, and was sound enough to have survived, in good condition, for the next thirty-five years. Even at the time its demolition was decided upon, it was making money for the proprietor. In fact, its revenue was increasing, there was an extension of the leases of the stores and the quarters of the second and third stories.

Most of the buildings which have been razed to the ground for the purpose of making way for the construction of modern structures in the recent advancement of the city have been of a fragile character and not a few of them were badly decayed. Indeed, it was wonderful that some of them remained in existence as long as they did.

EARLY DAY ENTERPRISE.

The Hotel Merritt represented in its construction the early day enterprise of the late Dr. Samuel Merritt and Henry Rogers, now second vice-president of the Oakland Bank of Savings. It was constructed in 1877 in response to a demand for a hotel in the northern business part of the city, the other hotels at the time being in other sections of the city. The retail stores near the intersection of the thoroughfares, between the east and west and northern and southern sections of the city.

It occupied the full lot owned by the gentlemen named, having a frontage of 100 feet on Twelfth street and 100 feet on Franklin street. It was three stories in height, with a full basement, the walls being made unusually thick and coated on the outer side with cement, which latter wore a tint having the appearance of sandstone. The coloring was so perfect that other sections of the city people in this city who did not know that the structure was of brick until the work of demolition disclosed the secret.

The cost of the building was $50,000. The brick work was done by the firm of Vurner & Young, which was a prominent contracting firm at the time. The carpentering was the work of former Sheriff Robert McKillican of this county, who is still in business in this city and San Francisco. McKillican, also, exercised general supervision over the construction of the building.

The lot on which the hotel was constructed was valued at the time at $25,000. The building was intended for four stories on the first floor, all of which have had steady tenants for a long number of years. Two of these stores have, for nearly a decade, been occupied by the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, the other two being used by commercial houses.

Besides the Merritt structure, however, the adjoining one on the west side is also to be sacrificed in order to make way for the proposed theater which is to be constructed by the Loeb Realty Company.

WAS FINEST HOTEL.

When the hotel part was first opened for the accommodation of the public, it was considered the finest hotel in the city at that time been opened to the public in that section of the city. The first tenant was a Mrs. Potts, who conducted the hotel for about three years. She was followed by a succession of tenants, some of whom made money in the venture and others of whom found the balance on the wrong side of the ledger.

Henry Rogers, one of the original builders, declares that the structure has more than paid for itself. For a number of years he was the owner of the whole structure because, besides retaining his original half interest in the property, he was willed the half owned by the late Dr. Merritt, when the latter died about twenty years ago. Several years since, Mr. Rogers sold the structure and ground to a furniture man in San Francisco named Friedmann, for $100,000, the structure was sold a short time after for $150,000. The property is now worth a great deal more than it was at the time of the last sale. The theater which is to be erected on the site is to be a class A structure, costing $150,000, and will be in the Pantage's circuit.

IMMENSE PEAR CROP GOES TO NEW YORK

RED BLUFF, Aug. 19.—The picking, packing and shipping of pears at the Cone ranch is completed, and it is said to be the largest pear orchard in the world, eighty acres being devoted exclusively to Bartlett pears. There were over 700 tons of pears, which sold for $21,500, or almost $400 a acre. Almost the entire crop was sent to New York.

See This House Today

On One of the Prettiest Car Rides, Ten Minutes From Oakland's Business Center

GRASP THIS NOW, "YOUR OPPORTUNITY FOR A HOME."

An ideal home overlooking Piedmont's magnificent hills, combining proximity to town with the freedom of the country. Located at No. 20 Nace street, just east of Lake avenue, Piedmont Vista.

The house has seven rooms, hardwood floors, a basement, two large porches, dressing rooms adjoining the bedrooms and big closets 5x10, with windows. The front hall, 6x10, opens on one side into a big living room, beautifully finished in soft browns and on the other side into a big comfortable library, with a fine open fireplace, flanked by book cases. From the living room one enters through a wide arch into the spacious dining-room, having a unique and beautiful built-in buffet. Both living and dining-rooms have a magnificent unobstructed view of the Piedmont Hills through big 5x6 plate glass windows. This alone is an ever-changing and pleasing picture and the source of constant pleasure.

From the kitchen, just off the dining-room, one has access to the servants' room, basement, with extra toilet, and cemented laundry.

Returning to the front hall one goes through a gothic arch upstairs to the wide, light hall, opening into the bedrooms, bathroom and double sleeping porch. This porch is also reached from the dressing room of each bedroom. The bedrooms are all finished in light, pleasing pastel colors and afford both hill and marine views. The fixtures are of a most artistic and beautiful design and are sure to please. All windows are fitted with best cement-gray shades. The bath is big and roomy and has a fine long tub and wide wash basin.

The house can be bought on terms to suit the purchaser and is open for inspection. Mr. W. M. Greuner, the builder, will be there Sunday, and will take pleasure in showing you through.

Mr. Greuner has other houses in this immediate vicinity, as well as in all parts of Oakland, or in case you prefer having one built, is in a position to finance and build you a home anywhere.

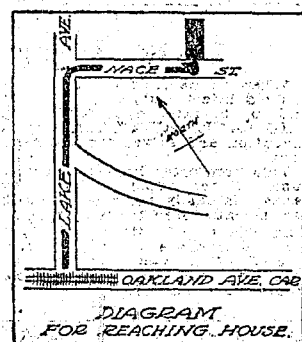

In going to the house take the Oakland avenue car, get off at Lake avenue and go north about two blocks to Nace street, and the house stands just one-half block to your right, facing south.

Appointments can be made with Mr. Greuner by calling Piedmont 3814 or Oakland 3585, or he can be seen at his office daily at 22 Bacon Block, Oakland. Auto will call for bonafide, prospective purchasers if desired.

DON'T SACRIFICE SAFETY FOR SPEED---GET BOTH

Those two things are seldom combined. "Haste makes waste," as the old saying goes. Hurry a man and you worry him. And a hurried and worried man is a poor one to rely on for accurate, complete, trustworthy work.

Yet there are times when you need an abstract or title quick. Come to us for it. You'll get it "on time" and infallibly accurate. The reason is simple—we have a set of complete, systematized, accurate records that make quick and correct work easy for us. Without such records, speed and safety would be out of the question for anybody. For your own satisfaction, come in and learn the details.

SUBURBAN PROPERTY IS MUCH IN DEMAND

Oakland Realty Buyers Eagerly Snatch Up Lots Adjacent to this City

There is not a city on the Pacific Coast which is settling up more territory which has heretofore been either unutilized or devoted to agricultural or horticultural purposes, than Oakland.

Acres upon acres in what has been considered the belt of the richest and most productive land in the county but which, nevertheless, has been covered with an unbroken sod, is being turned into residence property, placed on the market and being sold on terms that are reasonable and at the same time affording a most liberal return to the dealer.

The breaking up of immense tracts of productive lands, in suburban sections, which for many years were considered as beyond the possibility of being reached by the onward march of this city, has been the cause of surprise to people who had thought that Oakland, and it had reached the limit of her expansion.

Of those people now, it seems certain that the growth and extent of this city can not be circumscribed, even by the foothills, and the thriving city which almost surrounds her.

GOOD WORK OF REALTY DEALERS.

The enterprise of realty dealers in buying up extensive tracts of rural property and converting them into home sites has had a great deal to do in the expansion of the limits of the municipality. The desire of the thrifty city to establish a home for himself and family, at the least possible expense, which is made possible by the reasonable rates and still more reasonable terms offered by those who have placed these home sites on the market, has been a wonderful incentive in the settlement of those tracts.

In this work of development, too, the extension of street car lines has been a very important factor, for the reason that these extensions, which are daily taking place and which are about to be carried to the limits of the county and even beyond, enable the man of limited means to live at a distance from his place of business and still be able to reach shop or office, by means of modern railway conveniences, in considerably less time than was formerly required when he was a resident within the residents of the community.

ORNATE HOMES.

While many of these tracts are intended for the accommodation of people with limited purses, there are others which have been provided for the appreciation of men of means who are able to erect homes costing well up in the thousands and surrounded them with spacious and beautiful grounds. There is no dearth of applicants for places of this class, either, and as a consequence, wherever one travels in the suburbs at the present time he will find the humble cottage, the bungalow and the ornate home of the man of money rising from the plain or dotting the hillsides, increasing the beauty of the landscape, and the population of the city and at the same time, the wealth of the county.

ACTIVE SUMMER SEASON.

There has never been a more active summer season in the realty business in this city than the present. There is not a realty office that is not crowded day by day by patrons of one kind or another. Among these there are all kinds of people. Some belong to the class, the members of which can be convinced after a few interviews as to availability of this or that piece of realty or personality. There are others, who, regardless of the fact that they are able to see why they should make an investment, still delay action, sometimes, it must be said, until it is too late. During their period of hesitation another purchaser secures the prize and then the dilatory ones realize the opportunity they have lost.

It must be said, however, that the offerings of the realty and personality dealers have been of such a superior character that there have been but comparatively few procrastinating inquirers. There have been many sales of lots, as also many transfers of homes and structures built by present occupants, which have inspired the desire for ownership on the part, in a general way, of people from all classes who are seeking habitations and places of business here.

BUNGALOWS DEMANDED.

There is, however, one note of disappointment among the dealers in this kind of property, and that is they are not able to supply, either in a limited degree, the demand made upon them for cottages, and, in a special manner, the more elaborate style of home known as bungalow. This is somewhat remarkable in view of the fact that, for a long time, the architects of Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda and even San Francisco have been diligently at work endeavoring to supply designs for structures of this kind, and thousands of these designs have been constructed on this side of the bay. The architects are still at work, and yet the real estate men complain of the inability to satisfy the people who are willing to purchase and rent structures of this unique style of architecture.

Many of those making the demand are residents of this city and vicinity who have outgrown the simpler place of abode in which they passed their earlier married life, but the great majority are strangers. A large number of them come from the eastern part of the country and not a few of them from the southern section of the state, who desire to avail themselves of the equable climate of this favored region.

The dealers, however, are doing their best to accommodate their patrons in this respect, and as a consequence, property owners and those who make a specialty of constructing buildings when there is a demand for the same, are putting their money into this peculiar line of work and gradually adding to the population of the city and advertising abroad the availability of Oakland as a home place at all seasons of the year.

HUNTING BUSINESS PLACES.

There is scarcely any difference between the activity in the demand for residences and that for business and industrial property. What has been said of the difficulty on the part of real estate dealers in satisfying the demands for bungalows is also the case with respect to business places. There is not one of the leading dealers who has not requests for stores in the business districts which he is unable to satisfy. In the main, the demands come from San Francisco, the merchants of that place having for some time been aware of the fact that there is a better retail trade here, relatively speaking, than there is on the other side of the bay. For weeks these local dealers have been striving to locate quarters for their patrons, but without success. This is the case notwithstanding the fact that the business district of this city is extending in all directions, as also that new buildings have been constructed and older ones remodeled for the purpose of satisfying demands. There are now several of the best-known firms in this section, who have been here for a number of years, and who have finally been convinced that they need finer, larger and more central quarters. After seeking in vain to find available places they are turning to the realty men for assistance. The realty men, in turn, are turning to the business districts from the predicament by offering terms to owners of property to erect structures for their special occupancy.

The gentlemen in the several realty offices who have special charge of this department of the development business say that among these applicants for accommodation from abroad there is not one who has not offered a bonus for the procurement of quarters in certain designated sections.

TRYING TO BUY LEASES.

There are a number of instances of this kind which might be referred to, but one may suffice. It is the case of a well-known local firm which, after waiting several years, was able to induce a certain capitalist to build a structure for its special accommodation. The building has been completed, but not occupied. It will be taken possession of, however, at the earliest possible moment by the firm for which it was erected, but regardless of that fact the latter has been offered a bonus for its lease by still another firm of this city which, by reason of recent forced changes of base, is anxious to secure a permanent place in keeping with the importance of that which it enjoyed for a number of years.

The offer, however, as it was declined. This means that before long the public will be informed that still another new business building has been decided upon for the firm which was unable to purchase the lease in question.

NIMRODS ARE TO GATHER AT NEWARK

Alameda County Fish and Game Protection Association's Affair Today.

NEWARK, Aug. 19.—Preparations are complete for the annual meet of the Alameda County Fish and Game Protective Association here tomorrow. The pavilion will be used for the exercises and barbecue. Jack Hadden of this place has charge of the affair. The town will be thronged with the sportsmen whose intent is to protect the game all over California. All the communities have made their complete preparations, and with the city's assistance, expect the fifth annual barbecue to be the best ever held in Alameda county.

Many Swains in Wake of Two Rich Stallo Sisters

MISS LAURA STALLO, one of the Stallo Sisters, who are the richest girls in Connecticut and two of the wealthiest girls in the United States, having inherited the fortune of Alexander McDonald. The engagement of Miss Helen Stallo, Laura's sister, was recently announced.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—Miss Laura Stallo is a sister of Miss Helen Stallo, whose engagement has just been announced. They are the richest girls in Cincinnati and two of the richest in the United States, having inherited the great fortune of Alexander McDonald. Although it is not known that Miss Laura Stallo has as yet given her heart to any one suitor, there are numerous swains eager to captivate the beautiful young heiress, who is desirable not alone for her wealth and position in society, but for her own charm.

Her sister Helen has promised to marry Nils Florman of Sweden, the son of an admiral in the Swedish navy. The wedding, it is said, is to take place in the near future.

BOYS WOULD LIVE TOO NEAR CO-EDS

Mix-Up in Washington University Because of Location of Chapter Houses.

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 19.—Tacoma members of the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority and the Delta Tau Delta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities received notice today that they would not be permitted to enter the University of Washington this fall unless their societies changed building plans so that fraternity and sorority houses would not be located in proximity to each other. All three of the societies have this summer expended large sums in the construction of chapter houses. The action by the university authorities is the result of a campaign waged by Miss Isabelle Austin, dean of women, to secure greater isolation of the sexes at the institution.

CHEMICAL FOG TO RIVAL BIG GUNS

Inventor Claims Obliteration of Ships More Formidable Than Cannon.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The newest weapon in naval warfare may be a chemical fog spread broadcast over the water. The inventor claims he can produce fogs artificially, miles in extent. He proposes to equip battleships with the proper chemicals and apparatus, which upon being attacked may surround themselves with a thick blanket of mist. It is argued that this barrier would be more formidable than steel armor plate, since this enemy could not detect the presence of the ship. The friends of the invention believe that the discovery marks an important step for international peace.

BIGGEST BABY GIRL TO DATE IN MARIN COUNTY

SAN RAFAEL, Aug. 19.—A scale with a weighing capacity of fifteen pounds proved useless in registering the weight of a baby girl, born to the wife of George McLaughlin, the local Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, at 12:50 o'clock this morning. Shortly after the visit of the stork, scales were procured and the proud father and friends gathered around to see the "mite" weighed. The new arrival had hardly been placed on the pan when, to the delight and astonishment of those present, the scales snapped, precipitating the baby into the arms of the father. A hasty search of the house failed to discover a weighing machine of harder strength, and it has been necessary to send a call, post haste, to San Francisco for a scale which can register a larger number of pounds. Dr. C. B. Martson, who attended Mrs. McLaughlin, says the baby is the largest that has ever been born in Marin County.

MOTHER AND TOTS SICK AND HUNGRY

Sad Case of Desolation Due to Death of Husband in Melrose.

EDITOR TRIBUNE—Sir: I would like, through your widely circulated paper, to call the attention of the charitably disposed to the case of a Mrs. Brandt of 5125 East Twelfth street, Melrose.

These are the facts: Mrs. Brandt's husband was very poorly for 12 months, six of which he was wholly unable to work, and about three weeks ago he passed away. He left three children, little girls, aged respectively 10, 8 and 2 years. To add to this number, a baby girl was born a few days ago.

Under these circumstances Mrs. Brandt is unable to help herself and is without means. Were it not for the kindness of neighbors (all poor people), she would be a great sufferer.

The Associated Charities are attending to the matter, but as they are confined to $10 per month, that amount does not half cover the absolute necessities of life, without mentioning clothing (in which all are in need of), fire, light and water bills.

It is a very sad case and I feel assured that an appeal through your valuable paper would receive a ready response from the charitably disposed.

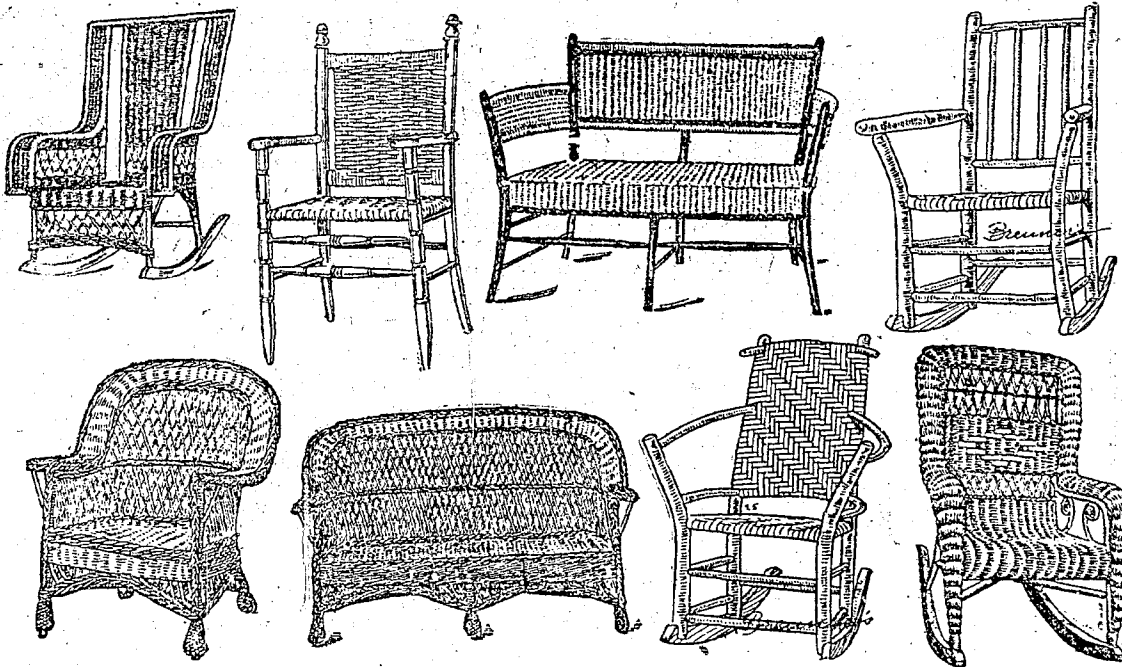

Thanking you in advance for the publication of this appeal, I remain
Yours sincerely,
MRS. DENKER,
1444 Fifty-second avenue, near East Fourteenth street, Melrose.

SOCIAL EVENING OF HIVE NO. 14

Ladies of Maccabees Render Pleasing Program of Music and Song.

Oakland Hive No. 14, L. O. T. M., held its regular weekly review on Thursday in Maccabee hall. The order of business was hurriedly dispensed with to give way to the committee in charge of the dime social, under the supervision of Mrs. Rademacher, which proved a success. This program was rendered:

Piano solo, "Valse-Caprice," by Isabelle Allison, who responded to a hearty encore.

Song, "Moonlight, Rose and You."

by Ethel Phillips, accompanied by Lottie Smith.

Reading, monologue, "The Sales-lady," and other imitations, by Mrs. W. Childs.

Vocal solo, "The Slave Song," by Bertha Ormsby, accompanied by Emma Ohrenberg.

Song and dance, "See-Saw," by little Helen Marcovich, accompanied by Emma Ohrenberg.

Piano solo, "Dying Poet," by Dorothy Fassett.

After the program, games were indulged in and prizes awarded. A grab bag was another feature of the evening.

Oakland Hive 14 will entertain the commanders' and past commanders' association in Maccabee hall all day Thursday, August 31.

The Sewing Bee Club will meet on Wednesday, August 23, at 1:30, at the home of its secretary, Mrs. H. Block, 147 Lawton avenue, Oakland.

SALMON PICKLING CEASES.

ASTORIA, Ore., Aug. 19.—Cold-storage plants have practically quit picking salmon for the season, as their packs are up and the fish now taken will go to the canneries.

REALTY BROKER AGAIN IN TOILS

F. A. Wills Must Answer to Another Charge of Felony Embezzlement.

F. A. Wills, a realty broker of this city, arrested some days ago on an embezzlement charge, was arrested on a new felony embezzlement charge yesterday, the warrant being sworn to by Emilie Pechart of Salt Lake. It is alleged in the complaint that Wills sold a lot belonging to Pechart, at 525 Fifty-second street in this city, and failed to turn over to the owner $397 of the money collected. Wills was arrested by Inspector William Kyle, and will be examined before Judge Samuels August 29.
